THIS country will hear with regret of the death of Robert T. Lincoln, who died in Vermont Sunday at the age of 82. The name of Lincoln is sacred to every American, and the son of Abraham Lincoln, who has just died, bore his father's name with dignity.

He was a good American citizen, worthy of the nation that owes its continued existence to his great father.

THE war between the Mexican government and the Catholic church has reached an acute stage. Sunday morning it was announced that on August 1 religious services will cease in all Catholic churches in Mexico.

In each church a committee will be chosen from the congregation to take care of the building. Churches will be left open to the people to worship, but the priests will not officiate.

It is also suggested that those helping to enforce Mexican laws against the Catholic church will be excommunicated.

President Calles, of Mexico, replied to the threat of a religious boycott by accusing the Catholic church authorities of "plotting a revolt under the cloak of religion." Calles says the boycott will fail and threatens to jail eight bishops of the Catholic church in Mexico.

THE world will watch with interest this battle between the Mexican government and the Catholic church, first of its kind in many years.

The cessation of all religious services in Mexico will undoubtedly cause turmoil and distress among all classes. Mexican Indians especially will resent being deprived of services which they believe essential to their spiritual welfare. The Christian religion was forced upon them originally by Spanish conquerors, and much bloodshed in many cases accompanied the process.

But the Indians are now devout Christians, often more earnest in their faith than people of European extraction.

The threat of the Catholic church to boycott all of those that enforce the anti-Catholic laws in Mexico is also serious, more so than Protestants ordinarily would understand.

Such a thunderbolt of the church may not possess in these cynical agnostic days the power that brought an excommunicated German emperor over the mountains in winter to stand barefoot in the snow at Canossa, beneath the pope's window, begging for a pardon. But in the minds of devout Catholics, to be excommunicated is to endure spiritual death, and the threat will be powerful.

The American people and government, of course, have no right to tell Mexico what law shall be made as regards Mexican affairs, but the confiscation of the great properties of the Catholic church in Mexico without remuneration is surprising to Americans. When this country took over the Philippines, and thus deprived the Catholic church of certain rights and possible income, the United States government paid the sum of eight million dollars to Rome, by way of damages.

V. A. SCHREIBER SAYS GOVERNOR IGNORES VICE IN RIVER CITY

Refers to Lack of Action in Jefferson County Murders.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

Mellett Killing is Discussed at Primary Campaign Rally.

The action of Governor Donahey in sending a special investigator to Canton to probe the slaying of Don R. Mellett, crusading publisher of the Canton Daily News, while, he charged, the state executive is ignoring vice conditions in Jefferson county where 12 murders have been committed within six months, was condemned by V. A. Schreiber, superintendent of the Canton district of the Anti-Saloon league in an address before 75 men and women at a primary campaign rally under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. in the First Church of Christ last night.

Discusses Candidates' Qualifications.

"The Canton murder has been given a whole lot of publicity because Mellett was a newspaper man," said Schreiber. "Governor Donahey's special investigator was on the job within a day or two after the murder. Did any of you people ever hear of the governor sending a state man into Jefferson county to make an investigation of 12 murders which have taken place there within a short period of six months?"

The main purpose of Schreiber's visit to East Liverpool was to discuss qualifications of candidates who are seeking the nomination at the primaries on Tuesday, August 10. His subject was "The Coming Election and Municipal Affairs."

"We hear so much howling from the wet camp these days that prohibition cannot be enforced," said Schreiber. "Every wet you talk to says the law is non-enforceable and at the same time is one of those who is violating the law himself.

"Those who have had the appointing powers for prohibition jobs have been placing wet men in the place. In other words, enemies of prohibition are being placed in a position to enforce the law with which they are not in sympathy. Is it any wonder that enforcement is made difficult?

By PAUL E. BROKAW.

CANTON, O., July 28.—While authorities here were working feverishly today, striving to connect a few missing links in the evidence that is expected to lead to arrest of the slayers of Don R. Mellett, crusading Canton publisher, federal investigating agencies took a hand in the solution of the crime.

Captain A. P. Owens, postoffice inspector from Cleveland, said shortly after his arrival here that he "might have a startling revelation to make later in the day."

Asked if he was endeavoring to trace the threatening letters that have been received by certain investigators, or if he was trying to uncover the sender of an anonymous letter that contained valuable unchecked information on the slaying, the postal inspector declined to answer.

For several days, Ora Slater, private detective in charge of the investigation, and his cohorts have been able to place their hands upon at least one of the men connected with the murder.

PALESTINE AID SOUGHT HERE

Appeal Campaign Will be Launched Sunday Night.

Campaign to raise East Liverpool's quota in the proposed $5,000,000 fund to rebuild Palestine as the Jewish homeland, will open at a meeting to be held in the Odd Fellows temple at 6 o'clock Sunday evening, when team leaders will be named.

I. A. Swiss, Pittsburgh attorney and leader in the Zionist movement, and others will speak. Rabbi L. Kurland, who recently took charge of the B'Nai Jacob congregation, will present a musical program.

Plans for the United Palestine appeal campaign here were discussed at a recent meeting held at the home of Campaign Chairman Meyer Reich, Woodlawn avenue.

I. J. Williams, field secretary of the United Palestine Appeal movement for western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia attended the session. Meyer Reich, Rev. L. Kurland, Morris Sarbin, Benjamin Wolk, Harry Gordon, M. I. Bennett, Julius Sulkes, Morris Resnick and Maurice H. Reich, members of the local committee were present.

The movement to rebuild the Palestine country has been a dream for almost 2,000 years but has become a reality since the World War. Six presidents—Coolidge, Wilson, Roosevelt, Harding, Harrison and Adams have endorsed the movement. Approximately 60,000 Jewish settlers are expected to take up their residence in the land within the next year.

COUNTY'S 1927 HIGHWAY PROGRAM WILL INCLUDE 23 MILES OF GRADING AND 18 MILES OF PAVING

The Columbiana county road program in 1927 will include 41 miles of improvement—23 miles of grading and 18 miles of paving—it was announced today at Lisbon.

Acting under a resolution adopted by the commissioners, County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk is peparing to make surveys and draft plans for the program.

Improvement of 24.80 miles of county highway by grading and surfacing, at a cost of approximately $600,000, was on this year's program.

Adhering closely to plan outlined before the $950,000 bond issue was approved, the following are to be included in the 1927 program for grading:

Lisbon-Salineville road from Gavers south to connect with the improved Wellsville-Salineville road, distance five and one-third miles.

Elkton-Clarkson road east from Elkton, distance five miles.

Signal-Rogers-Negley road from Signal eastward to Negley, distance four and three-quarter miles.

East Liverpool-East Palestine road in St. Clair and Middleton townships, distance four miles, and probably over a new route to be determined by the state highway department.

Westville south to North Georgetown, distance four miles.

Paving contracts to be awarded for completion in 1927 will include seven miles of the Salem-Hanover road and the Summitville-Salineville highway to the Salineville corporate line, a distance of four miles, and Williamsport north to Rogers, a distance of seven miles.

On account of heavy fills being made on grading jobs this year, and for which paving contracts have also been awarded, it is probable that an order will be issued by the state highway department to allow these fills to settle, and then proceed with the paving as soon as the weather permits.

With the completion of the 1927 program, roads listed for grading and paving under the scheme outlined before the bond issue went to a vote, will be improved. In the jobs next year, county, state and federal funds will be used.

In addition to the straight grading and paving work being done this year, the county is participating in the construction of a bridge on the Harrisville-Westville road to the extent of $2,271.

County's Highway.

The Columbiana-Waterford road now under construction for a distance of 2.65 miles was awarded on a bid of $69,173, while the two miles of the East Rochester-North Georgetown road will cost $50,890. The contract for the 2.75 miles of the North Georgetown-Salem road was awarded on a bid of $99,132 and the half mile of the Wellsville-Salineville road within the corporate limits of Salineville cost $18,597. Three contracts on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road, covering a distance of 11 miles, totalled $279,488. The Cleveland-East Liverpool highway, or the improvement on the Goshen road out of Salem, was awarded on a bid of $52,000 and covers a distance of 1.65 miles. One mile of grading on the Summitville-Salineville road was let at a price of $11,000. There is also being spent $3,750 on 1.75 miles of the Springfield-Unity road and $2,089 on a quarter of a mile on the Canfield-Columbiana road in Fairfield township.

The street car was in charge of H. W. Kirchner.

Duty was carried into his home, a short distance away, where he was given medical attention by Dr. J. M. King and Dr. M. C. Tarr.

When the Alliance fire department arrived on the scene the blaze had been checked by a bucket brigade.

POSTAL INSPECTORS TAKE HAND IN SEARCH WITH ARREST IMMINENT

CAPT. A. P. OWENS HINTS STARTLING REVELATIONS MAY BE MADE TODAY

Three Greeks, Identities Unrevealed, are Sought in Hill District in Pittsburg as Police Await Coming of Chief Investigator — Homicide Squad Leader Checks Up Clues.

By PAUL E. BROKAW.

CANTON, O., July 28.—While authorities here were working feverishly today, striving to connect a few missing links in the evidence that is expected to lead to arrest of the slayers of Don R. Mellett, crusading Canton publisher, federal investigating agencies took a hand in the solution of the crime.

Captain A. P. Owens, postoffice inspector from Cleveland, said shortly after his arrival here that he "might have a startling revelation to make later in the day."

Asked if he was endeavoring to trace the threatening letters that have been received by certain investigators, or if he was trying to uncover the sender of an anonymous letter that contained valuable unchecked information on the slaying, the postal inspector declined to answer.

For several days, Ora Slater, private detective in charge of the investigation, and his cohorts have been able to place their hands upon at least one of the men connected with the murder.

Slater Seeks Confession.

Slater has declared, however, that he will arrest no [illegible] "suspicious person [illegible] confession is gained, but that the first arrest made by him will be made on a warrant charging murder.

PI[illegible]RGH, July 28.—Three Pittsburgh Greeks, identities unrevealed, were being sought in the Hill district, Pittsburgh's "bad lands," today, as police awaited the arrival of Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, leader in the search for the slayers of Don Mellett, Canton, O., publisher.

Peter Connors, head of the homicide squad, announced that the three men were to be questioned "to check up on a very strong chain of evidence," which he said local police had against the men.

Search for the men was begun following a telephone conversation between Connors and Slater, in which the latter said that he would arrive in Pittsburgh late today or Thursday to aid in the search.

Business Section Of Indiana Town Swept by Fire

BRAZIL, Ind., July 28. — The business section of the town of Patricksburg, southeast of here, was wiped out by fire today, with a total loss of $100,000. Eleven business houses, including the Patricksburg bank, and three residences were destroyed. The fire is said to have started in a barn about midnight. Not a store was left standing.

Warren, "Broke," Fires Police, Asks Fund for Firemen

WARREN, O., July 28.—This city of 40,000 inhabitants was forced today to resort to public subscription to retain a depleted fire department after the city council last night passed an emergency ordinance abolishing the police department and reducing the fire department to one station.

The city is "broke." It now owes its policemen and firemen a month's back pay.

The ordinance abolishing the police department becomes effective next Saturday when Sheriff John Smith and five deputies will take over the dupes of law enforcement.

The police department here consists of 16 members.

PALESTINE AID SOUGHT HERE

Appeal Campaign Will be Launched Sunday Night.

Campaign to raise East Liverpool's quota in the proposed $5,000,000 fund to rebuild Palestine as the Jewish homeland, will open at a meeting to be held in the Odd Fellows temple at 6 o'clock Sunday evening, when team leaders will be named.

I. A. Swiss, Pittsburgh attorney and leader in the Zionist movement, and others will speak. Rabbi L. Kurland, who recently took charge of the B'Nai Jacob congregation, will present a musical program.

Plans for the United Palestine appeal campaign here were discussed at a recent meeting held at the home of Campaign Chairman Meyer Reich, Woodlawn avenue.

I. J. Williams, field secretary of the United Palestine Appeal movement for western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia attended the session. Meyer Reich, Rev. L. Kurland, Morris Sarbin, Benjamin Wolk, Harry Gordon, M. I. Bennett, Julius Sulkes, Morris Resnick and Maurice H. Reich, members of the local committee were present.

The movement to rebuild the Palestine country has been a dream for almost 2,000 years but has become a reality since the World War. Six presidents—Coolidge, Wilson, Roosevelt, Harding, Harrison and Adams have endorsed the movement. Approximately 60,000 Jewish settlers are expected to take up their residence in the land within the next year.

COUNTY'S 1927 HIGHWAY PROGRAM WILL INCLUDE 23 MILES OF GRADING AND 18 MILES OF PAVING

The Columbiana county road program in 1927 will include 41 miles of improvement—23 miles of grading and 18 miles of paving—it was announced today at Lisbon.

Acting under a resolution adopted by the commissioners, County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk is peparing to make surveys and draft plans for the program.

Improvement of 24.80 miles of county highway by grading and surfacing, at a cost of approximately $600,000, was on this year's program.

Adhering closely to plan outlined before the $950,000 bond issue was approved, the following are to be included in the 1927 program for grading:

Lisbon-Salineville road from Gavers south to connect with the improved Wellsville-Salineville road, distance five and one-third miles.

Elkton-Clarkson road east from Elkton, distance five miles.

Signal-Rogers-Negley road from Signal eastward to Negley, distance four and three-quarter miles.

East Liverpool-East Palestine road in St. Clair and Middleton townships, distance four miles, and probably over a new route to be determined by the state highway department.

Westville south to North Georgetown, distance four miles.

Paving contracts to be awarded for completion in 1927 will include seven miles of the Salem-Hanover road and the Summitville-Salineville highway to the Salineville corporate line, a distance of four miles, and Williamsport north to Rogers, a distance of seven miles.

On account of heavy fills being made on grading jobs this year, and for which paving contracts have also been awarded, it is probable that an order will be issued by the state highway department to allow these fills to settle, and then proceed with the paving as soon as the weather permits.

With the completion of the 1927 program, roads listed for grading and paving under the scheme outlined before the bond issue went to a vote, will be improved. In the jobs next year, county, state and federal funds will be used.

In addition to the straight grading and paving work being done this year, the county is participating in the construction of a bridge on the Harrisville-Westville road to the extent of $2,271.

County's Highway.

The Columbiana-Waterford road now under construction for a distance of 2.65 miles was awarded on a bid of $69,173, while the two miles of the East Rochester-North Georgetown road will cost $50,890. The contract for the 2.75 miles of the North Georgetown-Salem road was awarded on a bid of $99,132 and the half mile of the Wellsville-Salineville road within the corporate limits of Salineville cost $18,597. Three contracts on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road, covering a distance of 11 miles, totalled $279,488. The Cleveland-East Liverpool highway, or the improvement on the Goshen road out of Salem, was awarded on a bid of $52,000 and covers a distance of 1.65 miles. One mile of grading on the Summitville-Salineville road was let at a price of $11,000. There is also being spent $3,750 on 1.75 miles of the Springfield-Unity road and $2,089 on a quarter of a mile on the Canfield-Columbiana road in Fairfield township.

The men were arrested in a raid conducted by officers on the old Freshwater farm near the Tope school. Two large stills with complete equipment, 180 gallons of liquor in addition to large quantities of grain and mash were confiscated.

Joseph Valensky was arraigned before Justice William Fleming on a charge of possessing moonshine liquor. He was held to await the action of the grand jury in bond of $1,000. He was arrested in Holliday's Cove.

COVE STATION TO BE ABANDONED

The Pennsylvania railroad has posted notices of the abandonment of its non-agency station at Hollidays Cove which will become effective August 12th. Notices of abandonment were first issued May 14th to which no protests were filed.

Provision for abandonment proceedings were made at a meeting of the West Virginia public service commission April 22. Thus will pass out of existence one of the oldest stations on the Pennsylvania.

The right of way through the old Hindman property was secured when provision was made for a station to be located near the same property. It was the opinion of many older residents that the old station could not be abandoned because of the old agreement.

If any such argument existed it was only during the life of Samuel Hindman from whom the right of way was secured. It is also probable that a station existed here during the period the Hollidays Cove railroad was in existence from 1846 to 1848, which extended only from a point above Collier to the Ohio river near Wheeling Junction.

ATTORNEY FINED FOR SPEEDING

Attorney Robert Wilkin, of Wellsburg, was fined $16.25 when arraigned on a charge of speeding before Mayor C. S. Cattrell, of Holliday's Cove. He announced that he would appeal the decision.

Attorney Wilkin, accompanied by his brother, James Wilkin, prosecuting attorney of Brooke county, it was charged were driving at a rapid rate through Weirton and Holliday's Cove in order to make connections with a lake steamer at Cleveland. They were arrested by Officer John Matheny.

EXCEL COOKER AT CUT PRICE

Ohio Power Company Offers Electric Wonder Friday.

The Excel, a two-gallon pure aluminum lined electric cooker for a family of five—an invention that gives the housewife more time for pleasure and means the end to "hurry home to get dinner"—will be placed on sale Friday by the Ohio Power company at its Fourth and Washington streets office.

This cooker, which prepares a full meal, keeps food hot all day and connects anywhere, will be sold on a sliding scale basis during the introductory campaign. The price of the first cooker will be $3.90, and 5 cents will be added to the second, 10 cents to the third, 15 cents to the fourth, etc., until the $6.50 mark is reached. The ordinary sale price is $10.

This invention bakes brown buns, biscuits, bread, etc., as well as meat and vegetables. And it cooks for less by virtue of its stored heat principle.

Speaking of the new cooker, J. F. Malone, commercial manager of the Ohio Power company, said:

"No watching, no turning nor basting are necessary in the use of an Excel. Housewives will be enabled to get out of the kitchen during the summer days, keep on their pretty street clothes, eat with the family like company and enjoy their own cooking.

"It is unnecessary to stay home to cook. Merely place the roast, potatoes, vegetables and pudding in the cooker —turn on the current according to the chart. By the time the mother or wife is dressed for the street it will be about time to turn the current off and she is free for hours, while the Excel continues to cook by stored heat.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX.

As the meal dragged along, Lou found herself picking a way through a tangle of unaccustomed conversational paths. Mrs. Sayles talked of doctors, and how convenient it was, in her weakened condition, that a very sympathetic one lived in the next apartment house. And of churches. The pastor of the mission parish near by preached beautiful sermons. A most comforting man. But this thought led unhappily near the ever-ready tear-ducts. Soon there would be no Wilbur to sit in the pew with her.

"I'm sorry to seem so unhappy,"—it was a thin, shaky voice,—"but when you've been through as much as I have, Miss—my—"

It was an opening, and nerving herself, Louise grasped it—reaching firmly over the table and clasping one of those plump hands: "Surely you're going to call me by my name," she said in a gentle voice. Wilbur flashed a nervous look at her, but she didn't flinch.

"I don't even know wh-what it is!"

"Louise. But the people I'm fond of call me Lou."

Wilbur was shooting wild glances. The swift thought came to Louise that his nerves might really crack. And that wouldn't do. So she said quickly: "It happened all at once. I can't tell you how strange it is to—to us too. But life seems to be like that. A man and a woman can work side by side for years, and then something happens that makes them realize they"—she couldn't stop now—"love each other." She kept her eyes resolutely away from Wilbur. If they were to meet his at this moment, she herself might crack. She could easily have burst into hysterical laughter. She made herself squeeze that limp, fat hand.

"But I'm so utterly in the dark," wailed Mrs. Sayles. "I don't even know when you're planning to be m-married."

"Oh, not right away," said Lou reassuringly.

Wilbur, at this point with a movement so sudden that the other two started, pushed back his plate, laid down his knife and fork, and stared at them. His sensitive mouth was set queerly. Flecks of color appeared on his cheeks. "What if I were to tell you—" he began in a breathy voice.

Louise desperately finished that sentence for him.

"—that we aren't to be married for at least a year." She hurried on. "We—we've talked that all out. Of course I'm busy, and there are a great many things I couldn't let go of all at once. It wouldn't be fair. And then there are still some things I must do for my own father and mother." At that Mrs. Sayles, sensing a familiar contact, looked closely at her through the tears, then glanced with knit brows at her rigid son.

Moodily, Wilbur drew his plate toward him, and with listless fingers, very slowly, picked up his knife and fork. The moment had passed. Louise could readily have sunk back limply to catch her breath, but that wouldn't do. She must keep on the alert every second.

Mrs. Sayles was puzzled. The tears weren't running now. She wiped her stained cheeks, and then turned almost sharply to her son. "That," she remarked, going straight to the heart of the matter, "isn't what you were going to say, Wilbur.

Doggedly he reached for his water glass and drank. Then, avoiding Louise's eyes, he turned to his mother, nerved himself to look straight at her, and replied: "Yes, Mother, that maybe more. So there's time enough was it. It will be a year at least—to—to work everything out."

The most painful moment of all came when Wilbur was paying the check and the two women were standing in the doorway. Mrs. Sayles rested a hand on Louise's strong young arm and looked straight into her face. It was a searching, uncompromising look. But as if of long habit, the full mouth worked, and tears were again near those eyes. "Do you love my boy?" she asked.

There was only one thing to do. Louise returned the look, replying directly and simply: "Yes, I love him." But she sensed, for the first time in her life, how murderers feel.

Again they had the slow walk back, solicitously guiding this woman who could be as helpless as she chose. At the steps of the old brownstone house, behind the drug store, Wilbur said, huskily: "I'll let you into the flat, mother, and then take Louise home."

So together they helped her up. She mounted those two flights alone several times every day, but now it seemed all she could do to get up. Louise kissed her goodnight, and then the two of them went briskly down to the street. Once on the welcome sidewalk, Louise drew off the ring and held it out to him, saying only: "I'll go down alone, Wilbur, if you don't mind."

"But,"—he was thinking lamely,—"I told her I'd—"

"No. Please! Here's the ring."

"But I'm afraid I—can't take it very well."

"I can't keep it."

"I know." His voice faltered. "You see, it wouldn't be safe with me. Sometimes she looks in my pockets. I couldn't be sure. I mean if I was asleep."

"Very well; I'll keep it tonight, and you can take it at the office in the morning." She snapped her bag shut on it.

"That would be better. If you don't mind."

"I don't mind. Good night."

"I don't know just what I'm going to do. You see, I said I was going with you. Perhaps I shouldn't have. But I can't very well go back up there. Besides, I—well, the less I'm up there tonight, the better. Though there are other nights coming—hundreds of 'em!" He sighed.

"I know." Louise felt as much pity for him as her strained nerves permitted. But she was near hysteria. "But you can stay out awhile, can't you?"

"Yes. I could do that."

"There are plenty of movie houses up here. I can't talk now. You be very careful what you say, Wilbur."

"I know. I pretty nearly spilled the beans in the restaurant. But I just couldn't stand it, all you were doing, and everything."

"Good night, Wilbur." Louise walked rapidly off to the elevated. Her shortness with him was sheer defensive instinct. For she had him to handle along with the mother. It was a sisable contract. And this new uncertainty in her long-established sense of command—it had never weakened before—was a disconcerting new factor in the situation. On the platform, waiting for a train, she leaned weakly against a pillar. "What if that woman ever found out about Leslie!" raced through her thoughts: And then, the one little word that was in itself an outlet passed her lips:

"Gosh!"

WORLD HOBO CONVENTION TO HAVE ORATIONS ON HIGHER EDUCATION

DENVER, Colo.—World hoboes are preparing to stage their fall convention in Denver.

The International Brotherhood Welfare association—the hobo's fraternity, not to be outdone by Rotary international, High Twelve, the American Bar association and other organizations, will hold its 1926 convention in Denver.

Some of the hoboes are already on the ground, but no definite date has been set for the opening session.

Walking delegates of the association will walk here from points east west, north and south some time in the fall and the call to order of the convention depends entirely upon their arrival.

A strong movement in order to revive the hobo college of New York's Bowery is under way, according to some of those already here. The Chicago hobo college is proving a success, they say, but the class rooms are getting crowded and besides food there is one thing the hoboes like better and that is plenty of room.

There will be plenty of oratory at the fall convention, according to advance notices and it will deal mostly with higher education.

Six planes are being used on the new Paris-Marseille air line, and cover the distance in about eight hours.

When you notice that they keep the back curtain down in the flivver they are riding in, one can be safe in betting it is a movable love nest.—Newark American-Tribune.

Deadline For Absent Voters

Columbiana county electors who expect to be away from their home precinct on primary day, Tuesday, August 10, have three more days in which to apply for ballots under the provisions of the absent voter's law.

Already many applications for the privilege of exercising the suffrage right have been received from vacationists and others by the deputy state supervisors, but the total is less than two years ago.

Balloting under this law begins 30 days before and ends on the third day prior to the election. Thus the polls for absent voters opened on July 11 and will close Saturday, July 31. Ballots marked before a notary public or election board official must be returned to the elector's home precinct before the polls close at 6:30 p. m. on primary day.

It is a qualified voter's duty to participate in the selection of his party's ticket for the November election. Republicans and Democrats who are out-of-town should apply at once for ballot supplies if they expect to vote. Otherwise they have no right to complain if they are disappointed in the results of the primaries.

Farm Prospects

The purchasing power of the American farmer was greater last year than at any time since the deflation period began in 1920—and 1926 has an even chance to bring a continuance of this comparative prosperity.

There is a big winter wheat crop and although the spring planting has suffered by reason of drouth in some sections, there should still be an exportable surplus of 150 million bushels of the preferred cereal.

Corn has not promised so well, but recent rains have greatly improved the situation. The fall farrowing of hogs will be unusually large and a good market for corn, which must always be considered in its relation to live stock, is thus assured.

The tobacco crop compares well with last year's and the cotton crop looks like a big one. There will be less hay, oats and barley but more white potatoes. The peach crop threatens to be the largest in our history, while poultry and dairying, which every year become more important factors in farm income, promise increased return.

There have been bigger crop years, and years of better prices, but the fruits of the farmer's labor will at least sustain his purchasing power at the levels of the past 12 months.

And that means that every business in the country—industrial or commercial—can face the future confidently.

Inspiration From Austria

Austria has never been regarded as a particularly progressive land. The old empire has produced great generals and musicians, notable surgeons and inventors, but the centuries of Hapsburg rule were not productive of governmental innovations and the world has never looked to Vienna for political or business inspiration.

Now, however, the Austrian committee of the Vienna Chamber of Commerce has framed a report to the trade barriers committee of the International Chamber of Commerce which commands respect.

The report points out how the great war destroyed the network of commercial traties which regulated and facilitated international trade and intercourse, and emphasizes the ways in which the instinctive jealousies of the new nations and their natural desires to protect and further their own interests have prevented a reweaving of the fabric. As a result all central Europe is suffering from complications of customs formalities and tariff walls. Domestic business is hampered no less than foreign trade.

With this situation in mind, the Austrians suggest the drafting of a collective treaty which shall define personal and corporate rights, eliminate multiple taxation of individuals and commodities, standardize passport requirements and consular authority, simplify navigation on international waterways, remove general prohibitions or restrictions of trade, and lay down rules for the conduct of financial transactions.

A treaty such as this, entered into collectively, would be the first, and might be the determining step toward a European customs union, and such a union ought, in the nature of things, to contribute largely to the establishment of an economic union which, in turn, would bring an enduring peace.

The fact that the suggestion comes from Austria may occasion some surprise, but it should not diminish the world's desire to see it tried.

The Ax For Will

The Prince of Wales, it develops, is not only a beau ideal but an effective joker. He handed Will Rogers one the other day which landed just about where Rogers deserved to have it, for all the fun he has poked at the prince's horsemanship, when, as everybody in England knows, its the horse, not the prince, that falls.

Wales, while doing the London honors for the roughneck American humorist, remarked gently to a listening world:

"What a pity it is that people are no longer beheaded in the Tower of London! We would like to know what Mr. Rogers would say when he felt the cold steel of an ax at the back of his neck."

The genial Will actually shrunk up and shuddered when he heard that. He's naturally a bit sensitive about that neck, anyway, but ordinarily doesn't think of axes.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 28.—The passing of Louis Sherry several weeks ago removed another illustrious name from that galaxy of epicurean stars who dazzled the Manhattan gourmets less than a decade ago. Delmonico, Rector, Shanley and Sherry.

Old Sherry's on Fifth avenue—now a bank—was one of the high spots of the town. It was where Little Egypt appeared at the famous Seeley dinner. The tables at the street windows abloom with flowers were reserved for men whose names are known all over the world—Stanford White, Berry Wall, the fashion plate, George Gould and others.

Here they looked out on the surging avenue promenade. Gossip weeklies picked up most of their salacious chit-chat amid the heavy hangings. The avenue had not yet gleamed with the brilliant red of the five and ten and the clop-clop of cobbed horses still smote the ears.

The banquet rooms were scenes of those Lucretian feasts that sometimes reached orgies and the front pages. High-flinging youth gathered at Sherry's at five o'clock to wet their cocktail appetites with the famous salted nuts on the bar.

The waiters, like those at Dear Old Del's cater-cornered across the way, were old friends and had turned gray in service. They were mostly Irish for the Greeks, French and Italians had not yet taken up the calling. They were Mikes, Pats and Johns.

The debacle of this restaurant world of the early nineties set in with prohibition. The process was slow and the proprietors as well as the old servitors waited hopefully, but popularity waned until three days before Sherry's closed only two faithful diners graced the dining room.

Sherry finally realized the palace of gourmandisers had had its day. A new area had been launched and he began the operation of a chain of candy stores. He had made several millions. Today the glittering chandeliers adorn a mid-western motion picture theatre.

Healey's at 66th street outlived most popular restaurants of its day. It is now bidding for patronage under a new name. In the old days it was run by Tom Healey, a genial Irishman who had an all-night license. He made several spectacular resistances to police interference after the dry law but business fell away. It was not unusual to see patrons leaving Healey's in the brilliant sunshine of an early morning. Bennie Uberall, a suave little head waiter, knew everybody of importance and to be admitted to Healey's after 2 o'clock was a mark of worldly distinction.

Then there was the original Bustanoby's on West 29th street. Another brother, Jacques, ran the Beaux Arts and still another brother, Pierre, the uptown Bustanoby's which gained such popularity with its black and white room. Vernon and Irene Castle had danced into the town with their ball room capers. Joan Sawyer and Mae Murray were also in the ascendancy as dancers. But it was the 39th street Bustanoby's that had the swift movement and color few cafes attain. It was the lair of under-graduates of the loose—just in from Princeton and New Haven with bull dog pipes and postage stamp caps. Often some sophomore inspired to leadership after two swigs of gin decided he would lead the orchestra. Instead he was led out into the hall and lifted across the sidewalk with a well placed kick. The ambulance often backed up to Bustanoby's to trundle off some young man who would miss chapel the next morning. They treated the collegiate rough but they came back for more and the rest of the town came to see the scrimmages.

One should not end such antiquarian ramblings without recalling Beefsteak Charlie's, so popular among race track followers of that period. I believe it is about the only one to survive.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A NOTED RUSSIAN SCULPTOR.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington, D. C., July 28.—The rise of a Russian peasant to become, at the age of forty-two, the most sought after sculptor in official circles of Washington, is a romance of art which indicates that the United States, although scorned by many Europeans as very backward in matters of the fine arts, is actually an art center where talent and energy can and do win their way to success. The National Gallery of Art at Washington holds half a dozen marble portraits by this young sculptor, the National capitol has others, and he is coming to be referred to as the sculptor of presidents since he has portrayed Harding and Coolidge among many other American notables.

All that Moses Wainer Dykaar, the sculptor in question, has accomplished during his ten years in this country has been done without any sacrifice of his art to commercialism, or any of the other drawbacks commonly said to harass the artist in this country. Mr. Dykaar is in fact, decidedly a temperamental person, and he pursues his art very much in his own way. His most recent work has been a bust of Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and he is completing a bust of former Senator Owen, of Oklahoma. In the Capitol his work is represented by busts of Thomas R. Marshall and Champ Clark, and his marble likeness of President Coolidge will have its place there, because as a former Vice President the congress will add it to the collection of sculptured portraits of men who have held that office.

Dykaar was born at Vilna, Russia, of Jewish parents, in 1884, one of ten children. As with most artists, his life has been one of struggle for recognition and for a living. Twenty years ago he went to Paris to study, and in order to study he had to work for a living. He became an expert marble worker, and long before any creative work of his own had reached the exhibit halls his skill as a workman had commanded the respect of experts in that line.

Years of study, chiefly under Raoul Verlet, perfected his art, and in time he was able to exhibit in the salons. He followed the modern school, though never a radical post-impressionist. Rodin was to some degree his ideal. Portrait sculpture became his goal, portraits which should not be photographs, but character portraits, imprisoning in marble and bronze both the features and the character of his subjects. He strove, as others have and are striving, to perpetuate in this art a result which show not merely what men or women looked like, but what manner of folk they were.

Not a Business Man.

Ten years ago he came to America, still poor and but little recognized. His first substantial friend, perhaps, was Champ Clark, who joked with him about art and his temperament, but encouraged him in every friendly way. His busts of Clark and of Marshall won him wide recognition, but commissions came slowly, and too much temperament spoiled what might have been substantial orders from persons of wealth. Like others artists, he was not a business man, and he had and still has ideas which to some business men appear stubborn.

An example of this developed in a commission to make a marble bust of a founder of a famous business, who died just as the work was completed. His successor in the business wanted the marble bust somewhat changed. He was not satisfied with the hair. He told Dykaar to change it.

"Mon Dieu!" exclaimed the sculptor, or words to that effect. "What would you say if I, who never spent five minutes in your business, should tell you that you do it wrong? But you, who never spent five minutes as a sculptor, tell me how to do it. I have given my whole life to it. I will not change a hair." Many months, and the friendly offices of a great museum director, finally calmed the irate millionaire and the bust was accepted as the artist had made it.

For another subject, a statesman in Washington, Dykaar had almost finished a portrait bust, when he decided the work was not satisfactory. At what would have been the final sitting he announced that he would destroy the work and begin again.

"You will not begin again on me," said the statesman. "I am through with these sittings and I will not have any more. The bust is good enough for me."

Dykaar ranted and raved. Friends and acquaintances of the statesman saw the bust, and declared it a marvelous piece of work. The artist persisted in declaring he would destroy it. Friends of the subject, who knew he was quite as stubborn as the artist and would probably never sit for another statue, intervened and saved the work, which is widely admired. Dykaar has since admitted that perhaps it is not so bad, but it does not suit him.

Former Vice President Marshall and Nicholas Longworth he regards as among his most difficult subjects. He found their faces very changeable and hard to fix in one satisfactory expression. His first model of Marshall was full of the expression of humor so frequent in Marshall's face,

Deadline For Absent Voters

Columbiana county electors who expect to be away from their home precinct on primary day, Tuesday, August 10, have three more days in which to apply for ballots under the provisions of the absent voter's law.

Already many applications for the privilege of exercising the suffrage right have been received from vacationists and others by the deputy state supervisors, but the total is less than two years ago.

Balloting under this law begins 30 days before and ends on the third day prior to the election. Thus the polls for absent voters opened on July 11 and will close Saturday, July 31. Ballots marked before a notary public or election board official must be returned to the elector's home precinct before the polls close at 6:30 p. m. on primary day.

It is a qualified voter's duty to participate in the selection of his party's ticket for the November election. Republicans and Democrats who are out-of-town should apply at once for ballot supplies if they expect to vote. Otherwise they have no right to complain if they are disappointed in the results of the primaries.

Farm Prospects

The purchasing power of the American farmer was greater last year than at any time since the deflation period began in 1920—and 1926 has an even chance to bring a continuance of this comparative prosperity.

There is a big winter wheat crop and although the spring planting has suffered by reason of drouth in some sections, there should still be an exportable surplus of 150 million bushels of the preferred cereal.

Corn has not promised so well, but recent rains have greatly improved the situation. The fall farrowing of hogs will be unusually large and a good market for corn, which must always be considered in its relation to live stock, is thus assured.

The tobacco crop compares well with last year's and the cotton crop looks like a big one. There will be less hay, oats and barley but more white potatoes. The peach crop threatens to be the largest in our history, while poultry and dairying, which every year become more important factors in farm income, promise increased return.

There have been bigger crop years, and years of better prices, but the fruits of the farmer's labor will at least sustain his purchasing power at the levels of the past 12 months.

And that means that every business in the country—industrial or commercial—can face the future confidently.

Girls! Use Lemon To Whiten Skin

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. $94,605 LOW BID ON SMITH'S FERRY HIGHWAY

Allison-Harris Company Cuts $32,000 From First Estimate.

OTHER BIDDERS

Rinehart Brothers Submit Proposal of $99,278.

With an estimate of $94,605.07, approximately $32,000 less than the first bid, the Allison-Harris Construction company, of this city, was the low bidder for the improvement of the Smith's Ferry section of the Midland-East Liverpool road when proposals were opened by the Pennsylvania state highway department at Harrisburg yesterday. The contract will be awarded within the next week or 10 days.

Rinehart Brothers, also local contractors, who improved the road west from Midland and who were the low bidders in the first set of proposals opened about a month ago, submitted a bid of $99,278.55, as compared with their former estimate of $101,487.95. Three other contractors, in addition to Allison & Harris, underbid the Rineharts.

Other bidders were: Jones Construction company, Woodlawn, $94,646.70; A. R. Cooper, Hookstown, $97,244.19; Thomas Cronin, Pittsburgh, $98,230.91; George S. White company, Pittsburgh, $99,978.74; F. F. Hallam & Son, Fairmont, W. Va., $102,203.20; F. S. Wilson, Kittanning, Pa., $105,147.57.

The proposed improvement is a little less than one mile in length and follows along north of the railroad right-of-way from a point about 300 feet east of the Smith's Ferry railroad station to the concrete bridge spanning Beaver creek. The contract calls for the removal of approximately 47,000 cubic yards of e rth.

The successful contractors will be required to place two steam shovels on the job and to rush the road through to completion before winter.

Allison & Harris are now at work on the Shadyside avenue improvement, which will be completed within the next two weeks.

ANANIA LOSES $200 LOAN SUIT

Verdict for Defendant in Case Against Mrs. Lillian Watkin.

A verdict in favor of the defendant was returned by a jury in municipal court yesterday afternoon in the civil action brought by Felix N. Anania, Bradshaw avenue contractor, against Mrs. Lillian Watkin, Ridgeway avenue, to collect $200 alleged to have been loaned in 1923. Motion for a new trial in the case was to be filed by Attorney Ben L. Bennett, counsel for the plaintiff, today.

The jury of four men and two women deliberated for about a half hour before reaching a verdict. The verdict was unanimous.

Anania charged that he advanced Mrs. Watkin $200 to pay the fine of her husband, Albert Watkin, when he was arrested for a liquor violation before Mayor Albert Ferren, East Palestine, three years ago.

Mrs. Watkin denied having accepted the $200 check which was introduced as an exhibit at the hearing. She also denied that the signature on the back of her check was her handwriting.

The original suit was against Albert and Lillian Watkin but an amended petition filed before the trial named the latter only. Attorney W. A. O'Grady, Wellsville, defended Mrs. Watkin.

Prisoners Saw Bars

had been corresponding with a 14-year-old girl, who was formerly a ward of Sheriff McNabb.

A storm raged throughout the delivery, which was made at 3 o'clock, according to the five men who refused to leave their cells and who later gave the alarm.

Brooks, a one-legged man, was awaiting arraignment before a special grand jury next week on charges of kidnaping and assaulting two school girls from Columbus. It was alleged he advertised for a girl to work on a farm in a Columbus paper. Receiving a reply, it was alleged, he went to Columbus for the girl and started for the supposed farm. Enroute, the girl charged, she was assaulted.

The next day another girl reported to authorities being duped by the same advertisement, but declared she had escaped from Brooks, whom she later identified, after a struggle in a woods near here.

Bennett was being held as a deserter from the army and was also to be taken before the grand jury for auto stealing. Francher was in jail charged with shooting with intent to wound.

The five who remained were serving sentence for violating the prohibition law.

TODAY

SOME of our Italian friends, with whom we deeply sympathize, considering the ill treatment they got from their brother allies, are hostile. Uncle Sam accepted their own debt proposition, at less than 40 cents on the dollar.

But the general feeling in Europe now is that Uncle Sam ought not to be paid anything. He should consider it sufficient honor to send his men and his money to rescue and help his European brothers, when they found they had bitten off more than they could chew, and began to get tired of cutting each other's throats.

One Italian newspaper says Europe finds comfort in the thought that "outside of Europe there is Asia, and inside of Asia there is Japan."

The suggestion is that Europe, too busy and too sore to follow her inclinations and come over here and punish the United States, will wait patiently for Japan to do it.

IN VIEW of the general attitude, it is a pleasure to hear that President Coolidge has invited Edsel Ford to visit his camp and talk over flying machine possibilities.

Edsel Ford has studied flying, and is about to test a modern, safe, powerful plane, with three engines. He and his father have the machinery and the money. President Coolidge has an open mind and is anxious to develop aircraft.

Perhaps this nation will really have a flying fleet after all, and will be in shape to take care of hostile visitors to "Uncle Shylock," whether they come across the Atlantic or the Pacific.

THE police picked up a dead "gunman" near New York's police headquarters yesterday, a "refined" gunman, fashionably dressed. According to the police he was just a little too refined, and that caused his death.

This professional killer was sent from Buffalo to kill a man marked for death in a bootleg feud. The man to be killed was too quick for the hired killer and shot him dead.

President Coolidge's representative, Col. Carmi Thompson, visited 5,000 lepers of the Culion colony and he found 4,000 of them organized in a parade to greet him. With waving banners they carried signs that read, "We do not want economic development, give us independence."

You might call that appropriate. Five thousand lepers in the Philippines are cared for by the United States government, protected from themselves and others; they live in the colony with their own stores, theaters, banks and even beauty contests.

They want to escape from Uncle Sam's jurisdiction and are about as well fitted to take care of themselves as some of the other Filipinos, not lepers.

granddaughter of the Indian fighter.

Cornell was in the army of the north throughout the Civil war. He enlisted with the Third Ohio infantry, being mustered in at Camp Dennison, Ohio. Nine months later he was wounded in the left shoulder at Perrysville, Ky., and was sent home to recuperate. When he recovered he reenlisted in the gun boat service. He also saw service in a cavalry unit.

Returning to Georgetown at the close of the war, Cornell resumed the carpentry trade. The couple lived in Hookstown for a few years, then removed to East Liverpool. For about 30 years they have resided in Oak street. Cornell has been retired for about 15 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornell are the parents of nine children, six now deceased. Those living are Mrs. David Weight, Church alley; Mrs. Mary Rollhaus, 417 Sugar street, and George Cornell, at home.

Despite their advanced ages, Mr. and Mrs. Cornell are in good health. Cornell's memory is unusually keen and he takes delight in recounting his experiences during the Civil war.

Three candidates are seeing the two senatorship places to be filled. Lewis left shortly before the noon hour for Harrison county where he will meet party voters.

Bandits Loot Post Office Safe.

TOLEDO, O., July 28.—Local authorities today were searching for bandits who carried away a safe containing $200 in government money and $25 in 2-cent stamps from the branch postoffice No. 10, located in A. A. Dedos' grocery store. The safe was later found rifled on Manhattan boulevard.

VOLSTEAD LAW IS ISSUE AT LABOR MEETING

Modification to Permit Sale of Beer is Proposed.

20 RESOLUTIONS

Convention at Akron Approves State Compensation Law.

AKRON, July 28.—Modification of the Volstead law to permit the sale of 2.75 percent beer, is recommended in a resolution to come before the Ohio State Federation of Labor, in convention here this week. It may be adopted at today's session, leaders predicted.

The resolution signed by 33 members of the various organizations, declares the dry law has failed to meet the approval of the general public and has "utterly failed to secure due and proper respect and obedience by citizens of our country."

There were 20 resolutions, covering a wide variety of subjects, introduced at the Tuesday afternoon session and a number of others were thrown into the hopper Wednesday.

Among the more important resolutions are those which urge retention of the state workmen's compensation law without change; opposition to a state constabulary, limiting the powers of equity courts, passage of an anti-injunction law, and outlawing the so-called "yellow dog" contract, which compels the worker to sign an individual contract with his employer and refrain from affiliating with organized labor.

Labor's Objectives Stressed.

These objectives of labor, which were stressed by both William Green, president of the American Federation and State President John P. Frey, will form the basis upon which candidates for state offices will be judged.

At Tuesday afternoon's session, reports of First Vice President Lee Hall and Secretary-Treasurer Thomas J. Donnelly were read and numerous resolutions referred to committees.

A resolution was passed requesting state officials to ask that bidders on state work include the wage scale for workmen and that low bidders be ignored where they employed non-union labor.

A resolution was introduced condemning Golden Rule Nash, head of the Nash Clothing company, of Cincinnati, because his company required the employes to become affiliated with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, which is not affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Aimee McPherson Leaves Home City On Mystery Trip

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Aimee Semple McPherson, accompanied only by her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, left Angelus temple by automobile shortly before daybreak today.

Attendants at the home adjoining the temple refused to reveal the destination of the evangalist and her mother or comment upon the reason for the sudden departure. Arthur L. Veitch, chief counsel for the woman pastor, said he had not been notified of the evangelist's intention to leave the city. He admitted it was "possible" that she may have started for Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Adolphe Menjou, Film Star, Must Pay Wife $500 a Week

This record-breaking amount for local divorce courts was fixed by Judge Harry A. Holtzer.

Menjou was not in court, but was represented by counsel. He had previously stipulated that he would abide by any court order made in his absence.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 28.—Speculative interest was concentrated on United States Steel and General Motors stocks in the early trading today, in view of the extremely favorable earnings statements for the first half of the year issued after the close of business yesterday.

The steel corporation's earnings of nearly $48,000,000 in the second quarter was a surprise to the financial district, which looked for about $45,000,000. General Motors earned $17.33 a share in the first half of the year, against $9.02 in the same period last year.

Steel stock opened at 139½ to 139⅞, but advanced rapidly to 141¾. Buoyancy of the stock showed conclusively that there was no general expectation of an extra dividend at this time.

General Motors again chalked up a new high record selling price, large quantities of the stock being taken above 174, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Cast Iron Pipe, Allied Chemical and other high priced specialties sold up to 4 points in active trading, and new forward movements were inaugurated by Loews, Davison Chemical, Congoleum, etc.

The oils continued to show a moderate improvement.

Wonder Dog in "Hero of Big Snows."

Rin-Tin-Tin, the wonder dog of the screen, his later Warner picture in "A Hero of the Big Snows," opened at the American theatre today.

Born in war-torn France and adopted by Lieut. Lee Duncan, Rinty was trained for the screen carefully and effectively. He is a German shepherd dog, more commonly known as a police dog. He combines brains, physique and appeal to such a marked degree that his screen following surpasses that of all sheiks and most beautiful stars of the film world.

Among Rinty's previous Warner pictures are "Where the North Begins," "The Lighthouse by the Sea," "Tracked in the Snow Country," "Below the Line," "The Clash of the Wolves" and "The Night Cry."

Herman Raymaker, who has directed all of Rinty's recent pictures, also had charge of "A Hero of the Big Snows," in the supporting cast are Alice Calhoun, Don Alvardo, Leo Willis and Mary Jane Milliken.

from New York reported to the Anastasia island radio station near here that it had run into the hurricane 170 miles north of Jupiter inlet, and was racing back north. The Agwimex said it was outriding the storm.

No other vessels were reported in distress at the radio station.

Vessels in Distress.

The radio station expected to get calls for help from several small vessels before noon as the storm moves north. Wireless calls besieged the station asking for the course of the hurricane.

Coastwise shipping was believed to have escaped with no loss of life, although many ships were battered.

The Clyde liner Seminole, enroute from New York to Miami with 180 passengers, reached this port safely last night after being ordered back from the lower coast to escape the storm. Captain J. N. Staples explained the liner had not been in danger, but the ship's course had been changed to avoid discomfort to passengers in the storm.

Wires Torn Down.

Several steamers and schooners crossed the St. John's river bar at Mayport this morning to escape the gales expected to strike this part of the state by noon.

Telegraph and telephone companies whose lines were greatly damaged yesterday, had almost no usable wires south of Jacksonville today. The backwash of the storm last night moved inland from the east coast tearing down wires to the west coast of the Florida Peninsula.

Tampa, West Palm Beach, St. Petersburg, Miami and smaller east and west coast cities were all cut off from communication this morning with no indication that wires would be restored before tomorrow.

All Aboard Ship Safe.

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., July 28.—All hands are safe aboard the Italian steamer, Arzaldo San Giorcio Secondogn, reported in distress in the storm off the Florida coast yesterday, according to a message received here today by marine headquarters of the Gulf Refining company from the gulf tank vessel, "Gulf of Mexico," which last night located the stricken ship and stood by until this morning.

Tanker is Overdue.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, July 28.—No word has been received at the marine headquarters of the Gulf Refining company here today concerning its tanker, the J. M. Guffey, due to have reached Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday, with a cargo of oil from Port Arthur.

Concern for the safety of the tanker, believed to have been caught in the gulf hurricane which damaged Florida coast resorts, was expressed here.

The J. M. Guffey is a vessel of 1,590 tons registry and is manned by 30 officers and men.

Fort Worth Grand Jurors Hear Story of Chipps Killing

Rev. J. Frank Norris Awaits Action in Fatal Shooting as He Demands Opportunity to Plead Case.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 28.—All but one of the persons known to have been in the vicinity of the Rev. J. Frank Norris' study in the First Baptist church on the afternoon of July 17 when he shot and killed D. E. Chipps, wealthy Fort Worth lumber broker and clubman, had been questioned, most of them twice, when the Tarrant county grand jury convened today to complete its inquiry.

Assistant District Attorney R. B. Brown was holding in reserve one eyewitness of the tragic encounter, hoping it would be possible to secure a murder indictment against the fundamentalist leader without revealing this person's identity or his knowledge of the facts.

Dr. Norris has not retained counsel other than his regular legal adviser, Chairman Ben F. Boulden, of the church board of deacons, nor has he modified his demand of the last week that he be indicted and given the opportunity to plead his case before a trial jury.

Schismatics May Take Over Catholic Churches in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, July 28—Schismatic Catholics of Mexico, who hold a doctrine opposed to that of the Roman Catholics of the country, announced today that they were prepared to take over the churches and institute services as soon as the churches are abbandoned by their regular clergy on August 1. Their action would depend upon whether or not the government approves their plan, they stated.

Adherents of the prelates who signed the pastoral letter ordering the suspension of the regular services in the churches breathed a little easier today with the passing of another 24 hours without any overt action by the government. It had been expected that the signers would long before this have been placed behind prison bars.

ers are executed. The law prohibiting murder does not halt the taking of a life by another.

"Too many people in the United States place their patriotism above their appetites. We have got to the place where people must do their thinking with their heads instead of their stomachs. That's the reason why prohibition hasn't been enforced any better.

"The Literary Digest which is as near wet as it dares be without endangering its standing, recently published statements from universities and colleges showing less drinking among students at the present time than any time in their history. And, mind you, the enrollment in colleges has almost doubled since the days of the open saloon.

Washington Investigation.

"In the recent investigation at Washington, Wayne B. Wheeler testified that the Anti-Saloon league had spent $35,000,000 throughout the United States within 30 years, an average of about 30 cents for every man and woman in the country.

"Jim Reed threw up his hands in horror when this statement was made, yet in your neighboring state of Pennsylvania liquor interests swore they spent more than $3,000,000 to nominate a wet senator. Captain Stayton, head of the wet organization, issued a statement recently in which it was shown that 34 men contributed $120,000 annually to repeal or modify the prohibition laws. Jim Reed does not need any one to accuse him of being wet—he's so dripping that the corns are sprouting on his toes.

"The recent investigation in Washington has aroused the dry people to the movement that is on foot to bring back the licensed saloon. There's only one way of holding out lines and that is by electing dry senators and congressmen.

Congressional Fight.

"The booze bunch get 'hot under the collar' when we refer to them as nullificationists. Jeff Davis, president of the Confederacy during the Civil war, asserted that states not in sympathy with the constitution should withdraw from the union.

"Al Smith, Senators Edge and Edwards, Governor Ritchie, Congressman Gallivan and a few other easterners are leaders in the movement to break down the dry law. Twenty-four of the 59 congressmen who signed the so-called beer bill are from the state of New York.

"In Ohio 20 of the 22 congressmen are dry. Wets have placed candidates in the fields for practically every office which is now held by a dry and in two weeks you people are going to face the issue. I have been told that you people down here in the dry 18th district are going to send John Nolan to congress. His Republican opponent, Frank Murphy, is dry—in fact, one of the dry leaders in congress. I warn you of letters which are going out over the district classifying Mr. Murphy as a modificationist in order to defeat him."

Lists Dry Candidates.

The speaker then took up a discussion of the candidates who are seeking state, district and county offices on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. He listed the dry candidates and urged that electors favoring law enforcement cast their votes for these candidates.

At the close of his address, Schreiber threw the meeting open for questions regarding candidates.

Last night's rally was presided over by Mrs. C. R. Reese, president of the W. C. T. U. Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Ethel Peterson and George Esenheuth.

$94,605 LOW BID ON SMITH'S FERRY HIGHWAY

Allison-Harris Company Cuts $32,000 From First Estimate.

Rinehart Brothers Submit Proposal of $99,278.

With an estimate of $94,605.07, approximately $32,000 less than the first bid, the Allison-Harris Construction company, of this city, was the low bidder for the improvement of the Smith's Ferry section of the Midland-East Liverpool road when proposals were opened by the Pennsylvania state highway department at Harrisburg yesterday. The contract will be awarded within the next week or 10 days.

Rinehart Brothers, also local contractors, who improved the road west from Midland and who were the low bidders in the first set of proposals opened about a month ago, submitted a bid of $99,278.55, as compared with their former estimate of $101,487.95. Three other contractors, in addition to Allison & Harris, underbid the Rineharts.

Other bidders were: Jones Construction company, Woodlawn, $94,646.70; A. R. Cooper, Hookstown, $97,244.19; Thomas Cronin, Pittsburgh, $98,230.91; George S. White company, Pittsburgh, $99,978.74; F. F. Hallam & Son, Fairmont, W. Va., $102,203.20; F. S. Wilson, Kittanning, Pa., $105,147.57.

The proposed improvement is a little less than one mile in length and follows along north of the railroad right-of-way from a point about 300 feet east of the Smith's Ferry railroad station to the concrete bridge spanning Beaver creek. The contract calls for the removal of approximately 47,000 cubic yards of e rth.

The successful contractors will be required to place two steam shovels on the job and to rush the road through to completion before winter.

Allison & Harris are now at work on the Shadyside avenue improvement, which will be completed within the next two weeks.

ANANIA LOSES $200 LOAN SUIT

Verdict for Defendant in Case Against Mrs. Lillian Watkin.

A verdict in favor of the defendant was returned by a jury in municipal court yesterday afternoon in the civil action brought by Felix N. Anania, Bradshaw avenue contractor, against Mrs. Lillian Watkin, Ridgeway avenue, to collect $200 alleged to have been loaned in 1923. Motion for a new trial in the case was to be filed by Attorney Ben L. Bennett, counsel for the plaintiff, today.

The jury of four men and two women deliberated for about a half hour before reaching a verdict. The verdict was unanimous.

Anania charged that he advanced Mrs. Watkin $200 to pay the fine of her husband, Albert Watkin, when he was arrested for a liquor violation before Mayor Albert Ferren, East Palestine, three years ago.

Mrs. Watkin denied having accepted the $200 check which was introduced as an exhibit at the hearing. She also denied that the signature on the back of her check was her handwriting.

The original suit was against Albert and Lillian Watkin but an amended petition filed before the trial named the latter only. Attorney W. A. O'Grady, Wellsville, defended Mrs. Watkin.

had been corresponding with a 14-year-old girl, who was formerly a ward of Sheriff McNabb.

A storm raged throughout the delivery, which was made at 3 o'clock, according to the five men who refused to leave their cells and who later gave the alarm.

Brooks, a one-legged man, was awaiting arraignment before a special grand jury next week on charges of kidnaping and assaulting two school girls from Columbus. It was alleged he advertised for a girl to work on a farm in a Columbus paper. Receiving a reply, it was alleged, he went to Columbus for the girl and started for the supposed farm. Enroute, the girl charged, she was assaulted.

The next day another girl reported to authorities being duped by the same advertisement, but declared she had escaped from Brooks, whom she later identified, after a struggle in a woods near here.

Bennett was being held as a deserter from the army and was also to be taken before the grand jury for auto stealing. Francher was in jail charged with shooting with intent to wound.

The five who remained were serving sentence for violating the prohibition law.

SOME of our Italian friends, with whom we deeply sympathize, considering the ill treatment they got from their brother allies, are hostile. Uncle Sam accepted their own debt proposition, at less than 40 cents on the dollar.

But the general feeling in Europe now is that Uncle Sam ought not to be paid anything. He should consider it sufficient honor to send his men and his money to rescue and help his European brothers, when they found they had bitten off more than they could chew, and began to get tired of cutting each other's throats.

One Italian newspaper says Europe finds comfort in the thought that "outside of Europe there is Asia, and inside of Asia there is Japan."

The suggestion is that Europe, too busy and too sore to follow her inclinations and come over here and punish the United States, will wait patiently for Japan to do it.

IN VIEW of the general attitude, it is a pleasure to hear that President Coolidge has invited Edsel Ford to visit his camp and talk over flying machine possibilities.

Edsel Ford has studied flying, and is about to test a modern, safe, powerful plane, with three engines. He and his father have the machinery and the money. President Coolidge has an open mind and is anxious to develop aircraft.

Perhaps this nation will really have a flying fleet after all, and will be in shape to take care of hostile visitors to "Uncle Shylock," whether they come across the Atlantic or the Pacific.

THE police picked up a dead "gunman" near New York's police headquarters yesterday, a "refined" gunman, fashionably dressed. According to the police he was just a little too refined, and that caused his death.

This professional killer was sent from Buffalo to kill a man marked for death in a bootleg feud. The man to be killed was too quick for the hired killer and shot him dead.

President Coolidge's representative, Col. Carmi Thompson, visited 5,000 lepers of the Culion colony and he found 4,000 of them organized in a parade to greet him. With waving banners they carried signs that read, "We do not want economic development, give us independence."

You might call that appropriate. Five thousand lepers in the Philippines are cared for by the United States government, protected from themselves and others; they live in the colony with their own stores, theaters, banks and even beauty contests.

They want to escape from Uncle Sam's jurisdiction and are about as well fitted to take care of themselves as some of the other Filipinos, not lepers.

Cornell was in the army of the north throughout the Civil war. He enlisted with the Third Ohio infantry, being mustered in at Camp Dennison, Ohio. Nine months later he was wounded in the left shoulder at Perrysville, Ky., and was sent home to recuperate. When he recovered he reenlisted in the gun boat service. He also saw service in a cavalry unit.

Returning to Georgetown at the close of the war, Cornell resumed the carpentry trade. The couple lived in Hookstown for a few years, then removed to East Liverpool. For about 30 years they have resided in Oak street. Cornell has been retired for about 15 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornell are the parents of nine children, six now deceased. Those living are Mrs. David Weight, Church alley; Mrs. Mary Rollhaus, 417 Sugar street, and George Cornell, at home.

Despite their advanced ages, Mr. and Mrs. Cornell are in good health. Cornell's memory is unusually keen and he takes delight in recounting his experiences during the Civil war.

E. R. Lewis, State Senator Candidate, Is Visitor Here

Three candidates are seeing the two senatorship places to be filled. Lewis left shortly before the noon hour for Harrison county where he will meet party voters.

Clevelander Shot During Quarrel.

CLEVELAND, July 28.—Police were searching today for the man who shot and probably fatally injured Francis Montague, 22, of Parmadale, during a quarrel in a Lorain avenue restaurant. Montague was reported near death at a local hospital with a bullet wound in the stomach.

Bandits Loot Post Office Safe.

TOLEDO, O., July 28.—Local authorities today were searching for bandits who carried away a safe containing $200 in government money and $25 in 2-cent stamps from the branch postoffice No. 10, located in A. A. Dedos' grocery store. The safe was later found rifled on Manhattan boulevard.

VOLSTEAD LAW IS ISSUE AT LABOR MEETING

Modification to Permit Sale of Beer is Proposed.

20 RESOLUTIONS

Convention at Akron Approves State Compensation Law.

AKRON, July 28.—Modification of the Volstead law to permit the sale of 2.75 percent beer, is recommended in a resolution to come before the Ohio State Federation of Labor, in convention here this week. It may be adopted at today's session, leaders predicted.

The resolution signed by 33 members of the various organizations, declares the dry law has failed to meet the approval of the general public and has "utterly failed to secure due and proper respect and obedience by citizens of our country."

There were 20 resolutions, covering a wide variety of subjects, introduced at the Tuesday afternoon session and a number of others were thrown into the hopper Wednesday.

Among the more important resolutions are those which urge retention of the state workmen's compensation law without change; opposition to a state constabulary, limiting the powers of equity courts, passage of an anti-injunction law, and outlawing the so-called "yellow dog" contract, which compels the worker to sign an individual contract with his employer and refrain from affiliating with organized labor.

Labor's Objectives Stressed.

These objectives of labor, which were stressed by both William Green, president of the American Federation and State President John P. Frey, will form the basis upon which candidates for state offices will be judged.

At Tuesday afternoon's session, reports of First Vice President Lee Hall and Secretary-Treasurer Thomas J. Donnelly were read and numerous resolutions referred to committees.

A resolution was passed requesting state officials to ask that bidders on state work include the wage scale for workmen and that low bidders be ignored where they employed non-union labor.

A resolution was introduced condemning Golden Rule Nash, head of the Nash Clothing company, of Cincinnati, because his company required the employes to become affiliated with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, which is not affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Aimee McPherson Leaves Home City On Mystery Trip

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Aimee Semple McPherson, accompanied only by her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, left Angelus temple by automobile shortly before daybreak today.

Attendants at the home adjoining the temple refused to reveal the destination of the evangalist and her mother or comment upon the reason for the sudden departure. Arthur L. Veitch, chief counsel for the woman pastor, said he had not been notified of the evangelist's intention to leave the city. He admitted it was "possible" that she may have started for Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Adolphe Menjou, Film Star, Must Pay Wife $500 a Week

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Adolphe Menjou, film celebrity, today was under order to pay his wife, Kathry Menjou, $500 a week for her support, pending a trial of the husband's suit for divorce, which has been set for October 1. This record-breaking amount for local divorce courts was fixed by Judge Harry A. Holtzer.

Menjou was not in court, but was represented by counsel. He had previously stipulated that he would abide by any court order made in his absence.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 28.—Speculative interest was concentrated on United States Steel and General Motors stocks in the early trading today, in view of the extremely favorable earnings statements for the first half of the year issued after the close of business yesterday.

The steel corporation's earnings of nearly $48,000,000 in the second quarter was a surprise to the financial district, which looked for about $45,000,000. General Motors earned $17.33 a share in the first half of the year, against $9.02 in the same period last year.

Steel stock opened at 139½ to 139⅞, but advanced rapidly to 141¾. Buoyancy of the stock showed conclusively that there was no general expectation of an extra dividend at this time.

General Motors again chalked up a new high record selling price, large quantities of the stock being taken above 174, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Cast Iron Pipe, Allied Chemical and other high priced specialties sold up to 4 points in active trading, and new forward movements were inaugurated by Loews, Davison Chemical, Congoleum, etc.

The oils continued to show a moderate improvement.

RIN-TIN-TIN AT AMERICAN

Wonder Dog in "Hero of Big Snows."

Rin-Tin-Tin, the wonder dog of the screen, his later Warner picture in "A Hero of the Big Snows," opened at the American theatre today.

Born in war-torn France and adopted by Lieut. Lee Duncan, Rinty was trained for the screen carefully and effectively. He is a German shepherd dog, more commonly known as a police dog. He combines brains, physique and appeal to such a marked degree that his screen following surpasses that of all sheiks and most beautiful stars of the film world.

Among Rinty's previous Warner pictures are "Where the North Begins," "The Lighthouse by the Sea," "Tracked in the Snow Country," "Below the Line," "The Clash of the Wolves" and "The Night Cry."

Herman Raymaker, who has directed all of Rinty's recent pictures, also had charge of "A Hero of the Big Snows," in the supporting cast are Alice Calhoun, Don Alvardo, Leo Willis and Mary Jane Milliken.

Million Lost in Storm

from New York reported to the Anastasia island radio station near here that it had run into the hurricane 170 miles north of Jupiter inlet, and was racing back north. The Agwimex said it was outriding the storm.

No other vessels were reported in distress at the radio station.

Vessels in Distress.

The radio station expected to get calls for help from several small vessels before noon as the storm moves north. Wireless calls besieged the station asking for the course of the hurricane.

Coastwise shipping was believed to have escaped with no loss of life, although many ships were battered.

The Clyde liner Seminole, enroute from New York to Miami with 180 passengers, reached this port safely last night after being ordered back from the lower coast to escape the storm. Captain J. N. Staples explained the liner had not been in danger, but the ship's course had been changed to avoid discomfort to passengers in the storm.

Wires Torn Down.

Several steamers and schooners crossed the St. John's river bar at Mayport this morning to escape the gales expected to strike this part of the state by noon.

Telegraph and telephone companies whose lines were greatly damaged yesterday, had almost no usable wires south of Jacksonville today. The backwash of the storm last night moved inland from the east coast tearing down wires to the west coast of the Florida Peninsula.

Tampa, West Palm Beach, St. Petersburg, Miami and smaller east and west coast cities were all cut off from communication this morning with no indication that wires would be restored before tomorrow.

All Aboard Ship Safe.

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., July 28.—All hands are safe aboard the Italian steamer, Arzaldo San Giorcio Secondogn, reported in distress in the storm off the Florida coast yesterday, according to a message received here today by marine headquarters of the Gulf Refining company from the gulf tank vessel, "Gulf of Mexico," which last night located the stricken ship and stood by until this morning.

Tanker is Overdue.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, July 28.—No word has been received at the marine headquarters of the Gulf Refining company here today concerning its tanker, the J. M. Guffey, due to have reached Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday, with a cargo of oil from Port Arthur.

Concern for the safety of the tanker, believed to have been caught in the gulf hurricane which damaged Florida coast resorts, was expressed here.

The J. M. Guffey is a vessel of 1,590 tons registry and is manned by 30 officers and men.

CLEARING HOUSE POOL UNDER FIRE

BOSTON, July 28.—A drive on the so-called "Boston" pool of clearing house statement figures, patronized daily by 25,000 persons throughout New England, is underway by department of justice agents.

Charged in a secret indictment with carrying lots of 650 tickets in the pool from Boston to Bangor, Maine, Arthur J. Driscoll of this city was arraigned in federal court today, pleaded not guilty and was held for trial.

Fort Worth Grand Jurors Hear Story of Chipps Killing

Rev. J. Frank Norris Awaits Action in Fatal Shooting as He Demands Opportunity to Plead Case.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 28.—All but one of the persons known to have been in the vicinity of the Rev. J. Frank Norris' study in the First Baptist church on the afternoon of July 17 when he shot and killed D. E. Chipps, wealthy Fort Worth lumber broker and clubman, had been questioned, most of them twice, when the Tarrant county grand jury convened today to complete its inquiry.

Assistant District Attorney R. B. Brown was holding in reserve one eyewitness of the tragic encounter, hoping it would be possible to secure a murder indictment against the fundamentalist leader without revealing this person's identity or his knowledge of the facts.

Dr. Norris has not retained counsel other than his regular legal adviser, Chairman Ben F. Boulden, of the church board of deacons, nor has he modified his demand of the last week that he be indicted and given the opportunity to plead his case before a trial jury.

ers are executed. The law prohibiting murder does not halt the taking of a life by another.

"Too many people in the United States place their patriotism above their appetites. We have got to the place where people must do their thinking with their heads instead of their stomachs. That's the reason why prohibition hasn't been enforced any better.

"The Literary Digest which is as near wet as it dares be without endangering its standing, recently published statements from universities and colleges showing less drinking among students at the present time than any time in their history. And, mind you, the enrollment in colleges has almost doubled since the days of the open saloon.

Washington Investigation.

"In the recent investigation at Washington, Wayne B. Wheeler testified that the Anti-Saloon league had spent $35,000,000 throughout the United States within 30 years, an average of about 30 cents for every man and woman in the country.

"Jim Reed threw up his hands in horror when this statement was made, yet in your neighboring state of Pennsylvania liquor interests swore they spent more than $3,000,000 to nominate a wet senator. Captain Stayton, head of the wet organization, issued a statement recently in which it was shown that 34 men contributed $120,000 annually to repeal or modify the prohibition laws. Jim Reed does not need any one to accuse him of being wet—he's so dripping that the corns are sprouting on his toes.

"The recent investigation in Washington has aroused the dry people to the movement that is on foot to bring back the licensed saloon. There's only one way of holding out lines and that is by electing dry senators and congressmen.

Congressional Fight.

"The booze bunch get 'hot under the collar' when we refer to them as nullificationists. Jeff Davis, president of the Confederacy during the Civil war, asserted that states not in sympathy with the constitution should withdraw from the union.

"Al Smith, Senators Edge and Edwards, Governor Ritchie, Congressman Gallivan and a few other easterners are leaders in the movement to break down the dry law. Twenty-four of the 59 congressmen who signed the so-called beer bill are from the state of New York.

"In Ohio 20 of the 22 congressmen are dry. Wets have placed candidates in the fields for practically every office which is now held by a dry and in two weeks you people are going to face the issue. I have been told that you people down here in the dry 18th district are going to send John Nolan to congress. His Republican opponent, Frank Murphy, is dry—in fact, one of the dry leaders in congress. I warn you of letters which are going out over the district classifying Mr. Murphy as a modificationist in order to defeat him."

Lists Dry Candidates.

The speaker then took up a discussion of the candidates who are seeking state, district and county offices on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. He listed the dry candidates and urged that electors favoring law enforcement cast their votes for these candidates.

At the close of his address, Schreiber threw the meeting open for questions regarding candidates.

Last night's rally was presided over by Mrs. C. R. Reese, president of the W. C. T. U. Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Ethel Peterson and George Esenheuth.

Schismatics May Take Over Catholic Churches in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, July 28—Schismatic Catholics of Mexico, who hold a doctrine opposed to that of the Roman Catholics of the country, announced today that they were prepared to take over the churches and institute services as soon as the churches are abbandoned by their regular clergy on August 1. Their action would depend upon whether or not the government approves their plan, they stated.

Adherents of the prelates who signed the pastoral letter ordering the suspension of the regular services in the churches breathed a little easier today with the passing of another 24 hours without any overt action by the government. It had been expected that the signers would long before this have been placed behind prison bars.

Commissioner Hilbert Reports Collections From Licenses.

Collections in the office of Deputy Automobile Commissioner James S. Hilbert from the sale of automobile license plates so far this year amount to $37,805.31, it was reported today. Of this amount $37.211.78 was collected on cars owned within Columbiana county, the other $593.53 representing licenses sold for motor vehicles whose owners reside in other counties.

Pleasure cars licensed by the local distributor numbered 4,565, netting $20,594. Motor truck plates issued here totalled 601, bringing in revenue amounting to $14,576.37. Ninety-eight pleasure-commercial plates uetted $1,004.15; 14 motorcycles, $35; nine side cars, $13.50, and six trailers, $18.75, making a total of 5,293 sets of plates and $36,241.97 in collections.

So far this year 583 transfers have been issued, bringing in $883.81. Fifty duplicate tags added $50 and 36 duplicate certificates $36, or a total of $969.81.

WAGING WAR ON LIQUOR SELLERS

County officials in conjunction with members of the Weirton police department have made several large liquor raids during the past week in which some of the largest stills in the history of the county have been confiscated.

Most of the raids have been made between New Cumberland and Weirton on farm property in which several of alleged violators made their escape in advance of the raiding squad.

FULL TIME HEALTH UNITS FAVORED

State wide campaign to establish full time health units in every county is being made by the state board of health. Benefits to be derived from such are being pointed out in statements by members.

During the past few weeks several counties have fallen into line with the suggestion including Brooke county which adjoins Hancock. This county is among those listed in full time service.

LODGE MEMBERS TO ATTEND PICNIC

Number of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs from this section plan to attend the annual outing for members of both organizations and their families to be held at the county fair grounds, Lisbon, Wednesday, August 11.

Addresses will be made by prominent members of the orders from Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky.

CANDIDATES FILE EXPENSE REPORTS

Yesterday was the last day for candidates for county and district offices to file reports of their expense accounts. Those who failed to comply with the law, in the event they are successful, under the law will be disqualified from holding office.

Turk-Nash Infielder Leads City Industrial League Hitters

Eddie Bayley's .420 Puts Him On Top For First Half of Season

Auto Club's Second Sacker Also Piles Up Lead in Two-base Blows; Given Close Race by Brother, Alf; H. Strobel Turns in Flashy Stick Average.

EDDIE BAYLEY, brilliant second sacker and captain of the Turk-Nash team, swatting the ball consistently all year, is the leading hitter of the City Industrial Baseball league for the initial half of the 1926 season with a mark of .420 in 19 games during which he laced out 29 safe drives in 69 efforts with the bludgeon. He also led in two-swat drives with eight to his credit. In all other departments of play he was among the players excelling according to figures compiled by T. T. Jones, league statistician.

But for the fact that he was out of two games, his brother, A. Bayley, middle field custodian of the same club, might have beaten him for batting honors. As it was he was only three points off with .417 for the 17 contests in which he had 20 safeties in 48 chances. He was keen in walking and sacrificing also.

Strobel Well up in Race.

Almost worthy of first place in hitting for the period was the veteran H. Strobel of Victory Motor, who came through with a mark of .485. However he was in but 16 games. And in several of these he failed to stay in or start the game. Just the same he hit better than in any time of his long diamond career. Perhaps the fact that he took a turn occasionally as a pitcher had something to do with his return to form. He had 16 drives in 33 attempts.

That other veteran, S. Coleman, in the five games he played for Turk-Nash, landed on the ball at a .455 clip, having five hits, one of them being a hom run that won a crucial contest with Laughlin. Coleman was always a flashy guardian of the first sack. This year he held his own with the stick also.

Manager Alcock, former major and minor leaguer, who this year is managing Turk-Nash, hit .583 in six contests.

Bubin Hits Hard.

Bubin, Laughlin, hit .414 in 11 games and scored 10 times. With his three doubles, two triples and three home runs he stood high in extra bases.

In all, 25 swatted in the .300 charmed circle, only eight at .400 and four in the .500 class, the latter marks being made in fewer games.

The necessity of throwing out the K. T. K.Chester game of July 1 lowered the averages of some and slightly aided others. The chief loser was Potts, of Chester, who that day had a perfect mark at the bat with a single and two doubles in three attempts and these hits would have given him a .467 instead of the .407 he actually has and he probably would have merited the distinction of being the heaviest swatting receiver in the loop. Les McMath lost two safe ones which would have given him .310. Lysle lost a home run as well.

McShane K. T. K. Ace.

On the other hand McShane of K. T. K gained as he did not hit safely in the June 15 game but had two good ones on July 3. McShane, by the way, swatted an even .400. His all around work, also stands out for in addition he had a perfect fielding mark in accepting 21 chances. He showed speed when needed, fielded brilliantly and was an ideal lead-off man for his club all year. His all around performance, even demeanor and willingness to be fair has greatly aided the league and brought honor to his club.

Wilde, first bagman-pitcher of Chester was in 23 games and just missed by nine points hitting at a .400 clip. His average is no mean figure in view of the fact that he pitched several times and in the flag deciding game with Laughlin July 7 stayed on the hilltop while suffering excruciating pain from a spike wound in his foot which kept him idle for several games at the outset of the second half.

Watson Leads Laughlin.

McConnell, with the Bayley brothers, formed the regular hitting trio of Turk-Nash. He finished with a mark of .368 with four less hits than the league leader made and five more than A. Bayley made. He hit consistently and dangerously all year.

W. Mundy, in 14 games, hit for a .360 mark. J. Morgan, Wellsville, hit the same in 11 games.

W. Watson, the young Newell high school lad, who understudies for the absent Tommy Sayres, went in and led the Laughlin club in hitting with .342. He was in 17 games. The youth showed gameness, capability and marked adeptness at the diamond pastime.

Finley, Laughlin captain, led the .333 hitters, playing in 22 games. Schneidmiller was next with 17 games.

Digman, who pitched Laughlin to a first half pennant, handled the stick well, too, having an average of .303 despite constant pitching.

Despite the fact that he was incapaciated for a portion of the season R. Pollock of Turk Nash came through with an average of .314 in 11 games.

Potts, .407 and Wilde, .391 led Chester with the willow. The Bayleys head Turk-Nash; McShane and Simcox, the latter .341, topped K. T. K.; W. Watson .341 and Finley .333, Laughlin; Sainor .382 and W. Mundy .360, Victory Motors; A. Morris, .381 and J. Morgan .348, Wellsville.

All Star Team.

From the statistics the All Star team so far as hitting is concerned would probably line up with Potts of Chester, .407 and Schneidmiller of Nash-Turk, .333 catching. The pitchers would include Wilde, Chester, .391; Sainor, Victory Motor, .382; Digman, Laughlin, .303, and M. Cebula, Chester, .293. W. Mundy, Victory Motor, .360, would cover first; E. Bayley, Nash-Motor, .420, second base; A. Morris, Wellsville, .381, shortstop; Simcox, K. T. K., .333, third base, C. Coleman, Victory Motor, .342; W. Watson, Laughlin, .342, and Finley, Laughlin, .333, would be utility men.

In the outfield A. Bayley, Nash-Turk, .417, McShane, K. T. K., .400, McConnell, Nash-Turk, .368, would do the fielding. F. Marshall, Chester, .327 and R. Pollock, Nash-Turk, .317, would be their understudies.

Laughlin had the most runs, 124, while Chester was one behind and Turk-Nash scored 117.

Turk Nash totaled 167 hits against 163 by Chester and 150 by Laughlin. Wellsville trailed with 102.

Line Out 40 Doubles.

In doubles Turk-Nash had 40, Chester 32 and Laughlin and K. T. K. 24 each.

Chester had 16 triples, while Turk-Nash, K. T. K. and Victor had 15 each.

Chester and Laughlin had five home runs each, with Turk-Nash and Victory Motor having four each.

In outouts Chester had 424, Laughlin 387 and Turk-Nash 359.

Chester, with 56, had the most errors. Victory Motor followed with 50. Chester led also in stolen bases with 53, Laughlin following with 49. Laughlin had 19 sacrifice hits as against Chester's 16.

Chester and Victory Motor, with 95 each shared the strikeout record. Laughlin had 89 and Wellsville 88.

In walks Laughlin led with 45, Chester having 44 and Victory Motor 36. The others trailed.

CHESTER BLANKS K. T. K. AT SMITH FIELD

LAUGHLIN BOWS TO TURK-NASH

Auto Club Overcomes Lead to Win 10-4 Decision.

PLAYING on a wet field, with lowered clouds darkening the entire lot, Turk-Nash, hitting the ball hard and taking advantage of opposition infield miscues, defeated Laughlin at Newell last evening, 10 to 4.

Third Bagman Herbert and Left Fielder Parsons were not in the Laughlin lineup, Pitcher English taking the former's place and Right Fielder Aufderheide moving to left with Bubin in right.

Crawford remained in middle and played a brilliant game, gathering in six hard chances. Bubin pulled down two catches in right that evoked applause, saving runs in both instances.

English clouted out a home run in the second, lacing the ball on a line to middle-right. R. Pollock apparently misjudged it and it reached the bushes, enabling Bubin, who previously had doubled, and Hunselman, on third, to score. Finley had opened the period with a single over third and reached the hot corner on Hunselman's rap after W. Watson fanned. As the catcher stole second he purloined the plate, giving the club four runs.

Overcome Laughlin Lead.

But Turk-Nash, with a 4 to 0 count against them, fought back. Schneidmiller, opening the fourth, reached first as Finley, handling his drive threw low to first, enabling the catcher to go on to second. D. Morgan singled over second. Talbot was safe, clogging the bases as Finley repeated his former performance. J. Watson fouled to Hunselman, the latter making a fine catch while leaning over the wire attached to the backston. Deshler drove to English, who booted the blow, permitting Schneidmiller and D. Morgan to count. E. Bayley walked. McConnell singled, scoring Deshler, and was caught off first, Hunselman to Babb. A. Bayley drove to Bubin, who made a fine catch, retiring the side.

R. Pollock walked in the fifth and reached third on Schneidmiller's double. A wild pitch scored him and put the catcher on the hot corner. D. Morgan flew to Babb. Talbot tripled to right, scoring Schneidmiller. J. Watson singled to left, sending the shortstop across the plate. Deshler flew to Crawford as did McConnell after Eddie Bayley had beaten out a rap to third.

Alf Bayley started the sixth by doubling. R. Pollock sacrificed, Suder to Babb. Schneidmiller doubled to left, Bayley finishing. Morgan singled through short. Schneidmiller scored on a bad throw by Suder to first and Morgan reached third from where he counted on a wild pitch. Talbot singled to right. J. Watson fanned. Deshler was hit. Eddie Bayley was safe on a drive to short on which Talbot counted. McConnell flew out to Crawford.

INSIDE Ggolf

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Power in the golf swing comes from the body as a whole, not from any particular part of the body. This fact gets lost to many golfers in the general confusion that results among them from cautions about this and that. Also rhythm of action implies that the whole action of the swing must be a rhythmic action of the entire body, like plain walking. This being true, the theories of launching the back swing with some particular part of the body is equal to initiating power at a point other than the source of power, and in the golf swing the source of power is the body. George Duncan and Abe Mitchell have this principle right. They tee off the back swing with a body movement, which I might liken to the hub of a wagon wheel starting first and applying power to the spokes and the rim.

INJURY KEEPS MANDELL IDLE

CHICAGO, July 28.—Chances of Ace Hudkins, sensational Nebraska boxer, meeting Sammy Mandell, world's champion lightweight, in the near future were considered slight today. Mandell, it was stated, is suffering from an injured heel and does not contemplate any ring engagements for several months.

The Yankees trimmed the Browns, 6 to 5, in the first game of their western invasion and stretched their lead to nine and one-half games. Homers by Ruth and Combs helped Pennock beat Zachary.

The Bambino's wallop was his thirty-first homer of the season and put him five homers or 23 games behind his record.

The Pirates got off to a running start against the Giants and just lasted to win, 4 to 3. Jackson and Lindstrom kept the Giants in the game with homers.

Mike Cebula Pitches No-Hit, No-Run Game

Champion's Slab Ace Mars Near Perfect Record in Seven Innings by Permitting Two Walks; Gets Almost Faultless Support From Team Mates.

MIKE Cebula, in the pink of form, held K. T. K. without a hit or run in seven innings of play on Smith Field last evening, and gave Chester a 5 to 0 conquest over the Potters.

Mike permitted two men to reach the bags on walks. He invariably tightened in the pinches and in all fanned 11 batters. He was given almost faultless support by his teammates who swatted timely and ran the bases recklessly.

Yoboid pitched four innings for K. T. K. and was found for five bingles and four runs. "Hi" Allison, former star southpaw of the club, finished the contest and showed that he could still fling with cleverness and effectiveness. In two frames he allowed but two safeties which netted one run.

Despite the rain and wet field a fair sized crowd saw the contest.

Evans, singling in the first, went to second on a passed ball and scored on P. Cebula's single.

F. Marshall doubled over first base in the third. P. Cebula beat out a bunt, Marshall going to third. P. Cebula stole second as F. Marshall purloined the plate. Potts went out at first, Yoboid assisting, P. Cebula going to third. He scored on W. McMath's triple to right. On the squeeze play L. McMath finished.

Greene was safe on Jackson's error in the fifth and scored on Evans' single.

Every Cigarette At Its Best Because "It's Toasted"

LUCKY STRIKES are made from the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, perfectly blended.

Besides this supreme quality of leaf tobacco as compared with all other cigarettes—"IT'S TOASTED".

Just what does this mean—this phrase, "IT'S TOASTED"?

The tobacco is oven toasted at very high heats for 45 minutes; then chilled with the moisture completely restored. The toasting brings out the hidden flavors of the superbly fine tobacco. The chilling seals in these flavors; seals in, too, the moisture that has been restored. It all acts like a cold plunge on the pores of the body.

That's why LUCKIES taste so good. Why LUCKIES are always fresh when they come to you. Why millions prefer this uniquely fine cigarette.

BECAUSE IT'S TOASTED

Title Fight Scrambled Affair Despite Action of Commission

By George Barry.

NEW YORK, July 28.—"There will be no Dempsey-Tunney fight in New York or anywhere else."—James A. Farley.

"The commission has approved the bout and the license committee has no right to refuse a permit to Rickard except for a legal reason."—George E. Brower.

"The fight is coming back to New York, where it belongs, even if it is necessary to go into court for the licenses."—William Muldoon.

"?"—Colonel John R. Phelan.

There, in a nutshell, you have an idea of the uncertainty into which Tex Rickard will plunge upon his return from Chicago to complete plans for a heavyweight championship battle between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney at the Yankee stadium on Sept. 16.

The lawyers probably will have their inning soon as the controversy now seems headed for the courts.

On the surface it has been smoothed over by the action of the state athletic commission yesterday in granting permission to Rickard to stage the fight. Underneath, however, there is plenty of turmoil.

Up To Phelan.

The responsibility now rests on Colonel John J. Phelan, chairman of the license committee. James A. Farley, chairman of the commission, was outvoted by Commissioners Brower and Muldoon yesterday in the matter of approving Rickard's applications, but he has not ceased fighting.

Before they can do any boxing in New York, Dempsey and Tunney must apply for licenses. The license committee met yesterday and, among other things, ruled that all applications for reinstatements must be made direct to the committee.

If this procedure is enforced Dempsey and Tunney cannot make application through the boxing board, where a friendly majority exists, but must go to Colonel Phelan and his associate, D. Walker Wear.

Colonel Phelan is known to look with extreme disfavor on Dempsey, especially since the champion "ran out" on Harry Wills after agreeing to

Auto Club's Second Sacker Also Piles Up Lead in Two-base Blows; Given Close Race by Brother, Alf; H. Strobel Turns in Flashy Stick Average.

EDDIE BAYLEY, brilliant second sacker and captain of the Turk-Nash team, swatting the ball consistently all year, is the leading hitter of the City Industrial Baseball league for the initial half of the 1926 season with a mark of .420 in 19 games during which he laced out 29 safe drives in 69 efforts with the bludgeon. He also led in two-swat drives with eight to his credit. In all other departments of play he was among the players excelling according to figures compiled by T. T. Jones, league statistician.

But for the fact that he was out of two games, his brother, A. Bayley, middle field custodian of the same club, might have beaten him for batting honors. As it was he was only three points off with .417 for the 17 contests in which he had 20 safeties in 48 chances. He was keen in walking and sacrificing also.

Strobel Well up in Race.

Almost worthy of first place in hitting for the period was the veteran H. Strobel of Victory Motor, who came through with a mark of .485. However he was in but 16 games. And in several of these he failed to stay in or start the game. Just the same he hit better than in any time of his long diamond career. Perhaps the fact that he took a turn occasionally as a pitcher had something to do with his return to form. He had 16 drives in 33 attempts.

That other veteran, S. Coleman, in the five games he played for Turk-Nash, landed on the ball at a .455 clip, having five hits, one of them being a hom run that won a crucial contest with Laughlin. Coleman was always a flashy guardian of the first sack. This year he held his own with the stick also.

Manager Alcock, former major and minor leaguer, who this year is managing Turk-Nash, hit .583 in six contests.

Bubin Hits Hard.

Bubin, Laughlin, hit .414 in 11 games and scored 10 times. With his three doubles, two triples and three home runs he stood high in extra bases.

In all, 25 swatted in the .300 charmed circle, only eight at .400 and four in the .500 class, the latter marks being made in fewer games.

The necessity of throwing out the K. T. K.Chester game of July 1 lowered the averages of some and slightly aided others. The chief loser was Potts, of Chester, who that day had a perfect mark at the bat with a single and two doubles in three attempts and these hits would have given him a .467 instead of the .407 he actually has and he probably would have merited the distinction of being the heaviest swatting receiver in the loop. Les McMath lost two safe ones which would have given him .310. Lysle lost a home run as well.

McShane K. T. K. Ace.

On the other hand McShane of K. T. K. gained as he did not hit safely in the June 15 game but had two good ones on July 3. McShane, by the way, swatted an even .400. His all around work, also stands out for in addition he had a perfect fielding mark in accepting 21 chances. He showed speed when needed, fielded brilliantly and was an ideal lead-off man for his club all year. His all around performance, even demeanor and willingness to be fair has greatly aided the league and brought honor to his club.

Wilde, first bagman-pitcher of Chester was in 23 games and just missed by nine points hitting at a .400 clip. His average is no mean figure in view of the fact that he pitched several times and in the flag deciding game with Laughlin July 7 stayed on the hilltop while suffering excruciating pain from a spike wound in his foot which kept him idle for several games at the outset of the second half.

Watson Leads Laughlin.

McConnell, with the Bayley brothers, formed the regular hitting trio of Turk-Nash. He finished with a mark of .368 with four less hits than the league leader made and five more than A. Bayley made. He hit consistently and dangerously all year.

W. Mundy, in 14 games, hit for a .360 mark. J. Morgan, Wellsville, hit the same in 11 games.

W. Watson, the young Newell high school lad, who understudies for the absent Tommy Sayres, went in and led the Laughlin club in hitting with .342. He was in 17 games. The youth showed gameness, capability and marked adeptness at the diamond pastime.

Finley, Laughlin captain, led the .333 hitters, playing in 22 games. Schneidmiller was next with 17 games.

Digman, who pitched Laughlin to a first half pennant, handled the stick well, too, having an average of .303 despite constant pitching.

Despits the fact that he was incapaciated for a portion of the season R. Pollock of Turk Nash came through with an average of .314 in 11 games.

Potts, .407 and Wilde, .391 led Chester with the willow. The Bayleys head Turk-Nash; McShane and Simcox, the latter .341, topped K. T. K.; W. Watson .341 and Finley .333, Laughlin; Sainor .382 and W. Mundy .360, Victory Motors; A. Morris, .381 and J. Morgan .348, Wellsville.

All Star Team.

From the statistics the All Star team so far as hitting is concerned would probably line up with Potts of Chester, .407 and Schneidmiller of Nash-Turk, .333 catching. The pitchers would include Wilde, Chester, .391; Sainor, Victory Motor, .382; Digman, Laughlin, .303, and M. Cebula, Chester, .293. W. Mundy, Victory Motor, .360, would cover first; E. Bayley, Nash-Motor, .420, second base; A. Morris, Wellsville, .381, shortstop; Simcox, K. T. K., .333, third base, C. Coleman, Victory Motor, .342; W. Watson, Laughlin, .342, and Finley, Laughlin, .333, would be utility man.

In the outfield A. Bayley, Nash-Turk, .417, McShane, K. T. K., .400, McConnell, Nash-Turk, .368, would do the fielding. F. Marshall, Chester, .327 and R. Pollock, Nash-Turk, .317, would be their understudies.

Laughlin had the most runs, 124, while Chester was one behind and Turk-Nash scored 117.

Turk Nash totaled 167 hits against 163 by Chester and 150 by Laughlin. Wellsville trailed with 102.

Line Out 40 Doubles.

In doubles Turk-Nash had 40, Chester 32 and Laughlin and K. T. K. 24 each.

Chester had 16 triples, while Turk-Nash, K. T. K. and Victor had 15 each.

Chester and Laughlin had five home runs each, with Turk-Nash and Victory Motor having four each.

In outouts Chester had 424, Laughlin 387 and Turk-Nash 359.

Chester, with 56, had the most errors. Victory Motor followed with 50. Chester led also in stolen bases with 53, Laughlin following with 49. Laughlin had 19 sacrifice hits as against Chester's 16.

Chester and Victory Motor, with 95 each shared the strikeout record. Laughlin had 89 and Wellsville 88.

In walks Laughlin led with 45, Chester having 44 and Victory Motor 36. The others trailed.

NEW YORK, July 28.—"There will be no Dempsey-Tunney fight in New York or anywhere else."—James A. Farley.

"The commission has approved the bout and the license committee has no right to refuse a permit to Rickard except for a legal reason."—George E. Brower.

"The fight is coming back to New York, where it belongs, even if it is necessary to go into court for the licenses."—William Muldoon.

"?"—Colonel John R. Phelan.

There, in a nutshell, you have an idea of the uncertainty into which Tex Rickard will plunge upon his return from Chicago to complete plans for a heavyweight championship battle between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney at the Yankee stadium on Sept. 16.

The lawyers probably will have their inning soon as the controversy now seems headed for the courts.

On the surface it has been smoothed over by the action of the state athletic commission yesterday in granting permission to Rickard to stage the fight. Underneath, however, there is plenty of turmoil.

Up To Phelan.

The responsibility now rests on Colonel John J. Phelan, chairman of the license committee. James A. Farley, chairman of the commission, was outvoted by Commissioners Brower and Muldoon yesterday in the matter of approving Rickard's applications, but he has not ceased fighting.

Before they can do any boxing in New York, Dempsey and Tunney must apply for licenses. The license committee met yesterday and, among other things, ruled that all applications for reinstatements must be made direct to the committee.

If this procedure is enforced Dempsey and Tunney cannot make application through the boxing board, where a friendly majority exists, but must go to Colonel Phelan and his associate, D. Walker Wear.

Colonel Phelan is known to look with extreme disfavor on Dempsey, especially since the champion "ran out" on Harry Wills after agreeing to

CHESTER BLANKS K. T. K. AT SMITH FIELD

LAUGHLIN BOWS TO TURK-NASH

Auto Club Overcomes Lead to Win 10-4 Decision.

PLAYING on a wet field, with lowered clouds darkening the entire lot, Turk-Nash, hitting the ball hard and taking advantage of opposition infield miscues, defeated Laughlin at Newell last evening, 10 to 4.

Third Bagman Herbert and Left Fielder Parsons were not in the Laughlin lineup, Pitcher English taking the former's place and Right Fielder Aufderheide moving to left with Bubin in right.

Crawford remained in middle and played a brilliant game, gathering in six hard chances. Bubin pulled down two catches in right that evoked applause, saving runs in both instances.

English clouted out a home run in the second, lacing the ball on a line to middle-right. R. Pollock apparently misjudged it and it reached the bushes, enabling Bubin, who previously had doubled, and Hunselman, on third, to score. Finley had opened the period with a single over third and reached the hot corner on Hunselman's rap after W. Watson fanned. As the catcher stole second he purloined the plate, giving the club four runs.

Overcome Laughlin Lead.

But Turk-Nash, with a 4 to 0 count against them, fought back. Schneidmiller, opening the fourth, reached first as Finley, handling his drive threw low to first, enabling the catcher to go on to second. D. Morgan singled over second. Talbot was safe, clogging the bases as Finley repeated his former performance. J. Watson fouled to Hunselman, the latter making a fine catch while leaning over the wire attached to the backston. Deshler drove to English, who booted the blow, permitting Schneidmiller and D. Morgan to count. E. Bayley walked. McConnell singled, scoring Deshler, and was caught off first, Hunselman to Babb. A. Bayley drove to Bubin, who made a fine catch, retiring the side.

R. Pollock walked in the fifth and reached third on Schneidmiller's double. A wild pitch scored him and put the catcher on the hot corner. D. Morgan flew to Babb. Talbot tripled to right, scoring Schneidmiller. J. Watson singled to left, sending the shortstop across the plate. Deshler flew to Crawford as did McConnell after Eddie Bayley had beaten out a rap to third.

Alf Bayley started the sixth by doubling. R. Pollock sacrificed, Suder to Babb. Schneidmiller doubled to left, Bayley finishing. Morgan singled through short. Schneidmiller scored on a bad throw by Suder to first and Morgan reached third from where he counted on a wild pitch. Talbot singled to right. J. Watson fanned. Deshler was hit. Eddie Bayley was safe on a drive to short on which Talbot counted. McConnell flew out to Crawford.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Power in the golf swing comes from the body as a whole, not from any particular part of the body. This fact gets lost to many golfers in the general confusion that results among them from cautions about this and that. Also rhythm of action implies that the whole action of the swing must be a rhythmic action of the entire body, like plain walking. This being true, the theories of launching the back swing with some particular part of the body is equal to initiating power at a point other than the source of power, and in the golf swing the source of power is the body. George Duncan and Abe Mitchell have this principle right. They tee off the back swing with a body movement, which I might liken to the hub of a wagon wheel starting first and applying power to the spokes and the rim.

ROSENBERG IN WARM-UP BOUT

CHICAGO, July 28.—Charles Phil Rosenberg, world's bantamweight champion, will appear on a boxing card at Cubs' park here August 13, Promoter Jim Mullen announced today. The champion's opponent has not been selected.

The bout will be a warmer-up for the title holder preparatory to his championship fight here in September against Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind.

INJURY KEEPS MANDELL IDLE

CHICAGO, July 28.—Chances of Ace Hudkins, sensational Nebraska boxer, meeting Sammy Mandell, world's champion lightweight, in the near future were considered slight today. Mandell, it was stated, is suffering from an injured heel and does not contemplate any ring engagements for several months.

The Yankees trimmed the Browns, 6 to 5, in the first game of their western invasion and stretched their lead to nine and one-half games. Homers by Ruth and Combs helped Pennock beat Zachary.

The Bambino's wallop was his thirty-first homer of the season and put him five homers or 23 games behind his record.

The Pirates got off to a running start against the Giants and just lasted to win, 4 to 3. Jackson and Lindstrom kept the Giants in the game with homers.

Mike Cebula Pitches No-Hit, No-Run Game

Champion's Slab Ace Mars Near Perfect Record in Seven Innings by Permitting Two Walks; Gets Almost Faultless Support From Team Mates.

MIKE Cebula, in the pink of form, held K. T. K. without a hit or run in seven innings of play on Smith Field last evening, and gave Chester a 5 to 0 conquest over the Potters.

Mike permitted two men to reach the bags on walks. He invariably tightened in the pinches and in all fanned 11 batters. He was given almost faultless support by his teammates who swatted timely and ran the bases recklessly.

Yoboid pitched four innings for K. T. K. and was found for five bingles and four runs. "Hi" Allison, former star southpaw of the club, finished the contest and showed that he could still fling with cleverness and effectiveness. In two frames he allowed but two safeties which netted one run.

Despite the rain and wet field a fair sized crowd saw the contest.

Evans, singling in the first, went to second on a passed ball and scored on P. Cebula's single.

F. Marshall doubled over first base in the third. P. Cebula beat out a bunt, Marshall going to third. P. Cebula stole second as F. Marshall purloined the plate. Potts went out at first, Yoboid assisting, P. Cebula going to third. He scored on W. McMath's triple to right. On the squeeze play L. McMath finished.

Greene was safe on Jackson's error in the fifth and scored on Evans' single.

Every Cigarette At Its Best
Because "It's Toasted"

LUCKY STRIKES are made from the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, perfectly blended.

Besides this supreme quality of leaf tobacco as compared with all other cigarettes—"IT'S TOASTED".

Just what does this mean—this phrase, "IT'S TOASTED"?

The tobacco is oven toasted at very high heats for 45 minutes; then chilled with the moisture completely restored. The toasting brings out the hidden flavors of the superbly fine tobacco. The chilling seals in these flavors; seals in, too, the moisture that has been restored. It all acts like a cold plunge on the pores of the body.

That's why LUCKIES taste so good. Why LUCKIES are always fresh when they come to you. Why millions prefer this uniquely fine cigarette.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

Washington took fifth place away from the White Sox by downing the pale hose, 7 to 2. Al Thomas blew up in the eighth when the Senators scored six runs while Walter Johnson pitched well all the way.

Slim Harriss and Baby Doll Jacobson, handed to the Red Sox by Connie Mack, collaborated in whitewashing the Tigers, 7 to 0, Harriss yielding only five hits, while Jake got five hits, including a homer.

Title Fight

Faces Big Job.

It is not likely that Rickard will be able to get any action, one way or the other, on the fighters' licenses before the next meeting of the license committee.

Tex is faced with the necessity of getting his show under way immediately. He must establish training camps for Dempsey and Tunney, get his ticket sale started and the "ballyhoo" heated up.

For a fight of such importance six weeks are hardly sufficient to arrange the thousand and one details.

The uncertainly as to whether the fight can be held will undoubtedly depress the advance sale. Dempsey and Tunney will not be able to approach the battle mentally fit if worried over the prospect of the bars going up at the last moment or a hasty switch to some other battle ground. There are still numerous harassing details to worry Rickard.

Can't Refuse Permits.

George E. Brower, whose vote downed Farley yesterday, is a lawyer, and has expressed an opinion that the license committee cannot refuse permits to Dempsey and Tunney unless some legal reason exists for denying them.

"The license committeemen have no vote on the board and are supposed to follow its wishes as prescribed by majority vote," he said. "The board has voted to grant permission for this fight.

"The law does not specify any particular time before a fight for licensing boxers. Dempsey received his permit only a short time before he fought Firpo here three years ago. It is my opinion as a lawyer that the license committee of this board cannot resolve itself into an arbitrary body and defy the will of a commission majority."

The legal fight, if there is one, will break on this point. Commissioners Brower and Muldoon admit it may be necessary for Rickard to apply for a court order to force the licensing of Dempsey and Tunney.

Haskin's Letter

and yet the Indiana sage was no frivolous man. Dykaar had him for many sittings, finally getting the effect he wanted, dignity without a loss of the liveliness of the character.

Few friends of Mr. Longworth would call him a man of many moods, yet Dykaar found him so. "There are things in the heads and faces of men which they do not often put into words," says the sculptor. He said much the same of President Coolidge, although he found the President a not difficult subject. "He has wonderful ears," says Dykaar, "and a fine head. There is much in it which you do not suspect. But he does not have moods."

When Dykaar was struggling for recognition he was given a letter to a wealthy man who might be desirous of a personal portrait in bronze or marble. The millionaire was very abrupt. Dykaar was in debt, and desperately in need of work. Finally swallowing his pride he admitted that he needed a commission most desperately. He pleaded for a chance. "I have not actually anything to eat," he said.

The great merchant looked at him coldly. "A lot of people are in the same fix," was all he said.

Another person of wealth offered him five hundred dollars for a bust. It would have taken three or four months to make, besides the cost of material and a studio. But the subject insisted on his own bargain or none. Dykaar continued hungry for a while.

"But not all Americans are so cold or commercial about works of art," he says. "Many artists think they are. Some of my experiences would have embittered me, but I found other places where warm sympathy and appreciation greeted me. And most official people are very fine. The government itself is not a liberal patron of the arts. Congress buys a little for the capitol, but at prices fixed many years ago when an artist was glad to work many months for a thousand dollar fee. But official work wins recognition."

Dr. William H. Holmes, Director of the National Gallery of Art, has been a friend and admirer of the Russian sculptor, and he has done a fine bust of the director for the museum.

Besides many pieces of an allegorical character, Dykaar has made busts of two presidents and one vice president and two speakers, of Mrs. Coolidge, Hiram Maxim, Alexander Graham Bell, Count Tolstoi, Samuel Gompers, General George O. Squier, Rabbi Wise, Eugene Debs, Dr. Charles D. Walcott of the Smithsonian Institution, and many other celebrities.

He is still a poor man, but is among the younger artists who have "arrived." And he has achieved his place without sacrificing his independence or his temperament, which are among the dearest possessions of an artist.

An electric power station costing $1,054,000 will be erected at Collie,

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

Washington took fifth place away from the White Sox by downing the pale hose, 7 to 2. Al Thomas blew up in the eighth when the Senators scored six runs while Walter Johnson pitched well all the way.

Slim Harriss and Baby Doll Jacobson, handed to the Red Sox by Connie Mack, collaborated in whitewashing the Tigers, 7 to 0, Harriss yielding only five hits, while Jake got five hits, including a homer.

Title Fight

Faces Big Job.

It is not likely that Rickard will be able to get any action, one way or the other, on the fighters' licenses before the next meeting of the license committee.

Tex is faced with the necessity of getting his show under way immediately. He must establish training camps for Dempsey and Tunney, get his ticket sale started and the "ballyhoo" heated up.

For a fight of such importance six weeks are hardly sufficient to arrange the thousand and one details.

The uncertainly as to whether the fight can be held will undoubtedly depress the advance sale. Dempsey and Tunney will not be able to approach the battle mentally fit if worried over the prospect of the bars going up at the last moment or a hasty switch to some other battle ground. There are still numerous harassing details to worry Rickard.

Can't Refuse Permits.

George E. Brower, whose vote downed Farley yesterday, is a lawyer, and has expressed an opinion that the license committee cannot refuse permits to Dempsey and Tunney unless some legal reason exists for denying them.

"The license committeemen have no vote on the board and are supposed to follow its wishes as prescribed by majority vote," he said. "The board has voted to grant permission for this fight.

"The law does not specify any particular time before a fight for licensing boxers. Dempsey received his permit only a short time before he fought Firpo here three years ago. It is my opinion as a lawyer that the license committee of this board cannot resolve itself into an arbitrary body and defy the will of a commission majority."

The legal fight, if there is one, will break on this point. Commissioners Brower and Muldoon admit it may be necessary for Rickard to apply for a court order to force the licensing of Dempsey and Tunney.

Haskin's Letter

and yet the Indiana sage was no frivolous man. Dykaar had him for many sittings, finally getting the effect he wanted, dignity without a loss of the liveliness of the character.

Few friends of Mr. Longworth would call him a man of many moods, yet Dykaar found him so. "There are things in the heads and faces of men which they do not often put into words," says the sculptor. He said much the same of President Coolidge, although he found the President a not difficult subject. "He has wonderful ears," says Dykaar, "and a fine head. There is much in it which you do not suspect. But he does not have moods."

When Dykaar was struggling for recognition he was given a letter to a wealthy man who might be desirous of a personal portrait in bronze or marble. The millionaire was very abrupt. Dykaar was in debt, and desperately in need of work. Finally swallowing his pride he admitted that he needed a commission most desperately. He pleaded for a chance. "I have not actually anything to eat," he said.

The great merchant looked at him coldly. "A lot of people are in the same fix," was all he said.

Another person of wealth offered him five hundred dollars for a bust. It would have taken three or four months to make, besides the cost of material and a studio. But the subject insisted on his own bargain or none. Dykaar continued hungry for a while.

"But not all Americans are so cold or commercial about works of art," he says. "Many artists think they are. Some of my experiences would have embittered me, but I found other places where warm sympathy and appreciation greeted me. And most official people are very fine. The government itself is not a liberal patron of the arts. Congress buys a little for the capitol, but at prices fixed many years ago when an artist was glad to work many months for a thousand dollar fee. But official work wins recognition."

Dr. William H. Holmes, Director of the National Gallery of Art, has been a friend and admirer of the Russian sculptor, and he has done a fine bust of the director for the museum.

Besides many pieces of an allegorical character, Dykaar has made busts of two presidents and one vice president and two speakers, of Mrs. Coolidge, Hiram Maxim, Alexander Graham Bell, Count Tolstoi, Samuel Gompers, General George O. Squier, Rabbi Wise, Eugene Debs, Dr. Charles D. Walcott of the Smithsonian Institution, and many other celebrities.

He is still a poor man, but is among the younger artists who have "arrived." And he has achieved his place without sacrificing his independence or his temperament, which are among the dearest possessions of an artist.

An electric power station costing $1,054,000 will be erected at Collie.

10,000 ATTEND P. R. R. OUTING

Showers Fail to Discourage Central Region Workers.

Despite a steady drizzle of rain with periodic showers throughout the day, more than 10,000 employes of the central region of the Pennsylvania railroad attended the fourth annual basket picnic at Cascade park, New Castle, Pa., yesterday under auspices of the Mutual Benefit association.

Included among the picnickers were scores of Wellsville rail workers who made the trip by special train and by automobile.

Another outing wil be held today at Conneaut Lake. Music will be provided by the Pitcairn shop band, the Conway shop band and the Cleveland Pennsylvania Railroad band. The Pitcairn and Scully shops will put on a baseball game.

By way of entertainment at yesterday's outing as Cascade park there were dancing, boating, a baseball game between Oil City and New Castle, athletic events and two band concerts by the Dennison, O., Pennsylvania Railroad Shop band and the Erie and Ashtabula Division Pennsylvania Shop band of New Castle and Mahoningtown.

In addition to dashes for boys and girls, there were fat women's races, three-legged races, sack races and a baseball throwing contest. TOO MANY LAWS LEWIS' CLAIM

Return to Old Ideal Urged by Kiwanis Speaker.

Citing the evil effect of the multiplicity of laws on law observance and enforcement and pointing out the seeming disrespect for law as a result of the trend away from the old ideal of government, Attorney Earl R. Lewis, St. Clairsville, Republican candidate for state senator from the 20th-22nd district, last night addressed members of the Wellsville Kiwanis club at the Yellow Creek grange hall.

The session took the form of a ladies' night meeting. Approximately 150 Kiwanis and guests attended, including W. F. Lones, of this city, candidate for common pleas court judgeship of Columbiana county, and Ralph Emmons, candidate for state representative.

Attorney Lewis pointed out the ever increasing number of laws on the statute books, explaining that there are now over 16,000 separate sections of general application. When the code was enacted in 1912, he pointed out, there were approximately 12,000; and a few years ahead of that there were only 8,000.

This has an evil tendency on law observance and enforcement, he contended. Many of these sections, he said, were enacted under pressure of interests affected then, of only temporary importance, and yet they have been permitted to stand and become dead letters.

"We are getting away from the old ideal of government,' said Lewis, "the ideal which was that that government is best which governs least."

"We are drifting rapidly into a paternalistic government which seeks to regulate unnecessarily.

"All of this naturally results in a general disrespect for the law which seemingly has no real basis of morals, sound economics or good common sense."

RISLER READY TO TAKE STAND

Frank Risler, 54, Toronto, tinsmith, who is on trial for his life for the shooting to death last April of John C. McCoy, a dry agent who raided the Risler home, will mount the witness stand in his own behalf tomorrow in common pleas court in Steubenville.

Risler claims he shot in self-defense after McCoy had covered him with a gun. McCoy, according to Risler, had replied repeatedly: "None of your d— business" when asked what he was doing in the house which was raided, while Mrs. Risler would testify in support of her husband's statements.

Attorney R. B. Cohen said today the defense was not trying to conceal anything, maintaining that Risler shot in defense of himself and his home and admitting that Risler was a saloon owner at Bridgeport in 1906.

John Brayton, acquaintance of Frank Risler, tin mill foreman on trial for murdering John McCoy, prohibition officer, testified late yesterday that, before the killing, he heard Risler say: "If any dry officer ever searches my home, I will shoot him."

James A. Armstrong, who accompanied McCoy on the raid at Risler's home, told the jury that he found beer and whisky in the home, that the search warrant was legally issued, and that Risler, after shooting McCoy, dared Armstrong to leave the cellar, on threat of being shot.

The case will go to the jury Friday, attorneys said.

The Prague-Trieste air service project has been dropped because the Czechoslovak government refused to put up the necessary heavy subsidy.

Illinois Senator's Gift to University Mentioned in Quiz

FEDERAL BUILDING, CHICAGO, Ills., July 28.—A $5,000 gift by Senator William B. McKinley to the Lincoln university of Kentucky, was followed by its Chancellor, John Wesley Hill, invading Illinois to support the senator in his race for re-nomination, Henry I. Green, the McKinley "paymaster," testified today at the senate slush fund investigation of the recent Illinois senatorial primary.,

The donation to the university was made in 1923, Green said. He added that Hill, who spoke for McKinley by praising his vote for the World Court, received no pay for the speeches, but did have his expenses paid.

This was the first of McKinley's "million-a-year' philanthropies to be investigated by the slush fund committee.

Russian Cossack Chorus Big Feature At Ceramic

Fourteen Vocalists, International Music Sensation, Here for Three Days With Paramount Film, "The Lucky Lady."

The Russian Cossack Male chorus, following successful engagements in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and Milan and now on tour in the United States, will be the special attraction at the Ceramic theatre tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, afternoon and evening, in connection with the presentation of the Paramount screen feature, "The Lucky Lady."

The Ceramic theatre management was especially fortunate in booking this international music sensation, in which 14 vocalists extraordinary take part. The chorus is directed by Stephen Sheloukhin. During the tour abroad, the chorus performed before the king of Italy and Premier Mussolini of Rome. Gabriele D'Annuzio, famous Italian poet, wrote, after hearing their program: "Their singing is as sweet as the dreamy dawn on sleeping flowers, as soft as the hush of endless calm and as thrilling as the night on which a new love comes to rule the enchanted world."

As a part of the program several of the chorus members take part in an exhibition of Cossack and Caucasian dances. The entire performance is a thrilling and novel entertainment.

One moment a beautiful princess with every man in the province eager for her hand, the next an awkward, unlovely girl, a disgrace to the kingdom.

Such is the part played by Greta Nissen, beautiful Norse actress, in "The Lucky Lady," which Raoul Walsh directed for Paramount.

Following the death of the prince of the little kingdom of San Guido, members of the cabinet send for Greta Nissen, the prince's daughter, who is in a nearby convent.

It is found, however, that the princess has temporarily run away from the convent to watch a band of traveling actors at a nearby hotel. At the inn she is seated with William Collier, Jr., an American. Her attention is divided between interest in the changing costumes of a girl on the stage and a flirtation she is attempting with Collier.

The convent vesper bell reminds Miss Nissen of her need for sudden departure and she starts back. Outside she sees the convent Abbe approaching. To avoid him, she jumps into the tonneau of a nearby automobile.

Before she has an opportunity to climb out, Collier enters the car and starts in search of her—to demand an explanation as to her sudden departure. In his search he drives near the convent, Miss Nissen then makes him aware of her presence and when he halts the automobile, she jumps out to enter the building.

Inside the convent a party of officials are waiting to escort her back. On the return trip, the automobile in which they are riding breaks down, and Collier, who is following, offers to drive them to their destination.

TOO MANY LAWS LEWIS' CLAIM

Return to Old Ideal Urged by Kiwanis Speaker.

Citing the evil effect of the multiplicity of laws on law observance and enforcement and pointing out the seeming disrespect for law as a result of the trend away from the old ideal of government, Attorney Earl R. Lewis, St. Clairsville, Republican candidate for state senator from the 20th-22nd district, last night addressed members of the Wellsville Kiwanis club at the Yellow Creek grange hall.

The session took the form of a ladies' night meeting. Approximately 150 Kiwanis and guests attended, including W. F. Lones, of this city, candidate for common pleas court judgeship of Columbiana county, and Ralph Emmons, candidate for state representative.

Attorney Lewis pointed out the ever increasing number of laws on the statute books, explaining that there are now over 16,000 separate sections of general application. When the code was enacted in 1912, he pointed out, there were approximately 12,000; and a few years ahead of that there were only 8,000.

This has an evil tendency on law observance and enforcement, he contended. Many of these sections, he said, were enacted under pressure of interests affected then, of only temporary importance, and yet they have been permitted to stand and become dead letters.

"We are getting away from the old ideal of government,' said Lewis, "the ideal which was that that government is best which governs least."

"We are drifting rapidly into a paternalistic government which seeks to regulate unnecessarily.

"All of this naturally results in a general disrespect for the law which seemingly has no real basis of morals, sound economics or good common sense."

RISLER READY TO TAKE STAND

Frank Risler, 54, Toronto, tinsmith, who is on trial for his life for the shooting to death last April of John C. McCoy, a dry agent who raided the Risler home, will mount the witness stand in his own behalf tomorrow in common pleas court in Steubenville.

Risler claims he shot in self-defense after McCoy had covered him with a gun. McCoy, according to Risler, had replied repeatedly: "None of your d— business" when asked what he was doing in the house which was raided, while Mrs. Risler would testify in support of her husband's statements.

Attorney R. B. Cohen said today the defense was not trying to conceal anything, maintaining that Risler shot in defense of himself and his home and admitting that Risler was a saloon owner at Bridgeport in 1906.

John Brayton, acquaintance of Frank Risler, tin mill foreman on trial for murdering John McCoy, prohibition officer, testified late yesterday that, before the killing, he heard Risler say: "If any dry officer ever searches my home, I will shoot him."

James A. Armstrong, who accompanied McCoy on the raid at Risler's home, told the jury that he found beer and whisky in the home, that the search warrant was legally issued, and that Risler, after shooting McCoy, dared Armstrong to leave the cellar, on threat of being shot.

The case will go to the jury Friday, attorneys said.

Illinois Senator's Gift to University Mentioned in Quiz

FEDERAL BUILDING, CHICAGO, Ills., July 28.—A $5,000 gift by Senator William B. McKinley to the Lincoln university of Kentucky, was followed by it's Chancellor, John Wesley Hill, invading Illinois to support the senator in his race for re-nomination, Henry I. Green, the McKinley "paymaster," testified today at the senate slush fund investigation of the recent Illinois senatorial primary.,

The donation to the university was made in 1923, Green said. He added that Hill, who spoke for McKinley by praising his vote for the World Court, received no pay for the speeches, but did have his expenses paid.

This was the first of McKinley's "million-a-year' philanthropies to be investigated by the slush fund committee.

Russian Cossack Chorus Big Feature At Ceramic

Fourteen Vocalists, International Music Sensation, Here for Three Days With Paramount Film, "The Lucky Lady."

The Russian Cossack Male chorus, following successful engagements in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and Milan and now on tour in the United States, will be the special attraction at the Ceramic theatre tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, afternoon and evening, in connection with the presentation of the Paramount screen feature, "The Lucky Lady."

The Ceramic theatre management was especially fortunate in booking this international music sensation, in which 14 vocalists extraordinary take part. The chorus is directed by Stephen Sheloukhin. During the tour abroad, the chorus performed before the king of Italy and Premier Mussolini of Rome. Gabriele D'Annuzio, famous Italian poet, wrote, after hearing their program: "Their singing is as sweet as the dreamy dawn on sleeping flowers, as soft as the hush of endless calm and as thrilling as the night on which a new love comes to rule the enchanted world."

As a part of the program several of the chorus members take part in an exhibition of Cossack and Caucasian dances. The entire performance is a thrilling and novel entertainment.

One moment a beautiful princess with every man in the province eager for her hand, the next an awkward, unlovely girl, a disgrace to the kingdom.

Such is the part played by Greta Nissen, beautiful Norse actress, in "The Lucky Lady," which Raoul Walsh directed for Paramount.

Following the death of the prince of the little kingdom of San Guido, members of the cabinet send for Greta Nissen, the prince's daughter, who is in a nearby convent.

It is found, however, that the princess has temporarily run away from the convent to watch a band of traveling actors at a nearby hotel. At the inn she is seated with William Collier, Jr., an American. Her attention is divided between interest in the changing costumes of a girl on the stage and a flirtation she is attempting with Collier.

The convent vesper bell reminds Miss Nissen of her need for sudden departure and she starts back. Outside she sees the convent Abbe approaching. To avoid him, she jumps into the tonneau of a nearby automobile.

Before she has an opportunity to climb out, Collier enters the car and starts in search of her—to demand an explanation as to her sudden departure. In his search he drives near the convent, Miss Nissen then makes him aware of her presence and when he halts the automobile, she jumps out to enter the building.

Inside the convent a party of officials are waiting to escort her back. On the return trip, the automobile in which they are riding breaks down, and Collier, who is following, offers to drive them to their destination.

U. S. PROBES MELLETT KILLING

DONAHEY IS HIT IN CANTON CRIME QUIZ

Today

Lincoln's Son Dead.
Mexico's Religious War.
In Asia Is Japan.
A Refined Gunman.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

THIS country will hear with regret of the death of Robert T. Lincoln, who died in Vermont Sunday at the age of 82. The name of Lincoln is sacred to every American, and the son of Abraham Lincoln, who has just died, bore his father's name with dignity.

He was a good American citizen, worthy of the nation that owes its continued existence to his great father.

THE war between the Mexican government and the Catholic church has reached an acute stage. Sunday morning it was announced that on August 1 religious services will cease in all Catholic churches in Mexico.

In each church a committee will be chosen from the congregation to take care of the building. Churches will be left open to the people to worship, but the priests will not officiate.

It is also suggested that those helping to enforce Mexican laws against the Catholic church will be excommunicated.

President Calles, of Mexico, replied to the threat of a religious boycott by accusing the Catholic church authorities of "plotting a revolt under the cloak of religion." Calles says the boycott will fail and threatens to jail eight bishops of the Catholic church in Mexico.

THE world will watch with interest this battle between the Mexican government and the Catholic church, first of its kind in many years.

The cessation of all religious services in Mexico will undoubtedly cause turmoil and distress among all classes. Mexican Indians especially will resent being deprived of services which they believe essential to their spiritual welfare. The Christian religion was forced upon them originally by Spanish conquerors, and much bloodshed in many cases accompanied the process.

But the Indians are now devout Christians, often more earnest in their faith than people of European extraction.

The threat of the Catholic church to boycott all of those that enforce the anti-Catholic laws in Mexico is also serious, more so than Protestants ordinarily would understand.

Such a thunderbolt of the church may not possess in these cynical agnostic days the power that brought an excommunicated German emperor over the mountains in winter to stand barefoot in the snow at Canossa, beneath the pope's window, begging for a pardon. But in the minds of devout Catholics, to be excommunicated is to endure spiritual death, and the threat will be powerful.

The American people and government, of course, have no right to tell Mexico what law shall be made as regards Mexican affairs, but the confiscation of the great properties of the Catholic church in Mexico without remuneration is surprising to Americans. When this country took over the Philippines, and thus deprived the Catholic church of certain rights and possible income, the United States government paid the sum of eight million dollars to Rome, by way of damages.

V. A. SCHREIBER SAYS GOVERNOR IGNORES VICE IN RIVER CITY

Refers to Lack of Action in Jefferson County Murders.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

Mellett Killing is Discussed at Primary Campaign Rally.

The action of Governor Donahey in sending a special investigator to Canton to probe the slaying of Don R. Mellett, crusading publisher of the Canton Daily News, while, he charged, the state executive is ignoring vice conditions in Jefferson county where 12 murders have been committed within six months, was condemned by V. A. Schreiber, superintendent of the Canton district of the Anti-Saloon league in an address before 75 men and women at a primary campaign rally under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. in the First Church of Christ last night.

Discusses Candidates' Qualifications.

"The Canton murder has been given a whole lot of publicity because Mellett was a newspaper man," said Schreiber. "Governor Donahey's special investigator was on the job within a day or two after the murder. Did any of you people ever hear of the governor sending a state man into Jefferson county to make an investigation of 12 murders which have taken place there within a short period of six months?"

The main purpose of Schreiber's visit to East Liverpool was to discuss qualifications of candidates who are seeking the nomination at the primaries on Tuesday, August 10. His subject was "The Coming Election and Municipal Affairs."

"We hear so much howling from the wet camp these days that prohibition cannot be enforced," said Schreiber. "Every wet you talk to says the law is non-enforceable and at the same time is one of those who is violating the law himself.

"Those who have had the appointing powers for prohibition jobs have been placing wet men in the place. In other words, enemies of prohibition are being placed in a position to enforce the law with which they are not in sympathy. Is it any wonder that enforcement is made difficult?

Cites Murder Statistics.

"We have 10,000 murders in the United States every year. Statistics show that one per cent of the murderers are punished. Ninety-nine per cent get away with it. Is it any wonder that we have crime?"

POSTAL INSPECTORS TAKE HAND IN SEARCH WITH ARREST IMMINENT

CAPT. A. P. OWENS HINTS STARTLING REVELATIONS MAY BE MADE TODAY

Three Greeks, Identities Unrevealed, are Sought in Hill District in Pittsburg as Police Await Coming of Chief Investigator — Homicide Squad Leader Checks Up Clues.

By PAUL E. BROKAW.

CANTON, O., July 28.—While authorities here were working feverishly today, striving to connect a few missing links in the evidence that is expected to lead to arrest of the slayers of Don R. Mellett, crusading Canton publisher, federal investigating agencies took a hand in the solution of the crime.

Captain A. P. Owens, postoffice inspector from Cleveland, said shortly after his arrival here that he "might have a startling revelation to make later in the day."

Asked if he was endeavoring to trace the threatening letters that have been received by certain investigators, or if he was trying to uncover the sender of an anonymous letter that contained valuable unchecked information on the slaying, the postal inspector declined to answer.

For several days, Ora Slater, private detective in charge of the investigation, and his cohorts have been able to place their hands upon at least one of the men connected with the murder.

Slater Seeks Confession.

Slater has declared, however, that he will arrest no one to be held on a "suspicious person charge" until a confession is gained, but that the first arrest made by him will be made on a warrant charging murder.

In order to complete the chain of evidence, Earl Hexamer, acting chief of police, and Slater today will indulge in a wholesale grilling of underworld characters to date have escaped questioning.

PITTSBURGH, July 28.—Three Pittsburgh Greeks, identities unrevealed, were being sought in the Hill district, Pittsburgh's "bad lands," today, as police awaited the arrival of Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, leader in the search for the slayers of Don Mellett, Canton, O., publisher.

Peter Connors, head of the homicide squad, announced that the three men were to be questioned "to check up on a very strong chain of evidence," which he said local police had against the men.

Search for the men was begun following a telephone conversation between Connors and Slater, in which the latter said that he would arrive in Pittsburgh late today or Thursday to aid in the search.

PALESTINE AID SOUGHT HERE

Appeal Campaign Will be Launched Sunday Night.

Campaign to raise East Liverpool's quota in the proposed $5,000,000 fund to rebuild Palestine as the Jewish homeland, will open at a meeting to be held in the Odd Fellows temple at 6 o'clock Sunday evening, when team leaders will be named.

I. A. Swiss, Pittsburgh attorney and leader in the Zionist movement, and others will speak. Rabbi L. Kurland, who recently took charge of the B'Nai Jacob congregation, will present a musical program.

Plans for the United Palestine appeal campaign here were discussed at a recent meeting held at the home of Campaign Chairman Meyer Reich, Woodlawn avenue.

I. J. Williams, field secretary of the United Palestine Appeal movement for western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia attended the session. Meyer Reich, Rev. L. Kurland, Morris Sarbin, Benjamin Wolk, Harry Gordon, M. I. Bennett, Julius Sulkes, Morris Resnick and Maurice H. Reich, members of the local committee were present.

The movement to rebuild the Palestine country has been a dream for almost 2,000 years but has become a reality since the World War. Six presidents—Coolidge, Wilson, Roosevelt, Harding, Harrison and Adams have endorsed the movement. Approximately 60,000 Jewish settlers are expected to take up their residence in the land within the next year.

COUNTY'S 1927 HIGHWAY PROGRAM WILL INCLUDE 23 MILES OF GRADING AND 18 MILES OF PAVING

The Columbiana county road program in 1927 will include 41 miles of improvement—23 miles of grading and 18 miles of paving—it was announced today at Lisbon.

Acting under a resolution adopted by the commissioners, County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk is peparing to make surveys and draft plans for the program.

Improvement of 24.80 miles of county highway by grading and surfacing, at a cost of approximately $600,000, was on this year's program.

Adhering closely to plan outlined before the $950,000 bond issue was approved, the following are to be included in the 1927 program for grading:

Lisbon-Salineville road from Gavers south to connect with the improved Wellsville-Salineville road, distance five and one-third miles.

Elkton-Clarkson road east from Elkton, distance five miles.

Signal-Rogers-Negley road from Signal eastward to Negley, distance four and three-quarter miles.

East Liverpool-East Palestine road in St. Clair and Middleton townships, distance four miles, and probably over a new route to be determined by the state highway department.

Westville south to North Georgetown, distance four miles.

Paving contracts to be awarded for completion in 1927 will include seven miles of the Salem-Hanover road and the Summitville-Salineville highway to the Salineville corporate line, a distance of four miles, and Williamsport north to Rogers, a distance of seven miles.

On account of heavy fills being made on grading jobs this year, and for which paving contracts have also been awarded, it is probable that an order will be issued by the state highway department to allow these fills to settle, and then proceed with the paving as soon as the weather permits.

With the completion of the 1927 program, roads listed for grading and paving under the scheme outlined before the bond issue went to a vote, will be improved. In the jobs next year, county, state and federal funds will be used.

In addition to the straight grading and paving work being done this year, the county is participating in the construction of a bridge on the Harrisville-Westville road to the extent of $2,271.

County's Highway.

The Columbiana-Waterford road now under construction for a distance of 2.65 miles was awarded on a bid of $69,173, while the two miles of the East Rochester-North Georgetown road will cost $50,890. The contract for the 2.75 miles of the North Georgetown-Salem road was awarded on a bid of $99,132 and the half mile of the Wellsville-Salineville road within the corporate limits of Salineville cost $18,597. Three contracts on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road, covering a distance of 11 miles, totalled $279,488. The Cleveland-East Liverpool highway, or the improvement on the Goshen road out of Salem, was awarded on a bid of $52,000 and covers a distance of 1.65 miles. One mile of grading on the Summitville-Salineville road was let at a price of $11,000. There is also being spent $3,750 on 1.75 miles of the Springfield-Unity road and $2,089 on a quarter of a mile on the Canfield-Columbiana road in Fairfield township.

U. S. PROBES MELLETT KILLING

Today

Lincoln's Son Dead.
Mexico's Religious War.
In Asia Is Japan.
A Refined Gunman.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

THIS country will hear with regret of the death of Robert T. Lincoln, who died in Vermont Sunday at the age of 82. The name of Lincoln is sacred to every American, and the son of Abraham Lincoln, who has just died, bore his father's name with dignity.

He was a good American citizen, worthy of the nation that owes its continued existence to his great father.

THE war between the Mexican government and the Catholic church has reached an acute stage. Sunday morning it was announced that on August 1 religious services will cease in all Catholic churches in Mexico.

In each church a committee will be chosen from the congregation to take care of the building. Churches will be left open to the people to worship, but the priests will not officiate.

It is also suggested that those helping to enforce Mexican laws against the Catholic church will be excommunicated.

President Calles, of Mexico, replied to the threat of a religious boycott by accusing the Catholic church authorities of "plotting a revolt under the cloak of religion." Calles says the boycott will fail and threatens to jail eight bishops of the Catholic church in Mexico.

THE world will watch with interest this battle between the Mexican government and the Catholic church, first of its kind in many years.

The cessation of all religious services in Mexico will undoubtedly cause turmoil and distress among all classes. Mexican Indians especially will resent being deprived of services which they believe essential to their spiritual welfare. The Christian religion was forced upon them originally by Spanish conquerors, and much bloodshed in many cases accompanied the process.

But the Indians are now devout Christians, often more earnest in their faith than people of European extraction.

The threat of the Catholic church to boycott all of those that enforce the anti-Catholic laws in Mexico is also serious, more so than Protestants ordinarily would understand.

Such a thunderbolt of the church may not possess in these cynical agnostic days the power that brought an excommunicated German emperor over the mountains in winter to stand barefoot in the snow at Canossa, beneath the pope's window, begging for a pardon. But in the minds of devout Catholics, to be excommunicated is to endure spiritual death, and the threat will be powerful.

The American people and government, of course, have no right to tell Mexico what law shall be made as regards Mexican affairs, but the confiscation of the great properties of the Catholic church in Mexico without remuneration is surprising to Americans. When this country took over the Philippines, and thus deprived the Catholic church of certain rights and possible income, the United States government paid the sum of eight million dollars to Rome, by way of damages.

V. A. SCHREIBER SAYS GOVERNOR IGNORES VICE IN RIVER CITY

Refers to Lack of Action in Jefferson County Murders.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

Mellett Killing is Discussed at Primary Campaign Rally.

The action of Governor Donahey in sending a special investigator to Canton to probe the slaying of Don R. Mellett, crusading publisher of the Canton Daily News, while, he charged, the state executive is ignoring vice conditions in Jefferson county where 12 murders have been committed within six months, was condemned by V. A. Schreiber, superintendent of the Canton district of the Anti-Saloon league in an address before 75 men and women at a primary campaign rally under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. in the First Church of Christ last night.

Discusses Candidates' Qualifications.

"The Canton murder has been given a whole lot of publicity because Mellett was a newspaper man," said Schreiber. "Governor Donahey's special investigator was on the job within a day or two after the murder. Did any of you people ever hear of the governor sending a state man into Jefferson county to make an investigation of 12 murders which have taken place there within a short period of six months?"

The main purpose of Schreiber's visit to East Liverpool was to discuss qualifications of candidates who are seeking the nomination at the primaries on Tuesday, August 10. His subject was "The Coming Election and Municipal Affairs."

"We hear so much howling from the wet camp these days that prohibition cannot be enforced," said Schreiber. "Every wet you talk to says the law is non-enforceable and at the same time is one of those who is violating the law himself.

"Those who have had the appointing powers for prohibition jobs have been placing wet men in the place. In other words, enemies of prohibition are being placed in a position to enforce the law with which they are not in sympathy. Is it any wonder that enforcement is made difficult?

Cites Murder Statistics.

"We have 10,000 murders in the United States every year. Statistics show that one per cent of the murder-

The story, as pieced together by the police, starts in Newark where McCoy became infatuated with Miss Hardman. Both were employed by a rug firm there.

Miss Hardman, resenting these attentions, left Newark three months ago for Montreal whither McCoy followed her. The shooting which resulted in teh death of McCoy is believed by police to have followed an altercation between the couple.

McCoy, police said, was a married man.

By PAUL E. BROKAW.

CANTON, O., July 28.—While authorities here were working feverishly today, striving to connect a few missing links in the evidence that is expected to lead to arrest of the slayers of Don R. Mellett, crusading Canton publisher, federal investigating agencies took a hand in the solution of the crime.

Captain A. P. Owens, postoffice inspector from Cleveland, said shortly after his arrival here that he "might have a startling revelation to make later in the day."

Asked if he was endeavoring to trace the threatening letters that have been received by certain investigators, or if he was trying to uncover the sender of an anonymous letter that contained valuable unchecked information on the slaying, the postal inspector declined to answer.

For several days, Ora Slater, private detective in charge of the investigation, and his cohorts have been able to place their hands upon at least one of the men connected with the murder.

FOUR MEN HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Alleged Dry Violators Placed Under Bond at Weirton.

Ernest Conrons, Theodore Andreadakas and Louis Thiseans, charged with violating the prohibition law, were held for the grand jury at a hearing before Justice Morgan Jones at Weirton. Bond was fixed at $1,000 with $50 additional not to violate the state dry laws.

The men were arrested in a raid conducted by officers on the old Freshwater farm near the Tope school. Two large stills with complete equipment, 180 gallons of liquor in addition to large quantities of grain and mash were confiscated.

Joseph Valensky was arraigned before Justice William Fleming on a charge of possessing moonshine liquor. He was held to await the action of the grand jury in bond of $1,000. He was arrested in Holliday's Cove.

BAPTISTS PLAN STATE SESSIONS

Baptist leaders of Hancock county will attend the annual convention of the West Virginia Baptist assembly at Broaddus college, Philippi, on August 17 to 23.

Each church will be represented by a delegation, it was said today.

Among the prominent speakers at the assembly are: Dr. W. E. Chalmers, of the American Baptist Publication society, Philadelphia; Prof. Kyle M. Yates, instructor in the Southern Baptist Theological seminary, Louisville, Ky.; Prof. H. W. Barras, instructor at the Eastern Baptist Theological seminary, Philadelphia; Miss Mildred Kaminski, field worker for Woman's Baptist Missionary societies; Frank McCravy, Laurens, S. C., music specialist.

Rev. A. B. Withers, Parkersburg, will be dean. He also will be dean of the West Virginia Baptist Girls' encampment to be held at Alderson August 8 to 13.

Miss Virginia Withers, daughter of the state director, will officiate at the Alderson encampment, which will be held at Alderson Baptist Junior college. She will head a departmental course for workers with juniors. Miss Grace White, also of Parkersburg, will act as instructor and leader in church music including, evangelistic music.

COVE STATION TO BE ABANDONED

The Pennsylvania railroad has posted notices of the abandonment of its non-agency station at Hollidays Cove which will become effective August 12th. Notices of abandonment were first issued May 14th to which no protests were filed.

Provision for abandonment proceedings were made at a meeting of the West Virginia public service commission April 22. Thus will pass out of existence one of the oldest stations on the Pennsylvania.

The right of way through the old Hindman property was secured when provision was made for a station to be located near the same property. It was the opinion of many older residents that the old station could not be abandoned because of the old agreement.

If any such argument existed it was only during the life of Samuel Hindman from whom the right of way was secured. It is also probable that a station existed here during the period the Hollidays Cove railroad was in existence from 1846 to 1848, which extended only from a point above Collier to the Ohio river near Wheeling Junction.

ATTORNEY FINED FOR SPEEDING

Attorney Robert Wilkin, of Wellsburg, was fined $16.25 when arraigned on a charge of speeding before Mayor C. S. Cattrell, of Holliday's Cove. He announced that he would appeal the decision.

Attorney Wilkin, accompanied by his brother, James Wilkin, prosecuting attorney of Brooke county, it was charged were driving at a rapid rate through Weirton and Holliday's Cove in order to make connections with a lake steamer at Cleveland. They were arrested by Officer John Matheny.

The Excel, a two-gallon pure aluminum lined electric cooker for a family of five—an invention that gives the housewife more time for pleasure and means the end to "hurry home to get dinner"—will be placed on sale Friday by the Ohio Power company at its Fourth and Washington streets office.

This cooker, which prepares a full meal, keeps food hot all day and connects anywhere, will be sold on a sliding scale basis during the introductory campaign. The price of the first cooker will be $3.90, and 5 cents will be added to the second, 10 cents to the third, 15 cents to the fourth, etc., until the $6.50 mark is reached. The ordinary sale price is $10.

This invention bakes brown buns, biscuits, bread, etc., as well as meat and vegetables. And it cooks for less by virtue of its stored heat principle.

Speaking of the new cooker, J. F. Malone, commercial manager of the Ohio Power company, said:

"No watching, no turning nor basting are necessary in the use of an Excel. Housewives will be enabled to get out of the kitchen during the summer days, keep on their pretty street clothes, eat with the family like company and enjoy their own cooking.

"It is unnecessary to stay home to cook. Merely place the roast, potatoes, vegetables and pudding in the cooker—turn on the current according to the chart. By the time the mother or wife is dressed for the street it will be about time to turn the current off and she is free for hours, while the Excel continues to cook by stored heat.

COVE STATION TO BE ABANDONED

The Pennsylvania railroad has posted notices of the abandonment of its non-agency station at Hollidays Cove which will become effective August 12th. Notices of abandonment were first issued May 14th to which no protests were filed.

Provision for abandonment proceedings were made at a meeting of the West Virginia public service commission April 22. Thus will pass out of existence one of the oldest stations on the Pennsylvania.

The right of way through the old Hindman property was secured when provision was made for a station to be located near the same property. It was the opinion of many older residents that the old station could not be abandoned because of the old agreement.

If any such argument existed it was only during the life of Samuel Hindman from whom the right of way was secured. It is also probable that a station existed here during the period the Hollidays Cove railroad was in existence from 1846 to 1848, which extended only from a point above Collier to the Ohio river near Wheeling Junction.

ATTORNEY FINED FOR SPEEDING

Attorney Robert Wilkin, of Wellsburg, was fined $16.25 when arraigned on a charge of speeding before Mayor C. S. Cattrell, of Holliday's Cove. He announced that he would appeal the decision.

Attorney Wilkin, accompanied by his brother, James Wilkin, prosecuting attorney of Brooke county, it was charged were driving at a rapid rate through Weirton and Holliday's Cove in order to make connections with a lake steamer at Cleveland. They were arrested by Officer John Matheny.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX.

As the meal dragged along, Lou found herself picking a way through a tangle of unaccustomed conversational paths. Mrs. Sayles talked of doctors, and how convenient it was, in her weakened condition, that a very sympathetic one lived in the next apartment house. And of churches. The pastor of the mission parish near by preached beautiful sermons. A most comforting man. But this thought led unhappily near the ever-ready tear-ducts. Soon there would be no Wilbur to sit in the pew with her.

"I'm sorry to seem so unhappy,"—it was a thin, shaky voice,—"but when you've been through as much as I have, Miss—my—"

It was an opening, and nerving herself, Louise grasped it—reaching firmly over the table and clasping one of those plump hands: "Surely you're going to call me by my name," she said in a gentle voice. Wilbur flashed a nervous look at her, but she didn't flinch.

"I don't even know wh-what it is!"

"Louise. But the people I'm fond of call me Lou."

Wilbur was shooting wild glances. The swift thought came to Louise that his nerves might really crack. And that wouldn't do. So she said quickly: "It happened all at once. I can't tell you how strange it is to—to us too. But life seems to be like that. A man and a woman can work side by side for years, and then something happens that makes them realize they"—she couldn't stop now—"love each other." She kept her eyes resolutely away from Wilbur. If they were to meet his at this moment, she herself might crack. She could easily have burst into hysterical laughter. She made herself squeeze that limp, fat hand.

"But I'm so utterly in the dark," wailed Mrs. Sayles. "I don't even know when you're planning to be m-married."

"Oh, not right away," said Lou reassuringly.

Wilbur, at this point, with a movement so sudden that the other two started, pushed back his plate, laid down his knife and fork, and stared at them. His sensitive mouth was set queerly. Flecks of color appeared on his cheeks. "What if I were to tell you—" he began in a breathy voice.

Louise desperately finished that sentence for him.

"—that we aren't to be married for at least a year." She hurried on. "We—we've talked that all out. Of course I'm busy, and there are a great many things I couldn't let go of all at once. It wouldn't be fair. And then there are still some things I must do for my own father and mother." At that Mrs. Sayles, sensing a familiar contact, looked closely at her through the tears, then glanced with knit brows at her rigid son.

Moodily, Wilbur drew his plate toward him, and with listless fingers, very slowly, picked up his knife and fork. The moment had passed. Louise could readily have sunk back limply to catch her breath, but that wouldn't do. She must keep on the alert every second.

Mrs. Sayles was puzzled. The tears weren't running now. She wiped her stained cheeks, and then turned almost sharply to her son. "That," she remarked, going straight to the heart of the matter, "isn't what you were going to say, Wilbur.

Doggedly he reached for his water glass and drank. Then, avoiding Louise's eyes, he turned to his mother, nerved himself to look straight at her, and replied: "Yes, Mother, that maybe more. So there's time enough was it. It will be a year at least—to—to work everything out."

The most painful moment of all came when Wilbur was paying the check and the two women were standing in the doorway. Mrs. Sayles rested a hand on Louise's strong young arm and looked straight into her face. It was a searching, uncompromising look. But as if of long habit, the full mouth worked, and tears were again near those eyes. "Do you love my boy?" she asked.

There was only one thing to do. Louise returned the look, replying directly and simply: "Yes, I love him." But she sensed, for the first time in her life, how murderers feel.

Again they had the slow walk back, solicitously guiding this woman who could be as helpless as she chose. At the steps of the old brownstone house, behind the drug store, Wilbur said, huskily: "I'll let you into the flat, mother, and then take Louise home."

So together they helped her up. She mounted those two flights alone several times every day, but now it seemed all she could do to get up. Louise kissed her goodnight, and then the two of them went briskly down to the street. Once on the welcome sidewalk, Louise drew off the ring and held it out to him, saying only: "I'll go down alone, Wilbur, if you don't mind."

"But,"—he was thinking lamely,—"I told her I'd—"

"No. Please! Here's the ring."

"But I'm afraid I—can't take it very well."

"I can't keep it."

"I know." His voice faltered. "You see, it wouldn't be safe with me. Sometimes she looks in my pockets. I couldn't be sure. I mean if I was asleep."

"Very well; I'll keep it tonight, and you can take it at the office in the morning." She snapped her bag shut on it.

"That would be better. If you don't mind."

"I don't mind. Good night."

"I don't know just what I'm going to do. You see, I said I was going with you. Perhaps I shouldn't have. But I can't very well go back up there. Besides, I—well, the less I'm up there tonight, the better. Though there are other nights coming—hundreds of 'em!" He sighed.

"I know." Louise felt as much pity for him as her strained nerves permitted. But she was near hysteria. "But you can stay out awhile, can't you?"

"Yes. I could do that."

"There are plenty of movie houses up here. I can't talk now. You be very careful what you say, Wilbur."

"I know. I pretty nearly spilled the beans in the restaurant. But I just couldn't stand it, all you were doing, and everything."

"Good night, Wilbur." Louise walked rapidly off to the elevated. Her shortness with him was sheer defensive instinct. For she had him to handle along with the mother. It was a sizable contract. And this new uncertainty in her long-established sense of command—it had never weakened before—was a disconcerting new factor in the situation. On the platform, waiting for a train, she leaned weakly against a pillar. "What if that woman ever found out about Leslie!" raced through her thoughts: And then, the one little word that was in itself an outlet passed her lips:

"Gosh!"

WORLD HOBO CONVENTION TO HAVE ORATIONS ON HIGHER EDUCATION

DENVER, Colo.—World hoboes are preparing to stage their fall convention in Denver.

The International Brotherhood Welfare association—the hobo's fraternity, not to be outdone by Rotary international, High Twelve, the American Bar association and other organizations, will hold its 1926 convention in Denver.

Some of the hoboes are already on the ground, but no definite date has been set for the opening session.

Walking delegates of the association will walk here from points east, west, north and south some time in the fall and the call to order of the convention depends entirely upon their arrival.

A strong movement in order to revive the hobo college of New York's Bowery is under way, according to some of those already here. The Chicago hobo college is proving a success, they say, but the class rooms are getting crowded and besides food there is one thing the hoboes like better and that is plenty of room.

There will be plenty of oratory at the fall convention, according to advance notices and it will deal mostly with higher education.

Six planes are being used on the new Paris-Marseille air line, and cover the distance in about eight hours.

When you notice that they keep the back curtain down in the flivver they are riding in, one can be safe in betting it is a movable love nest.—Newark American-Tribune.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX.

As the meal dragged along, Lou found herself picking a way through a tangle of unaccustomed conversational paths. Mrs. Sayles talked of doctors, and how convenient it was, in her weakened condition, that a very sympathetic one lived in the next apartment house. And of churches. The pastor of the mission parish near by preached beautiful sermons. A most comforting man. But this thought led unhappily near the ever-ready tear-ducts. Soon there would be no Wilbur to sit in the pew with her.

"I'm sorry to seem so unhappy,"—it was a thin, shaky voice,—"but when you've been through as much as I have, Miss—my—"

It was an opening, and nerving herself, Louise grasped it—reaching firmly over the table and clasping one of those plump hands: "Surely you're going to call me by my name," she said in a gentle voice. Wilbur flashed a nervous look at her, but she didn't flinch.

"I don't even know wh-what it is!"

"Louise. But the people I'm fond of call me Lou."

Wilbur was shooting wild glances. The swift thought came to Louise that his nerves might really crack. And that wouldn't do. So she said quickly: "It happened all at once. I can't tell you how strange it is to—to us too. But life seems to be like that. A man and a woman can work side by side for years, and then something happens that makes them realize they"—she couldn't stop now—"love each other." She kept her eyes resolutely away from Wilbur. If they were to meet his at this moment, she herself might crack. She could easily have burst into hysterical laughter. She made herself squeeze that limp, fat hand.

"But I'm so utterly in the dark," wailed Mrs. Sayles. "I don't even know when you're planning to be m-married."

"Oh, not right away," said Lou reassuringly.

Wilbur, at this point with a movement so sudden that the other two started, pushed back his plate, laid down his knife and fork, and stared at them. His sensitive mouth was set queerly. Flecks of color appeared on his cheeks. "What if I were to tell you—" he began in a breathy voice.

Louise desperately finished that sentence for him.

"—that we aren't to be married for at least a year." She hurried on. "We—we've talked that all out. Of course I'm busy, and there are a great many things I couldn't let go of all at once. It wouldn't be fair. And then there are still some things I must do for my own father and mother." At that Mrs. Sayles, sensing a familiar contact, looked closely at her through the tears, then glanced with knit brows at her rigid son.

Moodily, Wilbur drew his plate toward him, and with listless fingers, very slowly, picked up his knife and fork. The moment had passed. Louise could readily have sunk back limply to catch her breath, but that wouldn't do. She must keep on the alert every second.

Mrs. Sayles was puzzled. The tears weren't running now. She wiped her stained cheeks, and then turned almost sharply to her son. "That," she remarked, going straight to the heart of the matter, "isn't what you were going to say, Wilbur.

Doggedly he reached for his water glass and drank. Then, avoiding Louise's eyes, he turned to his mother, nerved himself to look straight at her, and replied: "Yes, Mother, that maybe more. So there's time enough was it. It will be a year at least—to—to work everything out."

The most painful moment of all came when Wilbur was paying the check and the two women were standing in the doorway. Mrs. Sayles rested a hand on Louise's strong young arm and looked straight into her face. It was a searching, uncompromising look. But as if of long habit, the full mouth worked, and tears were again near those eyes. "Do you love my boy?" she asked.

There was only one thing to do. Louise returned the look, replying directly and simply: "Yes, I love him." But she sensed, for the first time in her life, how murderers feel.

Again they had the slow walk back, solicitously guiding this woman who could be as helpless as she chose. At the steps of the old brownstone house, behind the drug store, Wilbur said, huskily: "I'll let you into the flat, mother, and then take Louise home."

So together they helped her up. She mounted those two flights alone several times every day, but now it seemed all she could do to get up. Louise kissed her goodnight, and then the two of them went briskly down to the street. Once on the welcome sidewalk, Louise drew off the ring and held it out to him, saying only: "I'll go down alone, Wilbur, if you don't mind."

"But,"—he was thinking lamely,—"I told her I'd—"

"No. Please! Here's the ring."

"But I'm afraid I—can't take it very well."

"I can't keep it."

"I know." His voice faltered. "You see, it wouldn't be safe with me. Sometimes she looks in my pockets. I couldn't be sure. I mean if I was asleep."

"Very well; I'll keep it tonight, and you can take it at the office in the morning." She snapped her bag shut on it.

"That would be better. If you don't mind."

"I don't mind. Good night."

"I don't know just what I'm going to do. You see, I said I was going with you. Perhaps I shouldn't have. But I can't very well go back up there. Besides, I—well, the less I'm up there tonight, the better. Though there are other nights coming—hundreds of 'em!" He sighed.

"I know." Louise felt as much pity for him as her strained nerves permitted. But she was near hysteria. "But you can stay out awhile, can't you?"

"Yes. I could do that."

"There are plenty of movie houses up here. I can't talk now. You be very careful what you say, Wilbur."

"I know. I pretty nearly spilled the beans in the restaurant. But I just couldn't stand it, all you were doing, and everything."

"Good night, Wilbur." Louise walked rapidly off to the elevated. Her shortness with him was sheer defensive instinct. For she had him to handle along with the mother. It was a sizable contract. And this new uncertainty in her long-established sense of command—it had never weakened before—was a disconcerting new factor in the situation. On the platform, waiting for a train, she leaned weakly against a pillar. "What if that woman ever found out about Leslie!" raced through her thoughts: And then, the one little word that was in itself an outlet passed her lips:

"Gosh!"

WORLD HOBO CONVENTION TO HAVE ORATIONS ON HIGHER EDUCATION

DENVER, Colo.—World hoboes are preparing to stage their fall convention in Denver.

The International Brotherhood Welfare association—the hobo's fraternity, not to be outdone by Rotary international, High Twelve, the American Bar association and other organizations, will hold its 1926 convention in Denver.

Some of the hoboes are already on the ground, but no definite date has been set for the opening session.

Walking delegates of the association will walk here from points east west, north and south some time in the fall and the call to order of the convention depends entirely upon their arrival.

A strong movement in order to revive the hobo college of New York's Bowery is under way, according to some of those already here. The Chicago hobo college is proving a success, they say, but the class rooms are getting crowded and besides food there is one thing the hoboes like better and that is plenty of room.

There will be plenty of oratory at the fall convention, according to advance notices and it will deal mostly with higher education.

Six planes are being used on the new Paris-Marseille air line, and cover the distance in about eight hours.

When you notice that they keep the back curtain down in the flivver they are riding in, one can be safe in betting it is a movable love nest.—Newark American-Tribune.

Deadline For Absent Voters

Columbiana county electors who expect to be away from their home precinct on primary day, Tuesday, August 10, have three more days in which to apply for ballots under the provisions of the absent voter's law.

Already many applications for the privilege of exercising the suffrage right have been received from vacationists and others by the deputy state supervisors, but the total is less than two years ago.

Balloting under this law begins 30 days before and ends on the third day prior to the election. Thus the polls for absent voters opened on July 11 and will close Saturday, July 31. Ballots marked before a notary public or election board official must be returned to the elector's home precinct before the polls close at 6:30 p. m. on primary day.

It is a qualified voter's duty to participate in the selection of his party's ticket for the November election. Republicans and Democrats who are out-of-town should apply at once for ballot supplies if they expect to vote. Otherwise they have no right to complain if they are disappointed in the results of the primaries.

Farm Prospects.

The purchasing power of the American farmer was greater last year than at any time since the deflation period began in 1920—and 1926 has an even chance to bring a continuance of this comparative prosperity.

There is a big winter wheat crop and although the spring planting has suffered by reason of drouth in some sections, there should still be an exportable surplus of 150 million bushels of the preferred cereal.

Corn has not promised so well, but recent rains have greatly improved the situation. The fall farrowing of hogs will be unusually large and a good market for corn, which must always be considered in its relation to live stock, is thus assured.

The tobacco crop compares well with last year's and the cotton crop looks like a big one. There will be less hay, oats and barley but more white potatoes. The peach crop threatens to be the largest in our history, while poultry and dairying, which every year become more important factors in farm income, promise increased return.

There have been bigger crop years, and years of better prices, but the fruits of the farmer's labor will at least sustain his purchasing power at the levels of the past 12 months.

And that means that every business in the country—industrial or commercial—can face the future confidently.

Inspiration From Austria

Austria has never been regarded as a particularly progressive land. The old empire has produced great generals and musicians, notable surgeons and inventors, but the centuries of Hapsburg rule were not productive of governmental innovations and the world has never looked to Vienna for political or business inspiration.

Now, however, the Austrian committee of the Vienna Chamber of Commerce has framed a report to the trade barriers committee of the International Chamber of Commerce which commands respect.

The report points out how the great war destroyed the network of commercial traties which regulated and facilitated international trade and intercourse, and emphasizes the ways in which the instinctive jealousies of the new nations and their natural desires to protect and further their own interests have prevented a reweaving of the fabric. As a result all central Europe is suffering from complications of customs formalities and tariff walls. Domestic business is hampered no less than foreign trade.

With this situation in mind, the Austrians suggest the drafting of a collective treaty which shall define personal and corporate rights, eliminate multiple taxation of individuals and commodities, standardize passport requirements and consular authority, simplify navigation on international waterways, remove general prohibitions or restrictions of trade, and lay down rules for the conduct of financial transactions.

A treaty such as this, entered into collectively, would be the first, and might be the determining step toward a European customs union, and such a union ought, in the nature of things, to contribute largely to the establishment of an economic union which, in turn, would bring an enduring peace.

The fact that the suggestion comes from Austria may occasion some surprise, but it should not diminish the world's desire to see it tried.

The Ax For Will

The Prince of Wales, it develops, is not only a beau ideal but an effective joker. He handed Will Rogers one the other day which landed just about where Rogers deserved to have it, for all the fun he has poked at the prince's horsemanship, when, as everybody in England knows, its the horse, not the prince, that falls.

Wales, while doing the London honors for the roughneck American humorist, remarked gently to a listening world:

"What a pity it is that people are no longer beheaded in the Tower of London! We would like to know what Mr. Rogers would say when he felt the cold steel of an ax at the back of his neck."

The genial Will actually shrunk up and shuddered when he heard that. He's naturally a bit sensitive about that neck, anyway, but ordinarily doesn't think of axes.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 28.—The passing of Louis Sherry several weeks ago removed another illustrious name from that galaxy of epicurean stars who dazzled the Manhattan gourmets less than a decade ago. Delmonico, Rector, Shanley and Sherry.

Old Sherry's on Fifth avenue—now a bank—was one of the high spots of the town. It was where Little Egypt appeared at the famous Seeley dinner. The tables at the street windows abloom with flowers were reserved for men whose names are known all over the world—Stanford White, Berry Wall, the fashion plate, George Gould and others.

Here they looked out on the surging avenue promenade. Gossip weeklies picked up most of their salacious chit-chat amid the heavy hangings. The avenue had not yet gleamed with the brilliant red of the five and ten and the clop-clop of cobbed horses still smote the ears.

The banquet rooms were scenes of those Lucretian feasts that sometimes reached orgies and the front pages. High-flinging youth gathered at Sherry's at five o'clock to wet their cocktail appetites with the famous salted nuts on the bar.

The waiters, like those at Dear Old Del's cater-cornered across the way, were old friends and had turned gray in service. They were mostly Irish for the Greeks, French and Italians had not yet taken up the calling. They were Mikes, Pats and Johns.

The debacle of this restaurant world of the early nineties set in with prohibition. The process was slow and the proprietors as well as the old servitors waited hopefully, but popularity waned until three days before Sherry's closed only two faithful diners graced the dining room.

Sherry finally realized the palace of gourmandisers had had its day. A new area had been launched and he began the operation of a chain of candy stores. He had made several millions. Today the glittering chandeliers adorn a mid-western motion picture theatre.

Healey's at 66th street outlived most popular restaurants of its day. It is now bidding for patronage under a new name. In the old days it was run by Tom Healey, a genial Irishman who had an all-night license. He made several spectacular resistances to police interference after the dry law but business fell away. It was not unusual to see patrons leaving Healey's in the brilliant sunshine of an early morning. Bennie Uberall, a suave little head waiter, knew everybody of importance and to be admitted to Healey's after 2 o'clock was a mark of worldly distinction.

Then there was the original Bustanoby's on West 29th street. Another brother, Jacques, ran the Beaux Arts and still another brother, Pierre, the uptown Bustanoby's which gained such popularity with its black and white room. Vernon and Irene Castle had danced into the town with their ball room capers. Joan Sawyer and Mae Murray were also in the ascendancy as dancers. But it was the 39th street Bustanoby's that had the swift movement and color few cafes attain. It was the lair of under-graduates of the loose—just in from Princeton and New Haven with bull dog pipes and postage stamp caps. Often some sophomore inspired to leadership after two swigs of gin decided he would lead the orchestra. Instead he was led out into the hall and lifted across the sidewalk with a well placed kick. The ambulance often backed up to Bustanoby's to trundle off some young man who would miss chapel the next morning. They treated the collegiate rough but they came back for more and the rest of the town came to see the scrimmages.

One should not end such antiquarian ramblings without recalling Beefsteak Charlie's, so popular among race track followers of that period. I believe it is about the only one to survive.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A NOTED RUSSIAN SCULPTOR.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington, D. C., July 28.—The rise of a Russian peasant to become, at the age of forty-two, the most sought after sculptor in official circles of Washington, is a romance of art which indicates that the United States, although scorned by many Europeans as very backward in matters of the fine arts, is actually an art center where talent and energy can and do win their way to success. The National Gallery of Art at Washington holds half a dozen marble portraits by this young sculptor, the National capitol has others, and he is coming to be referred to as the sculptor of presidents since he has portrayed Harding and Coolidge among many other American notables.

All that Moses Wainer Dykaar, the sculptor in question, has accomplished during his ten years in this country has been done without any sacrifice of his art to commercialism, or any of the other drawbacks commonly said to harass the artist in this country. Mr. Dykaar is in fact, decidedly a temperamental person, and he pursues his art very much in his own way. His most recent work has been a bust of Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and he is completing a bust of former Senator Owen, of Oklahoma. In the Capitol his work is represented by busts of Thomas R. Marshall and Champ Clark, and his marble likeness of President Coolidge will have its place there, because as a former Vice President the congress will add it to the collection of sculptured portraits of men who have held that office.

Dykaar was born at Vilna, Russia, of Jewish parents, in 1884, one of ten children. As with most artists, his life has been one of struggle for recognition and for a living. Twenty years ago he went to Paris to study, and in order to study he had to work for a living. He became an expert marble worker, and long before any creative work of his own had reached the exhibit halls his skill as a workman had commanded the respect of experts in that line.

Years of study, chiefly under Raoul Verlet, perfected his art, and in time he was able to exhibit in the salons. He followed the modern school, though never a radical post-impressionist. Rodin was to some degree his ideal. Portrait sculpture became his goal, portraits which should not be photographs, but character portraits, imprisoning in marble and bronze both the features and the character of his subjects. He strove, as others have and are striving, to perpetuate in this art a result which show not merely what men or women looked like, but what manner of folk they were.

Not a Business Man.

Ten years ago he came to America, still poor and but little recognized. His first substantial friend, perhaps, was Champ Clark, who joked with him about art and his temperament, but encouraged him in every friendly way. His busts of Clark and of Marshall won him wide recognition, but commissions came slowly, and too much temperament spoiled what might have been substantial orders from persons of wealth. Like others artists, he was not a business man, and he had and still has ideas which to some business men appear stubborn.

An example of this developed in a commission to make a marble bust of a founder of a famous business, who died just as the work was completed. His successor in the business wanted the marble bust somewhat changed. He was not satisfied with the hair. He told Dykaar to change it.

"Mon Dieu!" exclaimed the sculptor, or words to that effect. "What would you say if I, who never spent five minutes in your business, should tell you that you do it wrong? But you, who never spent five minutes as a sculptor, tell me how to do it. I have given my whole life to it. I will not change a hair." Many months, and the friendly offices of a great museum director, finally calmed the irate millionaire and the bust was accepted as the artist had made it.

For another subject, a statesman in Washington, Dykaar had almost finished a portrait bust, when he decided the work was not satisfactory. At what would have been the final sitting he announced that he would destroy the work and begin again.

"You will not begin again on me," said the statesman. "I am through with these sittings and I will not have any more. The bust is good enough for me."

Dykaar ranted and raved. Friends and acquaintances of the statesman saw the bust, and declared it a marvelous piece of work. The artist persisted in declaring he would destroy it. Friends of the subject, who knew he was quite as stubborn as the artist and would probably never sit for another statue, intervened and saved the work, which is widely admired. Dykaar has since admitted that perhaps it is not so bad, but it does not suit him.

Likes Marshall and Longworth.

Former Vice President Marshall and Nicholas Longworth he regards as among his most difficult subjects. He found their faces very changeable and hard to fix in one satisfactory expression. His first model of Marshall was full of the expression of humor so frequent in Marshall's face,

A TIME FOR ALL THINGS

It was an irate Iowa farmer of the old-fashioned type who sat him down, pen in hand, and wrote an indignant letter to a concern which made a specialty of selling plumbing supplies on individual orders to rural patrons.

"I have got a kick to make,"—thus the farmer wrote. "Early last spring your agent came through this district taking orders for your patent porcelain bath tub. Some of the neighbors gave him their names and so nothing would do but that my wife and daughter should have one for our house and they kept after me until I give your man my name too, and I told him to send me one of his tubs.

"Well, that was in the early part of April. April passed and also May and no sign of that bathtub. So I wrote to you tell you to hurry on up and deliver me that there tub. Nothing was done and so June went by and July and then August.

"And now here, when it's the middle of September and the bathing season practically over for the year, you people are trying to make me take that dern tub."

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

WEDNESDAY, JULY 28, 1926.

Deadline For Absent Voters

Columbiana county electors who expect to be away from their home precinct on primary day, Tuesday, August 10, have three more days in which to apply for ballots under the provisions of the absent voter's law.

Already many applications for the privilege of exercising the suffrage right have been received from vacationists and others by the deputy state supervisors, but the total is less than two years ago.

Balloting under this law begins 30 days before and ends on the third day prior to the election. Thus the polls for absent voters opened on July 11 and will close Saturday, July 31. Ballots marked before a notary public or election board official must be returned to the elector's home precinct before the polls close at 6:30 p. m. on primary day.

It is a qualified voter's duty to participate in the selection of his party's ticket for the November election. Republicans and Democrats who are out-of-town should apply at once for ballot supplies if they expect to vote. Otherwise they have no right to complain if they are disappointed in the results of the primaries.

Farm Prospects

The purchasing power of the American farmer was greater last year than at any time since the deflation period began in 1920—and 1926 has an even chance to bring a continuance of this comparative prosperity.

There is a big winter wheat crop and although the spring planting has suffered by reason of drouth in some sections, there should still be an exportable surplus of 150 million bushels of the preferred cereal.

Corn has not promised so well, but recent rains have greatly improved the situation. The fall farrowing of hogs will be unusually large and a good market for corn, which must always be considered in its relation to live stock, is thus assured.

The tobacco crop compares well with last year's and the cotton crop looks like a big one. There will be less hay, oats and barley but more white potatoes. The peach crop threatens to be the largest in our history, while poultry and dairying, which every year become more important factors in farm income, promise increased return.

There have been bigger crop years, and years of better prices, but the fruits of the farmer's labor will at least sustain his purchasing power at the levels of the past 12 months.

And that means that every business in the country—industrial or commercial—can face the future confidently.

Inspiration From Austria

Austria has never been regarded as a particularly progressive land. The old empire has produced great generals and musicians, notable surgeons and inventors, but the centuries of Hapsburg rule were not productive of governmental innovations and the world has never looked to Vienna for political or business inspiration.

Now, however, the Austrian committee of the Vienna Chamber of Commerce has framed a report to the trade barriers committee of the International Chamber of Commerce which commands respect.

The report points out how the great war destroyed the network of commercial traties which regulated and facilitated international trade and intercourse, and emphasizes the ways in which the instinctive jealousies of the new nations and their natural desires to protect and further their own interests have prevented a reweaving of the fabric. As a result all central Europe is suffering from complications of customs formalities and tariff walls. Domestic business is hampered no less than foreign trade.

With this situation in mind, the Austrians suggest the drafting of a collective treaty which shall define personal and corporate rights, eliminate multiple taxation of individuals and commodities, standardize passport requirements and consular authority, simplify navigation on international waterways, remove general prohibitions or restrictions of trade, and lay down rules for the conduct of financial transactions.

A treaty such as this, entered into collectively, would be the first, and might be the determining step toward a European customs union, and such a union ought, in the nature of things, to contribute largely to the establishment of an economic union which, in turn, would bring an enduring peace.

The fact that the suggestion comes from Austria may occasion some surprise, but it should not diminish the world's desire to see it tried.

The Ax For Will

The Prince of Wales, it develops, is not only a beau ideal but an effective joker. He handed Will Rogers one the other day which landed just about where Rogers deserved to have it, for all the fun he has poked at the prince's horsemanship, when, as everybody in England knows, its the horse, not the prince, that falls.

Wales, while doing the London honors for the roughneck American humorist, remarked gently to a listening world:

"What a pity it is that people are no longer beheaded in the Tower of London! We would like to know what Mr. Rogers would say when he felt the cold steel of an ax at the back of his neck."

The genial Will actually shrunk up and shuddered when he heard that. He's naturally a bit sensitive about that neck, anyway, but ordinarily doesn't think of axes.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 28.—The passing of Louis Sherry several weeks ago removed another illustrious name from that galaxy of epicurean stars who dazzled the Manhattan gourmets less than a decade ago. Delmonico, Rector, Shanley and Sherry.

Old Sherry's on Fifth avenue—now a bank—was one of the high spots of the town. It was where Little Egypt appeared at the famous Seeley dinner. The tables at the street windows abloom with flowers were reserved for men whose names are known all over the world—Stanford White, Berry Wall, the fashion plate, George Gould and others.

Here they looked out on the surging avenue promenade. Gossip weeklies picked up most of their salacious chit-chat amid the heavy hangings. The avenue had not yet gleamed with the brilliant red of the five and ten and the clop-clop of cobbed horses still smote the ears.

The banquet rooms were scenes of those Lucretian feasts that sometimes reached orgies and the front pages. High-flinging youth gathered at Sherry's at five o'clock to wet their cocktail appetites with the famous salted nuts on the bar.

The waiters, like those at Dear Old Del's cater-cornered across the way, were old friends and had turned gray in service. They were mostly Irish for the Greeks, French and Italians had not yet taken up the calling. They were Mikes, Pats and Johns.

The debacle of this restaurant world of the early nineties set in with prohibition. The process was slow and the proprietors as well as the old servitors waited hopefully, but popularity waned until three days before Sherry's closed only two faithful diners graced the dining room.

Sherry finally realized the palace of gourmandisers had had its day. A new area had been launched and he began the operation of a chain of candy stores. He had made several millions. Today the glittering chandeliers adorn a mid-western motion picture theatre.

Healey's at 66th street outlived most popular restaurants of its day. It is now bidding for patronage under a new name. In the old days it was run by Tom Healey, a genial Irishman who had an all-night license. He made several spectacular resistances to police interference after the dry law but business fell away. It was not unusual to see patrons leaving Healey's in the brilliant sunshine of an early morning. Bennie Uberall, a suave little head waiter, knew everybody of importance and to be admitted to Healey's after 2 o'clock was a mark of worldly distinction.

Then there was the original Bustanoby's on West 29th street. Another brother, Jacques, ran the Beaux Arts and still another brother, Pierre, the uptown Bustanoby's which gained such popularity with its black and white room. Vernon and Irene Castle had danced into the town with their ball room capers. Joan Sawyer and Mae Murray were also in the ascendancy as dancers. But it was the 39th street Bustanoby's that had the swift movement and color few cafes attain. It was the lair of under-graduates of the loose—just in from Princeton and New Haven with bull dog pipes and postage stamp caps. Often some sophomore inspired to leadership after two swigs of gin decided he would lead the orchestra. Instead he was led out into the hall and lifted across the sidewalk with a well placed kick. The ambulance often backed up to Bustanoby's to trundle off some young man who would miss chapel the next morning. They treated the collegiate rough but they came back for more and the rest of the town came to see the scrimmages.

One should not end such antiquarian ramblings without recalling Beefsteak Charlie's, so popular among race track followers of that period. I believe it is about the only one to survive.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A NOTED RUSSIAN SCULPTOR.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington, D. C., July 28.—The rise of a Russian peasant to become, at the age of forty-two, the most sought after sculptor in official circles of Washington, is a romance of art which indicates that the United States, although scorned by many Europeans as very backward in matters of the fine arts, is actually an art center where talent and energy can and do win their way to success. The National Gallery of Art at Washington holds half a dozen marble portraits by this young sculptor, the National capitol has others, and he is coming to be referred to as the sculptor of presidents since he has portrayed Harding and Coolidge among many other American notables.

All that Moses Wainer Dykaar, the sculptor in question, has accomplished during his ten years in this country has been done without any sacrifice of his art to commercialism, or any of the other drawbacks commonly said to harass the artist in this country. Mr. Dykaar is in fact, decidedly a temperamental person, and he pursues his art very much in his own way. His most recent work has been a bust of Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and he is completing a bust of former Senator Owen, of Oklahoma. In the Capitol his work is represented by busts of Thomas R. Marshall and Champ Clark, and his marble likeness of President Coolidge will have its place there, because as a former Vice President the congress will add it to the collection of sculptured portraits of men who have held that office.

Dykaar was born at Vilna, Russia, of Jewish parents, in 1884, one of ten children. As with most artists, his life has been one of struggle for recognition and for a living. Twenty years ago he went to Paris to study, and in order to study he had to work for a living. He became an expert marble worker, and long before any creative work of his own had reached the exhibit halls his skill as a workman had commanded the respect of experts in that line.

Years of study, chiefly under Raoul Verlet, perfected his art, and in time he was able to exhibit in the salons. He followed the modern school, though never a radical post-impressionist. Rodin was to some degree his ideal. Portrait sculpture became his goal, portraits which should not be photographs, but character portraits, imprisoning in marble and bronze both the features and the character of his subjects. He strove, as others have and are striving, to perpetuate in this art a result which show not merely what men or women looked like, but what manner of folk they were.

Not a Business Man.

Ten years ago he came to America, still poor and but little recognized. His first substantial friend, perhaps, was Champ Clark, who joked with him about art and his temperament, but encouraged him in every friendly way. His busts of Clark and of Marshall won him wide recognition, but commissions came slowly, and too much temperament spoiled what might have been substantial orders from persons of wealth. Like others artists, he was not a business man, and he had and still has ideas which to some business men appear stubborn.

An example of this developed in a commission to make a marble bust of a founder of a famous business, who died just as the work was completed. His successor in the business wanted the marble bust somewhat changed. He was not satisfied with the hair. He told Dykaar to change it.

"Mon Dieu!" exclaimed the sculptor, or words to that effect. "What would you say if I, who never spent five minutes in your business, should tell you that you do it wrong? But you, who never spent five minutes as a sculptor, tell me how to do it. I have given my whole life to it. I will not change a hair." Many months, and the friendly offices of a great museum director, finally calmed the irate millionaire and the bust was accepted as the artist had made it.

For another subject, a statesman in Washington, Dykaar had almost finished a portrait bust, when he decided the work was not satisfactory. At what would have been the final sitting he announced that he would destroy the work and begin again.

"You will not begin again on me," said the statesman. "I am through with these sittings and I will not have any more. The bust is good enough for me."

Dykaar ranted and raved. Friends and acquaintances of the statesman saw the bust, and declared it a marvelous piece of work. The artist persisted in declaring he would destroy it. Friends of the subject, who knew he was quite as stubborn as the artist and would probably never sit for another statue, intervened and saved the work, which is widely admired. Dykaar has since admitted that perhaps it is not so bad, but it does not suit him.

Likes Marshall and Longworth.

Former Vice President Marshall and Nicholas Longworth he regards as among his most difficult subjects. He found their faces very changeable and hard to fix in one satisfactory expression. His first model of Marshall was full of the expression of humor so frequent in Marshall's face,

A TIME FOR ALL THINGS

It was an irate Iowa farmer of the old-fashioned type who sat him down, pen in hand, and wrote an indignant letter to a concern which made a specialty of selling plumbing supplies on individual orders to rural patrons.

"I have got a kick to make,"—thus the farmer wrote. "Early last spring your agent came through this district taking orders for your patent porcelain bath tub. Some of the neighbors gave him their names and so nothing would do but that my wife and daughter should have one for our house and they kept after me until I give your man my name too, and I told him to send me one of his tubs.

"Well, that was in the early part of April. April passed and also May and no sign of that bathtub. So I wrote to you tell you to hurry on up and deliver me that there tub. Nothing was done and so June went by and July and then August.

"And now here, when it's the middle of September and the bathing season practically over for the year, you people are trying to make me take that dern tub."

Girls! Use Lemon To Whiten Skin

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

Girls! Use Lemon To Whiten Skin

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

The contract calls for the removal of approximately 47,000 cubic yards of e rth.

The successful contractors will be required to place two steam shovels on the job and to rush the road through to completion befor winter.

Allison & Harris are now at work on the Shadyside avenue improvement, which will be completed within the next two weeks.

Verdict for Defendant in Case Against Mrs. Lillian Watkin.

A verdict in favor of the defendant was returned by a jury in municipal court yesterday afternoon in the civil action brought by Felix N. Anania, Bradshaw avenue contractor, against Mrs. Lillian Watkin, Ridgeway avenue, to collect $200 alleged to have been loaned in 1923. Motion for a new trial in the case was to be filed by Attorney Ben L. Bennett, counsel for the plaintiff, today.

The jury of four men and two women deliberated for about a half hour before reaching a verdict. The verdict was unanimous.

Anania charged that he advanced Mrs. Watkin $200 to pay the fine of her husband, Albert Watkin, when he was arrested for a liquor violation before Mayor Albert Ferren, East Palestine, three years ago.

Mrs. Watkin denied having accepted the $200 check which was introduced as an exhibit at the hearing. She also denied that the signature on the back of her check was her handwriting.

The original suit was against Albert and Lillian Watkin but an amended petition filed before the trial named the latter only. Attorney W. A. O'Grady, Wellsville, defended Mrs. Watkin.

had been corresponding with a 14-year-old girl, who was formerly a ward of Sheriff McNabb.

A storm raged throughout the delivery, which was made at 3 o'clock, according to the five men who refused to leave their cells and who later gave the alarm.

Brooks, a one-legged man, was awaiting arraignment before a special grand jury next week on charges of kidnaping and assaulting two school girls from Columbus. It was alleged he advertised for a girl to work on a farm in a Columbus paper. Receiving a reply, it was alleged, he went to Columbus for the girl and started for the supposed farm. Enroute, the girl charged, she was assaulted.

The next day another girl reported to authorities being duped by the same advertisement, but declared she had escaped from Brooks, whom she later identified, after a struggle in a woods near here.

Bennett was being held as a deserter from the army and was also to be taken before the grand jury for auto stealing. Francher was in jail charged with shooting with intent to wound.

The five who remained were serving sentence for violating the prohibition law.

SOME of our Italian friends, with whom we deeply sympathize, considering the ill treatment they got from their brother allies, are hostile. Uncle Sam accepted their own debt proposition, at less than 40 cents on the dollar.

But the general feeling in Europe now is that Uncle Sam ought not to be paid anything. He should consider it sufficient honor to send his men and his money to rescue and help his European brothers, when they found they had bitten off more than they could chew, and began to get tired of cutting each other's throats.

One Italian newspaper says Europe finds comfort in the thought that "outside of Europe there is Asia, and inside of Asia there is Japan."

The suggestion is that Europe, too busy and too sore to follow her inclinations and come over here and punish the United States, will wait patiently for Japan to do it.

IN VIEW of the general attitude, it is a pleasure to hear that President Coolidge has invited Edsel Ford to visit his camp and talk over flying machine possibilities.

Edsel Ford has studied flying, and is about to test a modern, safe, powerful plane, with three engines. He and his father have the machinery and the money. President Coolidge has an open mind and is anxious to develop aircraft.

Perhaps this nation will really have a flying fleet after all, and will be in shape to take care of hostile visitors to "Uncle Shylock," whether they come across the Atlantic or the Pacific.

THE police picked up a dead "gunman" near New York's police headquarters yesterday, a "refined" gunman, fashionably dressed. According to the police he was just a little too refined, and that caused his death.

This professional killer was sent from Buffalo to kill a man marked for death in a bootleg feud. The man to be killed was too quick for the hired killer and shot him dead.

President Coolidge's representative, Col. Carmi Thompson, visited 5,000 lepers of the Culion colony and he found 4,000 of them organized in a parade to greet him. With waving banners they carried signs that read, "We do not want economic development, give us independence."

You might call that appropriate. Five thousand lepers in the Philippines are cared for by the United States government, protected from themselves and others; they live in the colony with their own stores, theaters, banks and even beauty contests.

They want to escape from Uncle Sam's jurisdiction and are about as well fitted to take care of themselves as some of the other Filipinos, not lepers.

granddaughter of the Indian fighter.

Cornell was in the army of the north throughout the Civil war. He enlisted with the Third Ohio infantry, being mustered in at Camp Dennison, Ohio. Nine months later he was wounded in the left shoulder at Perrysville, Ky., and was sent home to recuperate. When he recovered he reenlisted in the gun boat service. He also saw service in a cavalry unit.

Returning to Georgetown at the close of the war, Cornell resumed the carpentry trade. The couple lived in Hookstown for a few years, then removed to East Liverpool. For about 30 years they have resided in Oak street. Cornell has been retired for about 15 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornell are the parents of nine children, six now deceased. Those living are Mrs. David Weight, Church alley; Mrs. Mary Rollhaus, 417 Sugar street, and George Cornell, at home.

Despite their advanced ages, Mr. and Mrs. Cornell are in good health. Cornell's memory is unusually keen and he takes delight in recounting his experiences during the Civil war.

TOLEDO, O., July 28.—Local authorities today were searching for bandits who carried away a safe containing $200 in government money and $25 in 2-cent stamps from the branch postoffice No. 10, located in A. A. Dedos' grocery store. The safe was later found rifled on Manhattan boulevard.

VOLSTEAD LAW IS ISSUE AT LABOR MEETING

Modification to Permit Sale of Beer is Proposed.

20 RESOLUTIONS

Convention at Akron Approves State Compensation Law.

AKRON, July 28.—Modification of the Volstead law to permit the sale of 2.75 percent beer, is recommended in a resolution to come before the Ohio State Federation of Labor, in convention here this week. It may be adopted at today's session, leaders predicted.

The resolution signed by 33 members of the various organizations, declares the dry law has failed to meet the approval of the general public and has "utterly failed to secure due and proper respect and obedience by citizens of our country."

There were 20 resolutions, covering a wide variety of subjects, introduced at the Tuesday afternoon session and a number of others were thrown into the hopper Wednesday.

Among the more important resolutions are those which urge retention of the state workmen's compensation law without change; opposition to a state constabulary, limiting the powers of equity courts, passage of an anti-injunction law, and outlawing the so-called "yellow dog" contract, which compels the worker to sign an individual contract with his employer and refrain from affiliating with organized labor.

Labor's Objectives Stressed.

These objectives of labor, which were stressed by both William Green, president of the American Federation and State President John P. Frey, will form the basis upon which candidates for state offices will be judged.

At Tuesday afternoon's session, reports of First Vice President Lee Hall and Secretary-Treasurer Thomas J. Donnelly were read and numerous resolutions referred to committees.

A resolution was passed requesting state officials to ask that bidders on state work include the wage scale for workmen and that low bidders be ignored where they employed non-union labor.

A resolution was introduced condemning Golden Rule Nash, head of the Nash Clothing company, of Cincinnati, because his company required the employes to become affiliated with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, which is not affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Aimee McPherson Leaves Home City On Mystery Trip

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Aimee Semple McPherson, accompanied only by her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, left Angelus temple by automobile shortly before daybreak today.

Attendants at the home adjoining the temple refused to reveal the destination of the evangalist and her mother or comment upon the reason for the sudden departure. Arthur L. Veitch, chief counsel for the woman pastor, said he had not been notified of the evangelist's intention to leave the city. He admitted it was "possible" that she may have started for Carmel-by-the-Sea.

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Adolphe Menjou, film celebrity, today was under order to pay his wife, Kathry Menjou, $500 a week for her support, pending a trial of the husband's suit for divorce, which has been set for October 1. This record-breaking amount for local divorce courts was fixed by Judge Harry A. Holtzer.

Menjou was not in court, but was represented by counsel. He had previously stipulated that he would abide by any court order made in his absence.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 28.—Speculative interest was concentrated on United States Steel and General Motors stocks in the early trading today, in view of the extremely favorable earnings statements for the first half of the year, issued after the close of business yesterday.

The steel corporation's earnings of nearly $48,000,000 in the second quarter was a surprise to the financial district, which looked for about $45,000,000. General Motors earned $17.33 a share in the first half of the year, against $9.02 in the same period last year.

Steel stock opened at 139½ to 139⅞, but advanced rapidly to 141¾. Buoyancy of the stock showed conclusively that there was no general expectation of an extra dividend at this time.

General Motors again chalked up a new high record selling price, large quantities of the stock being taken above 174, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Cast Iron Pipe, Allied Chemical and other high priced specialties sold up to 4 points in active trading, and new forward movements were inaugurated by Loews, Davison Chemical, Congoleum, etc.

The oils continued to show a moderate improvement.

RIN-TIN-TIN AT AMERICAN

Wonder Dog in "Hero of Big Snows."

Rin-Tin-Tin, the wonder dog of the screen, his later Warner picture in "A Hero of the Big Snows," opened at the American theatre today.

Born in war-torn France and adopted by Lieut. Lee Duncan, Rinty was trained for the screen carefully and effectively. He is a German shepherd dog, more commonly known as a police dog. He combines brains, physique and appeal to such a marked degree that his screen following surpasses that of all sheiks and most beautiful stars of the fim world.

Among Rinty's previous Warner pictures are "Where the North Begins," "The Lighthouse by the Sea," "Tracked in the Snow Country," "Below the Line," "The Clash of the Wolves" and "The Night Cry."

Herman Raymaker, who has directed all of Rinty's recent pictures, also had charge of "A Hero of the Big Snows," in the supporting cast are Alice Calhoun, Don Alvardo, Leo Willis and Mary Jane Milliken.

from New York reported to the Anastasia island radio station near here that it had run into the hurricane 170 miles north of Jupiter inlet, and was racing back north. The Agwimex said it was outriding the storm.

No other vessels were reported in distress at the radio station.

Vessels in Distress.

The radio station expected to get calls for help from several small vessels before noon as the storm moves north. Wireless calls besieged the station asking for the course of the hurricane.

Coastwise shipping was believed to have escaped with no loss of life, although many ships were battered.

The Clyde liner Seminole, enroute from New York to Miami with 180 passengers, reached this port safely last night after being ordered back from the lower coast to escape the storm. Captain J. N. Staples explained the liner had not been in danger, but the ship's course had been changed to avoid discomfort to passengers in the storm.

Wires Torn Down.

Several steamers and schooners crossed the St. John's river bar at Mayport this morning to escape the gales expected to strike this part of the state by noon.

Telegraph and telephone companies whose lines were greatly damaged yesterday, had almost no usable wires south of Jacksonville today. The backwash of the storm last night moved inland from the east coast tearing down wires to the west coast of the Florida Peninsula.

Tampa, West Palm Beach, St. Petersburg, Miami and smaller east and west coast cities were all cut off from communication this morning with no indication that wires would be restored before tomorrow.

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., July 28.—All hands are safe aboard the Italian steamer, Arzaldo San Giorcio Secondogn, reported in distress in the storm off the Florida coast yesterday, according to a message received here today by marine headquarters of the Gulf Refining company from the gulf tank vessel, "Gulf of Mexico," which last night located the stricken ship and stood by until this morning.

Tanker is Overdue.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, July 28.—No word has been received at the marine headquarters of the Gulf Refining company here today concerning its tanker, the J. M. Guffey, due to have reached Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday, with a cargo of oil from Port Arthur.

Concern for the safety of the tanker, believed to have been caught in the gulf hurricane which damaged Florida coast resorts, was expressed here.

The J. M. Guffey is a vessel of 1,590 tons registry and is manned by 30 officers and men.

Fort Worth Grand Jurors Hear Story of Chipps Killing

Rev. J. Frank Norris Awaits Action in Fatal Shooting as He Demands Opportunity to Plead Case.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 28.—All but one of the persons known to have been in the vicinity of the Rev. J. Frank Norris' study in the First Baptist church on the afternoon of July 17 when he shot and killed D. E. Chipps, wealthy Fort Worth lumber broker and clubman, had been questioned, most of them twice, when the Tarrant county grand jury convened today to complete its inquiry.

Assistant District Attorney R. B. Brown was holding in reserve one eyewitness of the tragic encounter, hoping it would be possible to secure a murder indictment against the fundamentalist leader without revealing this person's identity or his knowledge of the facts.

Dr. Norris has not retained counsel other than his regular legal adviser, Chairman Ben F. Boulden, of the church board of deacons, nor has he modified his demand of the last week that he be indicted and given the opportunity to plead his case before a trial jury.

Schismatics May Take Over Catholic Churches in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, July 28—Schismatic Catholics of Mexico, who hold a doctrine opposed to that of the Roman Catholics of the country, announced today that they were prepared to take over the churches and institute services as soon as the churches are abbandoned by their regular clergy on August 1. Their action would depend upon whether or not the government approves their plan, they stated.

Adherents of the prelates who signed the pastoral letter ordering the suspension of the regular services in the churches breathed a little easier today with the passing of another 24 hours without any overt action by the government. It had been expected that the signers would long before this have been placed behind prison bars.

ers are executed. The law prohibiting murder does not halt the taking of a life by another.

"Too many people in the United States place their patriotism above their appetites. We have got to the place where people must do their thinking with their heads instead of their stomachs. That's the reason why prohibition hasn't been enforced any better.

"The Literary Digest which is as near wet as it dares be without endangering its standing, recently published statements from universities and colleges showing less drinking among students at the present time than any time in their history. And, mind you, the enrollment in colleges has almost doubled since the days of the open saloon.

Washington Investigation.

"In the recent investigation at Washington, Wayne B. Wheeler testified that the Anti-Saloon league had spent $35,000,000 throughout the United States within 30 years, an average of about 30 cents for every man and woman in the country.

"Jim Reed threw up his hands in horror when this statement was made, yet in your neighboring state of Pennsylvania liquor interests swore they spent more than $3,000,000 to nominate a wet senator. Captain Stayton, head of the wet organization, issued a statement recently in which it was shown that 34 men contributed $120,000 annually to repeal or modify the prohibition laws. Jim Reed does not need any one to accuse him of being wet—he's so dripping that the corns are sprouting on his toes.

"The recent investigation in Washington has aroused the dry people to the movement that is on foot to bring back the licensed saloon. There's only one way of holding out lines and that is by electing dry senators and congressmen.

Congressional Fight.

"The booze bunch get 'hot under the collar' when we refer to them as nullificationists. Jeff Davis, president of the Confederacy during the Civil war, asserted that states not in sympathy with the constitution should withdraw from the union.

"Al Smith, Senators Edge and Edwards, Governor Ritchie, Congressman Gallivan and a few other easterners are leaders in the movement to break down the dry law. Twenty-four of the 59 congressmen who signed the so-called beer bill are from the state of New York.

"In Ohio 20 of the 22 congressmen are dry. Wets have placed candidates in the fields for practically every office which is now held by a dry and in two weeks you people are going to face the issue. I have been told that you people down here in the dry 18th district are going to send John Nolan to congress. His Republican opponent, Frank Murphy, is dry—in fact, one of the dry leaders in congress. I warn you of letters which are going out over the district classifying Mr. Murphy as a modificationist in order to defeat him."

Lists Dry Candidates.

The speaker then took up a discussion of the candidates who are seeking state, district and county offices on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. He listed the dry candidates and urged that electors favoring law enforcement cast their votes for these candidates.

At the close of his address, Schreiber threw the meeting open for questions regarding candidates.

Last night's rally was presided over by Mrs. C. R. Reese, president of the W. C. T. U. Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Ethel Peterson and George Esenheuth.

$94,605 LOW BID ON SMITH'S FERRY HIGHWAY

Allison-Harris Company Cuts $32,000 From First Estimate.

OTHER BIDDERS

Rinehart Brothers Submit Proposal of $99,278.

With an estimate of $94,605.07, approximately $32,000 less than the first bid, the Allison-Harris Construction company, of this city, was the low bidder for the improvement of the Smith's Ferry section of the Midland-East Liverpool road when proposals were opened by the Pennsylvania state highway department at Harrisburg yesterday. The contract will be awarded within the next week or 10 days.

Rinehart Brothers, also local contractors, who improved the road west from Midland and who were the low bidders in the first set of proposals opened about a month ago, submitted a bid of $99,278.55, as compared with their former estimate of $101,487.95. Three other contractors, in addition to Allison & Harris, underbid the Rineharts.

Other bidders were: Jones Construction company, Woodlawn, $94,646.70; A. R. Cooper, Hookstown, $97,244.19; Thomas Cronin, Pittsburgh, $98,230.91; George S. White company, Pittsburgh, $99,978.74; F. F. Hallam & Son, Fairmont, W. Va., $102,203.20; F. S. Wilson, Kittanning, Pa., $105,147.57.

The proposed improvement is a little less than one mile in length and follows along north of the railroad right-of-way from a point about 300 feet east of the Smith's Ferry railroad station to the concrete bridge spanning Beaver creek. The contract calls for the removal of approximately 47,000 cubic yards of earth.

The successful contractors will be required to place two steam shovels on the job and to rush the road through to completion before winter.

Allison & Harris are now at work on the Shadyside avenue improvement, which will be completed within the next two weeks.

Verdict for Defendant in Case Against Mrs. Lillian Watkin.

A verdict in favor of the defendant was returned by a jury in municipal court yesterday afternoon in the civil action brought by Felix N. Anania, Bradshaw avenue contractor, against Mrs. Lillian Watkin, Ridgeway avenue, to collect $200 alleged to have been loaned in 1923. Motion for a new trial in the case was to be filed by Attorney Ben L. Bennett, counsel for the plaintiff, today.

The jury of four men and two women deliberated for about a half hour before reaching a verdict. The verdict was unanimous.

Anania charged that he advanced Mrs. Watkin $200 to pay the fine of her husband, Albert Watkin, when he was arrested for a liquor violation before Mayor Albert Ferren, East Palestine, three years ago.

Mrs. Watkin denied having accepted the $200 check which was introduced as an exhibit at the hearing. She also denied that the signature on the back of her check was her handwriting.

The original suit was against Albert and Lillian Watkin but an amended petition filed before the trial named the latter only. Attorney W. A. O'Grady, Wellsville, defended Mrs. Watkin.

had been corresponding with a 14-year-old girl, who was formerly a ward of Sheriff McNabb.

A storm raged throughout the delivery, which was made at 3 o'clock, according to the five men who refused to leave their cells and who later gave the alarm.

Brooks, a one-legged man, was awaiting arraignment before a special grand jury next week on charges of kidnaping and assaulting two school girls from Columbus. It was alleged he advertised for a girl to work on a farm in a Columbus paper. Receiving a reply, it was alleged, he went to Columbus for the girl and started for the supposed farm. Enroute, the girl charged, she was assaulted.

The next day another girl reported to authorities being duped by the same advertisement, but declared she had escaped from Brooks, whom she later identified, after a struggle in a woods near here.

Bennett was being held as a deserter from the army and was also to be taken before the grand jury for auto stealing. Francher was in jail charged with shooting with intent to wound.

The five who remained were serving sentence for violating the prohibition law.

SOME of our Italian friends, with whom we deeply sympathize, considering the ill treatment they got from their brother allies, are hostile. Uncle Sam accepted their own debt proposition, at less than 40 cents on the dollar.

But the general feeling in Europe now is that Uncle Sam ought not to be paid anything. He should consider it sufficient honor to send his men and his money to rescue and help his European brothers, when they found they had bitten off more than they could chew, and began to get tired of cutting each other's throats.

One Italian newspaper says Europe finds comfort in the thought that "outside of Europe there is Asia, and inside of Asia there is Japan."

The suggestion is that Europe, too busy and too sore to follow her inclinations and come over here and punish the United States, will wait patiently for Japan to do it.

IN VIEW of the general attitude, it is a pleasure to hear that President Coolidge has invited Edsel Ford to visit his camp and talk over flying machine possibilities.

Edsel Ford has studied flying, and is about to test a modern, safe, powerful plane, with three engines. He and his father have the machinery and the money. President Coolidge has an open mind and is anxious to develop aircraft.

Perhaps this nation will really have a flying fleet after all, and will be in shape to take care of hostile visitors to "Uncle Shylock," whether they come across the Atlantic or the Pacific.

THE police picked up a dead "gunman" near New York's police headquarters yesterday, a "refined" gunman, fashionably dressed. According to the police he was just a little too refined, and that caused his death.

This professional killer was sent from Buffalo to kill a man marked for death in a bootleg feud. The man to be killed was too quick for the hired killer and shot him dead.

President Coolidge's representative, Col. Carmi Thompson, visited 5,000 lepers of the Culion colony and he found 4,000 of them organized in a parade to greet him. With waving banners they carried signs that read, "We do not want economic development, give us independence."

You might call that appropriate. Five thousand lepers in the Philippines are cared for by the United States government, protected from themselves and others; they live in the colony with their own stores, theaters, banks and even beauty contests.

They want to escape from Uncle Sam's jurisdiction and are about as well fitted to take care of themselves as some of the other Filipinos, not lepers.

granddaughter of the Indian fighter.

Cornell was in the army of the north throughout the Civil war. He enlisted with the Third Ohio infantry, being mustered in at Camp Dennison, Ohio. Nine months later he was wounded in the left shoulder at Perrysville, Ky., and was sent home to recuperate. When he recovered he reenlisted in the gun boat service. He also saw service in a cavalry unit.

Returning to Georgetown at the close of the war, Cornell resumed the carpentry trade. The couple lived in Hookstown for a few years, then removed to East Liverpool. For about 30 years they have resided in Oak street. Cornell has been retired for about 15 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornell are the parents of nine children, six now deceased. Those living are Mrs. David Weight, Church alley; Mrs. Mary Rollhaus, 417 Sugar street, and George Cornell, at home.

Despite their advanced ages, Mr. and Mrs. Cornell are in good health. Cornell's memory is unusually keen and he takes delight in recounting his experiences during the Civil war.

VOLSTEAD LAW IS ISSUE AT LABOR MEETING

Modification to Permit Sale of Beer is Proposed.

20 RESOLUTIONS

Convention at Akron Approves State Compensation Law.

AKRON, July 28.—Modification of the Volstead law to permit the sale of 2.75 percent beer, is recommended in a resolution to come before the Ohio State Federation of Labor, in convention here this week. It may be adopted at today's session, leaders predicted.

The resolution signed by 33 members of the various organizations, declares the dry law has failed to meet the approval of the general public and has "utterly failed to secure due and proper respect and obedience by citizens of our country."

There were 20 resolutions, covering a wide variety of subjects, introduced at the Tuesday afternoon session and a number of others were thrown into the hopper Wednesday.

Among the more important resolutions are those which urge retention of the state workmen's compensation law without change; opposition to a state constabulary, limiting the powers of equity courts, passage of an anti-injunction law, and outlawing the so-called "yellow dog" contract, which compels the worker to sign an individual contract with his employer and refrain from affiliating with organized labor.

Labor's Objectives Stressed.

These objectives of labor, which were stressed by both William Green, president of the American Federation and State President John P. Frey, will form the basis upon which candidates for state offices will be judged.

At Tuesday afternoon's session, reports of First Vice President Lee Hall and Secretary-Treasurer Thomas J. Donnelly were read and numerous resolutions referred to committees.

A resolution was passed requesting state officials to ask that bidders on state work include the wage scale for workmen and that low bidders be ignored where they employed non-union labor.

A resolution was introduced condemning Golden Rule Nash, head of the Nash Clothing company, of Cincinnati, because his company required the employes to become affiliated with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, which is not affiliated with the A. F. of L.

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Aimee Semple McPherson, accompanied only by her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, left Angelus temple by automobile shortly before daybreak today.

Veitch, chief counsel for the woman pastor, said he had not been notified of the evangelist's intention to leave the city. He admitted it was "possible" that she may have started for Carmel-by-the-Sea.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 28.—Speculative interest was concentrated on United States Steel and General Motors stocks in the early trading today, in view of the extremely favorable earnings statements for the first half of the year issued after the close of business yesterday.

The steel corporation's earnings of nearly $48,000,000 in the second quarter was a surprise to the financial district, which looked for about $45,000,000. General Motors earned $17.33 a share in the first half of the year, against $9.02 in the same period last year.

Steel stock opened at 139½ to 139⅞, but advanced rapidly to 141¾. Buoyancy of the stock showed conclusively that there was no general expectation of an extra dividend at this time.

General Motors again chalked up a new high record selling price, large quantities of the stock being taken above 174, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Cast Iron Pipe, Allied Chemical and other high priced specialties sold up to 4 points in active trading, and new forward movements were inaugurated by Loews, Davison Chemical, Congoleum, etc.

The oils continued to show a moderate improvement.

RIN-TIN-TIN AT AMERICAN

Wonder Dog in "Hero of Big Snows."

Rin-Tin-Tin, the wonder dog of the screen, his later Warner picture in "A Hero of the Big Snows," opened at the American theatre today.

Born in war-torn France and adopted by Lieut. Lee Duncan, Rinty was trained for the screen carefully and effectively. He is a German shepherd dog, more commonly known as a police dog. He combines brains, physique and appeal to such a marked degree that his screen following surpasses that of all sheiks and most beautiful stars of the flm world.

Among Rinty's previous Warner pictures are "Where the North Begins," "The Lighthouse by the Sea," "Tracked in the Snow Country," "Below the Line," "The Clash of the Wolves" and "The Night Cry."

Herman Raymaker, who has directed all of Rinty's recent pictures, also had charge of "A Hero of the Big Snows," in the supporting cast are Alice Calhoun, Don Alvardo, Leo Willis and Mary Jane Milliken.

Million Lost in Storm

from New York reported to the Anastasia island radio station near here that it had run into the hurricane 170 miles north of Jupiter inlet, and was racing back north. The Agwimex said it was outriding the storm.

No other vessels were reported in distress at the radio station.

Vessels in Distress.

The radio station expected to get calls for help from several small vessels before noon as the storm moves north. Wireless calls besieged the station asking for the course of the hurricane.

Coastwise shipping was believed to have escaped with no loss of life, although many ships were battered.

The Clyde liner Seminole, enroute from New York to Miami with 180 passengers, reached this port safely last night after being ordered back from the lower coast to escape the storm. Captain J. N. Staples explained the liner had not been in danger, but the ship's course had been changed to avoid discomfort to passengers in the storm.

Wires Torn Down.

Several steamers and schooners crossed the St. John's river bar at Mayport this morning to escape the gales expected to strike this part of the state by noon.

Telegraph and telephone companies whose lines were greatly damaged yesterday, had almost no usable wires south of Jacksonville today. The backwash of the storm last night moved inland from the east coast tearing down wires to the west coast of the Florida Peninsula.

Tampa, West Palm Beach, St. Petersburg, Miami and smaller east and west coast cities were all cut off from communication this morning with no indication that wires would be restored before tomorrow.

All Aboard Ship Safe.

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., July 28.—All hands are safe aboard the Italian steamer, Arzaldo San Giorcio Secondogn, reported in distress in the storm off the Florida coast yesterday, according to a message received here today by marine headquarters of the Gulf Refining company from the gulf tank vessel, "Gulf of Mexico," which last night located the stricken ship and stood by until this morning.

Tanker is Overdue.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, July 28.—No word has been received at the marine headquarters of the Gulf Refining company here today concerning its tanker, the J. M. Guffey, due to have reached Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday, with a cargo of oil from Port Arthur.

Concern for the safety of the tanker, believed to have been caught in the gulf hurricane which damaged Florida coast resorts, was expressed here.

The J. M. Guffey is a vessel of 1,590 tons registry and is manned by 30 officers and men.

CLEARING HOUSE POOL UNDER FIRE

Charged in a secret indictment with carrying lots of 650 tickets in the pool from Boston to Bangor, Maine, Arthur J. Driscoll of this city was arraigned in federal court today, pleaded not guilty and was held for trial.

Fort Worth Grand Jurors Hear Story of Chipps Killing

Rev. J. Frank Norris Awaits Action in Fatal Shooting as He Demands Opportunity to Plead Case.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 28.—All but one of the persons known to have been in the vicinity of the Rev. J. Frank Norris' study in the First Baptist church on the afternoon of July 17 when he shot and killed D. E. Chipps, wealthy Fort Worth lumber broker and clubman, had been questioned, most of them twice, when the Tarrant county grand jury convened today to complete its inquiry.

Assistant District Attorney R. B. Brown was holding in reserve one eyewitness of the tragic encounter, hoping it would be possible to secure a murder indictment against the fundamentalist leader without revealing this person's identity or his knowledge of the facts.

Dr. Norris has not retained counsel other than his regular legal adviser, Chairman Ben F. Boulden, of the church board of deacons, nor has he modified his demand of the last week that he be indicted and given the opportunity to plead his case before a trial jury.

Schismatics May Take Over Catholic Churches in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, July 28—Schismatic Catholics of Mexico, who hold a doctrine opposed to that of the Roman Catholics of the country, announced today that they were prepared to take over the churches and institute services as soon as the churches are abbandoned by their regular clergy on August 1. Their action would depend upon whether or not the government approves their plan, they stated.

Adherents of the prelates who signed the pastoral letter ordering the suspension of the regular services in the churches breathed a little easier today with the passing of another 24 hours without any overt action by the government. It had been expected that the signers would long before this have been placed behind prison bars.

ers are executed. The law prohibiting murder does not halt the taking of a life by another.

"Too many people in the United States place their patriotism above their appetites. We have got to the place where people must do their thinking with their heads instead of their stomachs. That's the reason why prohibition hasn't been enforced any better.

"The Literary Digest which is as near wet as it dares be without endangering its standing, recently published statements from universities and colleges showing less drinking among students at the present time than any time in their history. And, mind you, the enrollment in colleges has almost doubled since the days of the open saloon.

Washington Investigation.

"In the recent investigation at Washington, Wayne B. Wheeler testified that the Anti-Saloon league had spent $35,000,000 throughout the United States within 30 years, an average of about 30 cents for every man and woman in the country.

"Jim Reed threw up his hands in horror when this statement was made, yet in your neighboring state of Pennsylvania liquor interests swore they spent more than $3,000,000 to nominate a wet senator. Captain Stayton, head of the wet organization, issued a statement recently in which it was shown that 34 men contributed $120,000 annually to repeal or modify the prohibition laws. Jim Reed does not need any one to accuse him of being wet—he's so dripping that the corns are sprouting on his toes.

"The recent investigation in Washington has aroused the dry people to the movement that is on foot to bring back the licensed saloon. There's only one way of holding out lines and that is by electing dry senators and congressmen.

Congressional Fight.

"The booze bunch get 'hot under the collar' when we refer to them as nullificationists. Jeff Davis, president of the Confederacy during the Civil war, asserted that states not in sympathy with the constitution should withdraw from the union.

"Al Smith, Senators Edge and Edwards, Governor Ritchie, Congressman Gallivan and a few other easterners are leaders in the movement to break down the dry law. Twenty-four of the 59 congressmen who signed the so-called beer bill are from the state of New York.

"In Ohio 20 of the 22 congressmen are dry. Wets have placed candidates in the fields for practically every office which is now held by a dry and in two weeks you people are going to face the issue. I have been told that you people down here in the dry 18th district are going to send John Nolan to congress. His Republican opponent, Frank Murphy, is dry—in fact, one of the dry leaders in congress. I warn you of letters which are going out over the district classifying Mr. Murphy as a modificationist in order to defeat him."

Lists Dry Candidates.

The speaker then took up a discussion of the candidates who are seeking state, district and county offices on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. He listed the dry candidates and urged that electors favoring law enforcement cast their votes for these candidates.

At the close of his address, Schreiber threw the meeting open for questions regarding candidates.

Doing His Duty

"For two years I suffered agonizing pains in my stomach, belching up sour and bitter fluids and gas. Tongue always coated. Doctors were unable to help me. The first dose of MAYR'S made me feel 100 per cent better, and I am now feeling better than at any time in my life. I deem it my duty to advise other sufferers." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Jesse D. Holloway.

WAGING WAR ON LIQUOR SELLERS

County officials in conjunction with members of the Weirton police department have made several large liquor raids during the past week in which some of the largest stills in the history of the county have been confiscated.

Most of the raids have been made between New Cumberland and Weirton on farm property in which several of alleged violators made their escape in advance of the raiding squad.

FULL TIME HEALTH UNITS FAVORED

State wide campaign to establish full time health units in every county is being made by the state board of health. Benefits to be derived from such are being pointed out in statements by members.

During the past few weeks several counties have fallen into line with the suggestion including Brooke county which adjoins Hancock. This county is among those listed in full time service.

LODGE MEMBERS TO ATTEND PICNIC

Number of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs from this section plan to attend the annual outing for members of both organizations and their families to be held at the county fair grounds, Lisbon, Wednesday, August 11.

Addresses will be made by prominent members of the orders from Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky.

CANDIDATES FILE EXPENSE REPORTS

Yesterday was the last day for candidates for county and district offices to file reports of their expense accounts. Those who failed to comply with the law, in the event they are successful, under the law will be disqualified from holding office.

Turk-Nash Infielder Leads City Industrial League Hitters

Auto Club's Second Sacker Also Piles Up Lead in Two-base Blows; Given Close Race by Brother, Alf; H. Strobel Turns in Flashy Stick Average.

EDDIE BAYLEY, brilliant second sacker and captain of the Turk-Nash team, swatting the ball consistently all year, is the leading hitter of the City Industrial Baseball league for the initial half of the 1926 season with a mark of .420 in 19 games during which he laced out 29 safe drives in 69 efforts with the bludgeon. He also led in two-swat drives with eight to his credit. In all other departments of play he was among the players excelling according to figures compiled by T. T. Jones, league statistician.

But for the fact that he was out of two games, his brother, A. Bayley, middle field custodian of the same club, might have beaten him for batting honors. As it was he was only three points off with .417 for the 17 contests in which he had 20 safeties in 48 chances. He was keen in walking and sacrificing also.

Strobel Well up in Race.

Almost worthy of first place in hitting for the period was the veteran H. Strobel of Victory Motor, who came through with a mark of .485. However he was in but 16 games. And in several of these he failed to stay in or start the game. Just the same he hit better than in any time of his long diamond career. Perhaps the fact that he took a turn occasionally as a pitcher had something to do with his return to form. He had 16 drives in 33 attempts.

That other veteran, S. Coleman, in the five games he played for Turk-Nash, landed on the ball at a .455 clip, having five hits, one of them being a hom run that won a crucial contest with Laughlin. Coleman was always a flashy guardian of the first sack. This year he held his own with the stick also.

Manager Alcock, former major and minor leaguer, who this year is managing Turk-Nash, hit .583 in six contests.

Bubin Hits Hard.

Bubin, Laughlin, hit .414 in 11 games and scored 10 times. With his three doubles, two triples and three home runs he stood high in extra bases.

In all, 25 swatted in the .300 charmed circle, only eight at .400 and four in the .500 class, the latter marks being made in fewer games.

The necessity of throwing out the K. T. K.Chester game of July 1 lowered the averages of some and slightly aided others. The chief loser was Potts, of Chester, who that day had a perfect mark at the bat with a single and two doubles in three attempts and these hits would have given him a .467 instead of the .407 he actually has and he probably would have merited the distinction of being the heaviest swatting receiver in the loop. Les McMath lost two safe ones which would have given him .310. Lysle lost a home run as well.

McShane K. T. K. Ace.

On the other hand McShane of K. T. K. gained as he did not hit safely in the June 15 game but had two good ones on July 3. McShane, by the way, swatted an even .400. His all around work, also stands out for in addition he had a perfect fielding mark in accepting 21 chances. He showed speed when needed, fielded brilliantly and was an ideal lead-off man for his club all year. His all around performance, even demeanor and willingness to be fair has greatly aided the league and brought honor to his club.

Wilde, first bagman-pitcher of Chester was in 23 games and just missed by nine points hitting at a .400 clip. His average is no mean figure in view of the fact that he pitched several times and in the flag deciding game with Laughlin July 7 stayed on the hilltop while suffering excruciating pain from a spike wound in his foot which kept him idle for several games at the outset of the second half.

Watson Leads Laughlin.

McConnell, with the Bayley brothers, formed the regular hitting trio of Turk-Nash. He finished with a mark of .368 with four less hits than the league leader made and five more than A. Bayley made. He hit consistently and dangerously all year.

W. Mundy, in 14 games, hit for a .360 mark. J. Morgan, Wellsville, hit the same in 11 games.

W. Watson, the young Newell high school lad, who understudies for the absent Tommy Sayres, went in and led the Laughlin club in hitting with .342. He was in 17 games. The youth showed gameness, capability and marked adeptness at the diamond pastime.

Finley, Laughlin captain, led the .333 hitters, playing in 22 games. Schneidmiller was next with 17 games.

Digman, who pitched Laughlin to a first half pennant, handled the stick well, too, having an average of .303 despite constant pitching.

Despite the fact that he was incapaciated for a portion of the season R. Pollock of Turk Nash came through with an average of .314 in 11 games.

Potts, .407 and Wilde, .391 led Chester with the willow. The Bayleys head Turk-Nash; McShane and Simcox, the latter .341, topped K. T. K.; W. Watson .341 and Finley .333, Laughlin; Sainor .382 and W. Mundy .360, Victory Motors; A. Morris, .381 and J. Morgan .348, Wellsville.

All Star Team.

From the statistics the All Star team so far as hitting is concerned would probably line up with Potts of Chester, .407 and Schneidmiller of Nash-Turk, .333 catching. The pitchers would include Wilde, Chester, .391; Sainor, Victory Motor, .382; Digman, Laughlin, .303, and M. Cebula, Chester, .293. W. Mundy, Victory Motor, .360, would cover first; E. Bayley, Nash-Motor, .420, second base; A. Morris, Wellsville, .381, shortstop; Simcox, K. T. K., .333, third base, C. Coleman, Victory Motor, .342; W. Watson, Laughlin, .342, and Finley, Laughlin, .333, would be utility man.

In the outfield A. Bayley, Nash-Turk, .417, McShane, K. T. K., .400, McConnell, Nash-Turk, .368, would do the fielding. F. Marshall, Chester, .327 and R. Pollock, Nash-Turk, .317, would be their understudies.

Laughlin had the most runs, 124, while Chester was one behind and Turk-Nash scored 117.

Turk Nash totaled 167 hits against 163 by Chester and 150 by Laughlin. Wellsville trailed with 102.

Line Out 40 Doubles.

In doubles Turk-Nash had 40, Chester 32 and Laughlin and K. T. K. 24 each.

Chester had 16 triples, while Turk-Nash, K. T. K. and Victor had 15 each.

Chester and Laughlin had five home runs each, with Turk-Nash and Victory Motor having four each.

In outouts Chester had 424, Laughlin 387 and Turk-Nash 359.

Chester, with 56, had the most errors. Victory Motor followed with 50. Chester led also in stolen bases with 53, Laughlin following with 49. Laughlin had 19 sacrifice hits as against Chester's 16.

Chester and Victory Motor, with 95 each shared the strikeout record. Laughlin had 89 and Wellsville 88.

In walks Laughlin led with 45, Chester having 44 and Victory Motor 36. The others trailed.

CHESTER BLANKS K. T. K. AT SMITH FIELD

LAUGHLIN BOWS TO TURK-NASH

Auto Club Overcomes Lead to Win 10-4 Decision.

PLAYING on a wet field, with lowered clouds darkening the entire lot, Turk-Nash, hitting the ball hard and taking advantage of opposition infield miscues, defeated Laughlin at Newell last evening, 10 to 4.

Third Bagman Herbert and Left Fielder Parsons were not in the Laughlin lineup, Pitcher English taking the former's place and Right Fielder Aufderheide moving to left with Bubin in right.

Crawford remained in middle and played a brilliant game, gathering in six hard chances. Bubin pulled down two catches in right that evoked applause, saving runs in both instances.

English clouted out a home run in the second, lacing the ball on a line to middle-right. R. Pollock apparently misjudged it and it reached the bushes, enabling Bubin, who previously had doubled, and Hunselman, on third, to score. Finley had opened the period with a single over third and reached the hot corner on Hunselman's rap after W. Watson fanned. As the catcher stole second he purloined the plate, giving the club four runs.

Overcome Laughlin Lead.

But Turk-Nash, with a 4 to 0 count against them, fought back. Schneidmiller, opening the fourth, reached first as Finley, handling his drive threw low to first, enabling the catcher to go on to second. D. Morgan singled over second. Talbot was safe, clogging the bases as Finley repeated his former performance. J. Watson fouled to Hunselman, the latter making a fine catch while leaning over the wire attached to the backston. Deshler drove to English, who booted the blow, permitting Schneidmiller and D. Morgan to count. E. Bayley walked. McConnell singled, scoring Deshler, and was caught off first, Hunselman to Babb. A. Bayley drove to Bubin, who made a fine catch, retiring the side.

R. Pollock walked in the fifth and reached third on Schneidmiller's double. A wild pitch scored him and put the catcher on the hot corner. D. Morgan flew to Babb. Talbot tripled to right, scoring Schneidmiller. J. Watson singled to left, sending the shortstop across the plate. Deshler flew to Crawford as did McConnell after Eddie Bayley had beaten out a rap to third.

Alf Bayley started the sixth by doubling. R. Pollock sacrificed, Suder to Babb. Schneidmiller doubled to left, Bayley finishing. Morgan singled through short. Schneidmiller scored on a bad throw by Suder to first and Morgan reached third from where he counted on a wild pitch. Talbot singled to right. J. Watson fanned. Deshler was hit. Eddie Bayley was safe on a drive to short on which Talbot counted. McConnell flew out to Crawford.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Power in the golf swing comes from the body as a whole, not from any particular part of the body. This fact gets lost to many golfers in the general confusion that results among them from cautions about this and that. Also rhythm of action implies that the whole action of the swing must be a rhythmic action of the entire body, like plain walking. This being true, the theories of launching the back swing with some particular part of the body is equal to initiating power at a point other than the source of power, and in the golf swing the source of power is the body. George Duncan and Abe Mitchell have this principle right. They tee off the back swing with a body movement, which I might liken to the hub of a wagon wheel starting first and applying power to the spokes and the rim.

ROSENBERG IN WARM-UP BOUT

CHICAGO, July 28.—Charles Phil Rosenberg, world's bantamweight champion, will appear on a boxing card at Cubs' park here August 13, Promoter Jim Mullen announced today. The champion's opponent has not been selected.

The bout will be a warmer-up for the title holder preparatory to his championship fight here in September against Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind.

INJURY KEEPS MANDELL IDLE

CHICAGO, July 28.—Chances of Ace Hudkins, sensational Nebraska boxer, meeting Sammy Mandell, world's champion lightweight, in the near future were considered slight today. Mandell, it was stated, is suffering from an injured heel and does not contemplate any ring engagements for several months.

The Yankees trimmed the Browns, 6 to 5, in the first game of their western invasion and stretched their lead to nine and one-half games. Homers by Ruth and Combs helped Pennock beat Zachary.

The Bambino's wallop was his thirty-first homer of the season and put him five homers or 23 games behind his record.

The Pirates got off to a running start against the Giants and just lasted to win, 4 to 3. Jackson and Lindstrom kept the Giants in the game with homers.

Mike Cebula Pitches No-Hit, No-Run Game

Champion's Slab Ace Mars Near Perfect Record in Seven Innings by Permitting Two Walks; Gets Almost Faultless Support From Team Mates.

MIKE Cebula, in the pink of form, held K. T. K. without a hit or run in seven innings of play on Smith Field last evening, and gave Chester a 5 to 0 conquest over the Potters.

Mike permitted two men to reach the bags on walks. He invariably tightened in the pinches and in all fanned 11 batters. He was given almost faultless support by his teammates who swatted timely and ran the bases recklessly.

Yoboid pitched four innings for K. T. K. and was found for five bingles and four runs. "Hi" Allison, former star southpaw of the club, finished the contest and showed that he could still fling with cleverness and effectiveness. In two frames he allowed but two safeties which netted one run.

Despite the rain and wet field a fair sized crowd saw the contest.

Evans, singling in the first, went to second on a passed ball and scored on P. Cebula's single.

F. Marshall doubled over first base in the third. P. Cebula beat out a bunt, Marshall going to third. P. Cebula stole second as F. Marshall purloined the plate. Potts went out at first, Yoboid assisting, P. Cebula going to third. He scored on W. McMath's triple to right. On the squeeze play L. McMath finished.

Greene was safe on Jackson's error in the fifth and scored on Evans' single.

Title Fight Scrambled Affair Despite Action of Commission

By George Barry.

NEW YORK, July 28.—"There will be no Dempsey-Tunney fight in New York or anywhere else."—James A. Farley.

"The commission has approved the bout and the license committee has no right to refuse a permit to Rickard except for a legal reason."—George E. Brower.

"The fight is coming back to New York, where it belongs, even if it is necessary to go into court for the licenses."—William Muldoon.

"?"—Colonel John R. Phelan.

There, in a nutshell, you have an idea of the uncertainty into which Tex Rickard will plunge upon his return from Chicago to complete plans for a heavyweight championship battle between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney at the Yankee stadium on Sept. 16.

The lawyers probably will have their inning soon as the controversy now seems headed for the courts.

On the surface it has been smoothed over by the action of the state athletic commission yesterday in granting permission to Rickard to stage the fight. Underneath, however, there is plenty of turmoil.

Up To Phelan.

The responsibility now rests on Colonel John J. Phelan, chairman of the license committee. James A. Farley, chairman of the commission, was outvoted by Commissioners Brower and Muldoon yesterday in the matter of approving Rickard's applications, but he has not ceased fighting.

Before they can do any boxing in New York, Dempsey and Tunney must apply for licenses. The license committee met yesterday and, among other things, ruled that all applications for reinstatements must be made direct to the committee.

If this procedure is enforced Dempsey and Tunney cannot make application through the boxing board, where a friendly majority exists, but must go to Colonel Phelan and his associate, D. Walker Wear.

Colonel Phelan is known to look with extreme disfavor on Dempsey, especially since the champion "ran out" on Harry Wills after agreeing to

Every Cigarette At Its Best Because "It's Toasted"

LUCKY STRIKES are made from the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, perfectly blended.

Besides this supreme quality of leaf tobacco as compared with all other cigarettes—"IT'S TOASTED".

Just what does this mean—this phrase, "IT'S TOASTED"?

The tobacco is oven toasted at very high heats for 45 minutes; then chilled with the moisture completely restored. The toasting brings out the hidden flavors of the superbly fine tobacco. The chilling seals in these flavors; seals in, too, the moisture that has been restored. It all acts like a cold plunge on the pores of the body.

That's why LUCKIES taste so good. Why LUCKIES are always fresh when they come to you. Why millions prefer this uniquely fine cigarette.

BECAUSE IT'S TOASTED

Turk-Nash Infielder Leads City Industrial League Hitters

Auto Club's Second Sacker Also Piles Up Lead in Two-base Blows; Given Close Race by Brother, Alf; H. Strobel Turns in Flashy Stick Average.

EDDIE BAYLEY, brilliant second sacker and captain of the Turk-Nash team, swatting the ball consistently all year, is the leading hitter of the City Industrial Baseball league for the initial half of the 1926 season with a mark of .420 in 19 games during which he laced out 29 safe drives in 69 efforts with the bludgeon. He also led in two-swat drives with eight to his credit. In all other departments of play he was among the players excelling according to figures compiled by T. T. Jones, league statistician.

But for the fact that he was out of two games, his brother, A. Bayley, middle field custodian of the same club, might have beaten him for batting honors. As it was he was only three points off with .417 for the 17 contests in which he had 20 safeties in 48 chances. He was keen in walking and sacrificing also.

Strobel Well up in Race.

Almost worthy of first place in hitting for the period was the veteran H. Strobel of Victory Motor, who came through with a mark of .485. However he was in but 16 games. And in several of these he failed to stay in or start the game. Just the same he hit better than in any time of his long diamond career. Perhaps the fact that he took a turn occasionally as a pitcher had something to do with his return to form. He had 16 drives in 33 attempts.

That other veteran, S. Coleman, in the five games he played for Turk-Nash, landed on the ball at a .455 clip, having five hits, one of them being a hom run that won a crucial contest with Laughlin. Coleman was always a flashy guardian of the first sack. This year he held his own with the stick also.

Manager Alcock, former major and minor leaguer, who this year is managing Turk-Nash, hit .583 in six contests.

Bubin Hits Hard.

Bubin, Laughlin, hit .414 in 11 games and scored 10 times. With his three doubles, two triples and three home runs he stood high in extra bases.

In all, 25 swatted in the .300 charmed circle, only eight at .400 and four in the .500 class, the latter marks being made in fewer games.

The necessity of throwing out the K. T. K.Chester game of July 1 lowered the averages of some and slightly aided others. The chief loser was Potts, of Chester, who that day had a perfect mark at the bat with a single and two doubles in three attempts and these hits would have given him a .467 instead of the .407 he actually has and he probably would have merited the distinction of being the heaviest swatting receiver in the loop. Les McMath lost two safe ones which would have given him .310. Lysle lost a home run as well.

McShane K. T. K. Ace.

On the other hand McShane of K. T. K. gained as he did not hit safely in the June 15 game but had two good ones on July 3. McShane, by the way, swatted an even .400. His all around work, also stands out for in addition he had a perfect fielding mark in accepting 21 chances. He showed speed when needed, fielded brilliantly and was an ideal lead-off man for his club all year. His all around performance, even demeanor and willingness to be fair has greatly aided the league and brought honor to his club.

Wilde, first bagman-pitcher of Chester was in 23 games and just missed by nine points hitting at a .400 clip. His average is no mean figure in view of the fact that he pitched several times and in the flag deciding game with Laughlin July 7 stayed on the hilltop while suffering excruciating pain from a spike wound in his foot which kept him idle for several games at the outset of the second half.

Watson Leads Laughlin.

McConnell, with the Bayley brothers, formed the regular hitting trio of Turk-Nash. He finished with a mark of .368 with four less hits than the league leader made and five more than A. Bayley made. He hit consistently and dangerously all year.

W. Mundy, in 14 games, hit for a .360 mark. J. Morgan, Wellsville, hit the same in 11 games.

W. Watson, the young Newell high school lad, who understudies for the absent Tommy Sayres, went in and led the Laughlin club in hitting with .342. He was in 17 games. The youth showed gameness, capability and marked adeptness at the diamond pastime.

Finley, Laughlin captain, led the .333 hitters, playing in 22 games. Schneidmiller was next with 17 games.

Digman, who pitched Laughlin to a first half pennant, handled the stick well, too, having an average of .303 despite constant pitching.

Despite the fact that he was incapacitated for a portion of the season R. Pollock of Turk Nash came through with an average of .314 in 11 games.

Potts, .407 and Wilde, .391 led Chester with the willow. The Bayleys head Turk-Nash; McShane and Simcox, the latter .341, topped K. T. K.; W. Watson .341 and Finley .333, Laughlin; Sainor .382 and W. Mundy .360, Victory Motors; A. Morris, .381 and J. Morgan .348, Wellsville.

All Star Team.

From the statistics the All Star team so far as hitting is concerned would probably line up with Potts of Chester, .407 and Schneidmiller of Nash-Turk, .333 catching. The pitchers would include Wilde, Chester, .391; Sainor, Victory Motor, .382; Digman, Laughlin, .303, and M. Cebula, Chester, .293. W. Mundy, Victory Motor, .360, would cover first; E. Bayley, Nash-Motor, .420, second base; A. Morris, Wellsville, .381, shortstop; Simcox, K. T. K., .333, third base, C. Coleman, Victory Motor, .342; W. Watson, Laughlin, .342, and Finley, Laughlin, .333, would be utility men.

In the outfield A. Bayley, Nash-Turk, .417, McShane, K. T. K., .400, McConnell, Nash-Turk, .368, would do the fielding. F. Marshall, Chester, .327 and R. Pollock, Nash-Turk, .317, would be their understudies.

Laughlin had the most runs, 124, while Chester was one behind and Turk-Nash scored 117.

Turk Nash totaled 167 hits against 163 by Chester and 150 by Laughlin. Wellsville trailed with 102.

Line Out 40 Doubles.

In doubles Turk-Nash had 40, Chester 32 and Laughlin and K. T. K. 24 each.

Chester had 16 triples, while Turk-Nash, K. T. K. and Victor had 15 each.

Chester and Laughlin had five home runs each, with Turk-Nash and Victory Motor having four each.

In putouts Chester had 424, Laughlin 387 and Turk-Nash 359.

Chester, with 56, had the most errors. Victory Motor followed with 50. Chester led also in stolen bases with 53, Laughlin following with 49. Laughlin had 19 sacrifice hits as against Chester's 16.

Chester and Victory Motor, with 95 each shared the strikeout record. Laughlin had 89 and Wellsville 88.

In walks Laughlin led with 45, Chester having 44 and Victory Motor 36. The others trailed.

CHESTER BLANKS K. T. K. AT SMITH FIELD

LAUGHLIN BOWS TO TURK-NASH

Auto Club Overcomes Lead to Win 10-4 Decision.

PLAYING on a wet field, with lowered clouds darkening the entire lot, Turk-Nash, hitting the ball hard and taking advantage of opposition infield miscues, defeated Laughlin at Newell last evening, 10 to 4.

Third Bagman Herbert and Left Fielder Parsons were not in the Laughlin lineup, Pitcher English taking the former's place and Right Fielder Aufderheide moving to left with Bubin in right.

Crawford remained in middle and played a brilliant game, gathering in six hard chances. Bubin pulled down two catches in right that evoked applause, saving runs in both instances.

English clouted out a home run in the second, lacing the ball on a line to middle-right. R. Pollock apparently misjudged it and it reached the bushes, enabling Bubin, who previously had doubled, and Hunselman, on third, to score. Finley had opened the period with a single over third and reached the hot corner on Hunselman's rap after W. Watson fanned. As the catcher stole second he purloined the plate, giving the club four runs.

Overcome Laughlin Lead.

But Turk-Nash, with a 4 to 0 count against them, fought back. Schneidmiller, opening the fourth, reached first as Finley, handling his drive threw low to first, enabling the catcher to go on to second. D. Morgan singled over second. Talbot was safe, clogging the bases as Finley repeated his former performance. J. Watson fouled to Hunselman, the latter making a fine catch while leaning over the wire attached to the backston. Deshler drove to English, who booted the blow, permitting Schneidmiller and D. Morgan to count. E. Bayley walked. McConnell singled, scoring Deshler, and was caught off first, Hunselman to Babb. A. Bayley drove to Bubin, who made a fine catch, retiring the side.

R. Pollock walked in the fifth and reached third on Schneidmiller's double. A wild pitch scored him and put the catcher on the hot corner. D. Morgan flew to Babb. Talbot tripled to right, scoring Schneidmiller. J. Watson singled to left, sending the shortstop across the plate. Deshler flew to Crawford as did McConnell after Eddie Bayley had beaten out a rap to third.

Alf Bayley started the sixth by doubling. R. Pollock sacrificed, Suder to Babb. Schneidmiller doubled to left, Bayley finishing. Morgan singled through short. Schneidmiller scored on a bad throw by Suder to first and Morgan reached third from where he counted on a wild pitch. Talbot singled to right. J. Watson fanned. Deshler was hit. Eddie Bayley was safe on a drive to short on which Talbot counted. McConnell flew out to Crawford.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON, Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Power in the golf swing comes from the body as a whole, not from any particular part of the body. This fact gets lost to many golfers in the general confusion that results among them from cautions about this and that. Also rhythm of action implies that the whole action of the swing must be a rhythmic action of the entire body, like plain walking. This being true, the theories of launching the back swing with some particular part of the body is equal to initiating power at a point other than the source of power, and in the golf swing the source of power is the body. George Duncan and Abe Mitchell have this principle right. They tee off the back swing with a body movement, which I might liken to the hub of a wagon wheel starting first and applying power to the spokes and the rim.

Every Cigarette At Its Best Because "It's Toasted"

LUCKY STRIKES are made from the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, perfectly blended.

Besides this supreme quality of leaf tobacco as compared with all other cigarettes—"IT'S TOASTED".

Just what does this mean—this phrase, "IT'S TOASTED"?

The tobacco is oven toasted at very high heats for 45 minutes; then chilled with the moisture completely restored. The toasting brings out the hidden flavors of the superbly fine tobacco. The chilling seals in these flavors; seals in, too, the moisture that has been restored. It all acts like a cold plunge on the pores of the body.

That's why LUCKIES taste so good. Why LUCKIES are always fresh when they come to you. Why millions prefer this uniquely fine cigarette.

BECAUSE IT'S TOASTED

That's Why Luckies Taste So Good

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

Washington took fifth place away from the White Sox by downing the pale hose, 7 to 2. Al Thomas blew up in the eighth when the Senators scored six runs while Walter Johnson pitched well all the way.

Slim Harriss and Baby Doll Jacobson, handed to the Red Sox by Connie Mack, collaborated in whitewashing the Tigers, 7 to 0, Harriss yielding only five hits, while Jake got five hits, including a homer.

Title Fight

Faces Big Job.

It is not likely that Rickard will be able to get any action, one way or the other, on the fighters' licenses before the next meeting of the license committee.

Tex is faced with the necessity of getting his show under way immediately. He must establish training camps for Dempsey and Tunney, get his ticket sale started and the "ballyhoo" heated up.

For a fight of such importance six weeks are hardly sufficient to arrange the thousand and one details.

The uncertainly as to whether the fight can be held will undoubtedly depress the advance sale. Dempsey and Tunney will not be able to approach the battle mentally fit if worried over the prospect of the bars going up at the last moment or a hasty switch to some other battle ground. There are still numerous harassing details to worry Rickard.

Can't Refuse Permits.

George E. Brower, whose vote downed Farley yesterday, is a lawyer, and has expressed an opinion that the license committee cannot refuse permits to Dempsey and Tunney unless some legal reason exists for denying them.

"The license committeemen have no vote on the board and are supposed to follow its wishes as prescribed by majority vote," he said. "The board has voted to grant permission for this fight.

"The law does not specify any particular time before a fight for licensing boxers. Dempsey received his permit only a short time before he fought Firpo here three years ago. It is my opinion as a lawyer that the license committee of this board cannot resolve itself into an arbitrary body and defy the will of a commission majority."

The legal fight, if there is one, will break on this point. Commissioners Brower and Muldoon admit it may be necessary for Rickard to apply for a court order to force the licensing of Dempsey and Tunney.

Haskin's Letter

and yet the Indiana sage was no frivolous man. Dykaar had him for many sittings, finally getting the effect he wanted, dignity without a loss of the liveliness of the character.

Few friends of Mr. Longworth would call him a man of many moods, yet Dykaar found him so. "There are things in the heads and faces of men which they do not often put into words," says the sculptor. He said much the same of President Coolidge, although he found the President a not difficult subject. "He has wonderful ears," says Dykaar, "and a fine head. There is much in it which you do not suspect. But he does not have moods."

When Dykaar was struggling for recognition he was given a letter to a wealthy man who might be desirous of a personal portrait in bronze or marble. The millionaire was very abrupt. Dykaar was in debt, and desperately in need of work. Finally swallowing his pride he admitted that he needed a commission most desperately. He pleaded for a chance. "I have not actually anything to eat," he said.

The great merchant looked at him coldly. "A lot of people are in the same fix," was all he said.

Another person of wealth offered him five hundred dollars for a bust. It would have taken three or four months to make, besides the cost of material and a studio. But the subject insisted on his own bargain or none. Dykaar continued hungry for a while.

"But not all Americans are so cold or commercial about works of art," he says. "Many artists think they are. Some of my experiences would have embittered me, but I found other places where warm sympathy and appreciation greeted me. And most official people are very fine. The government itself is not a liberal patron of the arts. Congress buys a little for the capitol, but at prices fixed many years ago when an artist was glad to work many months for a thousand dollar fee. But official work wins recognition."

Dr. William H. Holmes, Director of the National Gallery of Art, has been a friend and admirer of the Russian sculptor, and he has done a fine bust of the director for the museum.

Besides many pieces of an allegorical character, Dykaar has made busts of two presidents and one vice president and two speakers, of Mrs. Coolidge, Hiram Maxim, Alexander Graham Bell, Count Tolstoi, Samuel Gompers, General George O. Squier, Rabbi Wise, Eugene Debs, Dr. Charles D. Walcott of the Smithsonian Institution, and many other celebrities.

He is still a poor man, but is among the younger artists who have "arrived." And he has achieved his place without sacrificing his independence or his temperament, which are among the dearest possessions of an artist.

An electric power station costing $1,054,000 will be erected at Collie.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

Washington took fifth place away from the White Sox by downing the pale hose, 7 to 2. Al Thomas blew up in the eighth when the Senators scored six runs while Walter Johnson pitched well all the way.

Slim Harriss and Baby Doll Jacobson, handed to the Red Sox by Connie Mack, collaborated in whitewashing the Tigers, 7 to 0, Harriss yielding only five hits, while Jake got five hits, including a homer.

Title Fight

Faces Big Job.

It is not likely that Rickard will be able to get any action, one way or the other, on the fighters' licenses before the next meeting of the license committee.

Tex is faced with the necessity of getting his show under way immediately. He must establish training camps for Dempsey and Tunney, get his ticket sale started and the "ballyhoo" heated up.

For a fight of such importance six weeks are hardly sufficient to arrange the thousand and one details.

The uncertainty as to whether the fight can be held will undoubtedly depress the advance sale. Dempsey and Tunney will not be able to approach the battle mentally fit if worried over the prospect of the bars going up at the last moment or a hasty switch to some other battle ground. There are still numerous harassing details to worry Rickard.

Can't Refuse Permits.

George E. Brower, whose vote downed Farley yesterday, is a lawyer, and has expressed an opinion that the license committee cannot refuse permits to Dempsey and Tunney unless some legal reason exists for denying them.

"The license committeemen have no vote on the board and are supposed to follow its wishes as prescribed by majority vote," he said. "The board has voted to grant permission for this fight.

"The law does not specify any particular time before a fight for licensing boxers. Dempsey received his permit only a short time before he fought Firpo here three years ago. It is my opinion as a lawyer that the license committee of this board cannot resolve itself into an arbitrary body and defy the will of a commission majority."

The legal fight, if there is one, will break on this point. Commissioners Brower and Muldoon admit it may be necessary for Rickard to apply for a court order to force the licensing of Dempsey and Tunney.

Haskin's Letter

and yet the Indiana sage was no frivolous man. Dykaar had him for many sittings, finally getting the effect he wanted, dignity without a loss of the liveliness of the character.

Few friends of Mr. Longworth would call him a man of many moods, yet Dykaar found him so. "There are things in the heads and faces of men which they do not often put into words," says the sculptor. He said much the same of President Coolidge, although he found the President a not difficult subject. "He has wonderful ears," says Dykaar, "and a fine head. There is much in it which you do not suspect. But he does not have moods."

When Dykaar was struggling for recognition he was given a letter to a wealthy man who might be desirous of a personal portrait in bronze or marble. The millionaire was very abrupt. Dykaar was in debt, and desperately in need of work. Finally swallowing his pride he admitted that he needed a commission most desperately. He pleaded for a chance. "I have not actually anything to eat," he said.

The great merchant looked at him coldly. "A lot of people are in the same fix," was all he said.

Another person of wealth offered him five hundred dollars for a bust. It would have taken three or four months to make, besides the cost of material and a studio. But the subject insisted on his own bargain or none. Dykaar continued hungry for a while.

"But not all Americans are so cold or commercial about works of art," he says. "Many artists think they are. Some of my experiences would have embittered me, but I found other places where warm sympathy and appreciation greeted me. And most official people are very fine. The government itself is not a liberal patron of the arts. Congress buys a little for the capitol, but at prices fixed many years ago when an artist was glad to work many months for a thousand dollar fee. But official work wins recognition."

Dr. William H. Holmes, Director of the National Gallery of Art, has been a friend and admirer of the Russian sculptor, and he has done a fine bust of the director for the museum.

Besides many pieces of an allegorical character, Dykaar has made busts of two presidents and one vice president and two speakers, of Mrs. Coolidge, Hiram Maxim, Alexander Graham Bell, Count Tolstoi, Samuel Gompers, General George O. Squier, Rabbi Wise, Eugene Debs, Dr. Charles D. Walcott of the Smithsonian Institution, and many other celebrities.

He is still a poor man, but is among the younger artists who have "arrived." And he has achieved his place without sacrificing his independence or his temperament, which are among the dearest possessions of an artist.

An electric power station costing $1,054,000 will be erected at Collie.

Return to Old Ideal Urged by Kiwanis Speaker.

Citing the evil effect of the multiplicity of laws on law observance and enforcement and pointing out the seeming disrespect for law as a result of the trend away from the old ideal of government, Attorney Earl R. Lewis, St. Clairsville, Republican candidate for state senator from the 20th-22nd district, last night addressed members of the Wellsville Kiwanis club at the Yellow Creek grange hall.

The session took the form of a ladies' night meeting. Approximately 150 Kiwanis and guests attended, including W. F. Lones, of this city, candidate for common pleas court judgeship of Columbiana county, and Ralph Emmons, candidate for state representative.

Attorney Lewis pointed out the ever increasing number of laws on the statute books, explaining that there are now over 16,000 separate sections of general application. When the code was enacted in 1912, he pointed out, there were approximately 12,000; and a few years ahead of that there were only 8,000.

This has an evil tendency on law observance and enforcement, he contended. Many of these sections, he said, were enacted under pressure of interests affected then, of only temporary importance, and yet they have been permitted to stand and become dead letters.

"We are getting away from the old ideal of government,' said Lewis, "the ideal which was that that government is best which governs least."

"We are drifting rapidly into a paternalistic government which seeks to regulate unnecessarily.

"All of this naturally results in a general disrespect for the law which seemingly has no real basis of morals, sound economics or good common sense."

RISLER READY TO TAKE STAND

Frank Risler, 54, Toronto, tinsmith, who is on trial for his life for the shooting to death last April of John C. McCoy, a dry agent who raided the Risler home, will mount the witness stand in his own behalf tomorrow in common pleas court in Steubenville.

Risler claims he shot in self-defense after McCoy had covered him with a gun. McCoy, according to Risler, had replied repeatedly: "None of your d— business" when asked what he was doing in the house which was raided, while Mrs. Risler would testify in support of her husband's statements.

Attorney R. B. Cohen said today the defense was not trying to conceal anything, maintaining that Risler shot in defense of himself and his home and admitting that Risler was a saloon owner at Bridgeport in 1906.

John Brayton, acquaintance of Frank Risler, tin mill foreman on trial for murdering John McCoy, prohibition officer, testified late yesterday that, before the killing, he heard Risler say: "If any dry officer ever searches my home, I will shoot him."

James A. Armstrong, who accompanied McCoy on the raid at Risler's home, told the jury that he found beer and whisky in the home, that the search warrant was legally issued, and that Risler, after shooting McCoy, dared Armstrong to leave the cellar, on threat of being shot.

The case will go to the jury Friday, attorneys said.

The Prague-Trieste air service project has been dropped because the Czechoslovak government refused to put up the necessary heavy subsidy.

Illinois Senator's Gift to University Mentioned in Quiz

FEDERAL BUILDING, CHICAGO, Ills., July 28.—A $5,000 gift by Senator William B. McKinley to the Lincoln university of Kentucky, was followed by it> Chancellor, John Wesley Hill, invading Illinois to support the senator in his race for re-nomination, Henry I. Green, the McKinley "paymaster," testified today at the senate slush fund investigation of the recent Illinois senatorial primary.,

The donation to the university was made in 1923, Green said. He added that Hill, who spoke for McKinley by praising his vote for the World Court, received no pay for the speeches, but did have his expenses paid.

This was the first of McKinley's "million-a-year' philanthropies to be investigated by the slush fund committee.

Russian Cossack Chorus Big Feature At Ceramic

Fourteen Vocalists, International Music Sensation, Here for Three Days With Paramount Film, "The Lucky Lady."

The Russian Cossack Male chorus, following successful engagements in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and Milan and now on tour in the United States, will be the special attraction at the Ceramic theatre tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, afternoon and evening, in connection with the presentation of the Paramount screen feature, "The Lucky Lady."

The Ceramic theatre management was especially fortunate in booking this international music sensation, in which 14 vocalists extraordinary take part. The chorus is directed by Stephen Sheloukhin. During the tour abroad, the chorus performed before the king of Italy and Premier Mussolini of Rome. Gabriele D'Annuzio, famous Italian poet, wrote, after hearing their program: "Their singing is as sweet as the dreamy dawn on sleeping flowers, as soft as the hush of endless calm and as thrilling as the night on which a new love comes to rule the enchanted world."

As a part of the program several of the chorus members take part in an exhibition of Cossack and Caucasian dances. The entire performance is a thrilling and novel entertainment.

One moment a beautiful princess with every man in the province eager for her hand, the next an awkward, unlovely girl, a disgrace to the kingdom.

Such is the part played by Greta Nissen, beautiful Norse actress, in "The Lucky Lady," which Raoul Walsh directed for Paramount.

Following the death of the prince of the little kingdom of San Guido, members of the cabinet send for Greta Nissen, the prince's daughter, who is in a nearby convent.

It is found, however, that the princess has temporarily run away from the convent to watch a band of traveling actors at a nearby hotel. At the inn she is seated with William Collier, Jr., an American. Her attention is divided between interest in the changing costumes of a girl on the stage and a flirtation she is attempting with Collier.

The convent vesper bell reminds Miss Nissen of her need for sudden departure and she starts back. Outside she sees the convent Abbe approaching. To avoid him, she jumps into the tonneau of a nearby automobile.

Before she has an opportunity to climb out, Collier enters the car and starts in search of her—to demand an explanation as to her sudden departure. In his search he drives near the convent, Miss Nissen then makes him aware of her presence and when he halts the automobile, she jumps out to enter the building.

Inside the convent a party of officials are waiting to escort her back. On the return trip, the automobile in which they are riding breaks down, and Collier, who is following, offers to drive them to their destination.

Russian Cossack Chorus Big Feature At Ceramic

Fourteen Vocalists, International Music Sensation, Here for Three Days With Paramount Film, "The Lucky Lady."

The Russian Cossack Male chorus, following successful engagements in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and Milan and now on tour in the United States, will be the special attraction at the Ceramic theatre tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, afternoon and evening, in connection with the presentation of the Paramount screen feature, "The Lucky Lady."

The Ceramic theatre management was especially fortunate in booking this international music sensation, in which 14 vocalists extraordinary take part. The chorus is directed by Stephen Sheloukhin. During the tour abroad, the chorus performed before the king of Italy and Premier Mussolini of Rome. Gabriele D'Annuzio, famous Italian poet, wrote, after hearing their program: "Their singing is as sweet as the dreamy dawn on sleeping flowers, as soft as the hush of endless calm and as thrilling as the night on which a new love comes to rule the enchanted world."

As a part of the program several of the chorus members take part in an exhibition of Cossack and Caucasian dances. The entire performance is a thrilling and novel entertainment.

One moment a beautiful princess with every man in the province eager for her hand, the next an awkward, unlovely girl, a disgrace to the kingdom.

Such is the part played by Greta Nissen, beautiful Norse actress, in "The Lucky Lady," which Raoul Walsh directed for Paramount.

Following the death of the prince of the little kingdom of San Guido, members of the cabinet send for Greta Nissen, the prince's daughter, who is in a nearby convent.

It is found, however, that the princess has temporarily run away from the convent to watch a band of traveling actors at a nearby hotel. At the inn she is seated with William Collier, Jr., an American. Her attention is divided between interest in the changing costumes of a girl on the stage and a flirtation she is attempting with Collier.

The convent vesper bell reminds Miss Nissen of her need for sudden departure and she starts back. Outside she sees the convent Abbe approaching. To avoid him, she jumps into the tonneau of a nearby automobile.

Before she has an opportunity to climb out, Collier enters the car and starts in search of her—to demand an explanation as to her sudden departure. In his search he drives near the convent, Miss Nissen then makes him aware of her presence and when he halts the automobile, she jumps out to enter the building.

Inside the convent a party of officials are waiting to escort her back. On the return trip, the automobile in which they are riding breaks down, and Collier, who is following, offers to drive them to their destination.
